Orientation At UND Is Led By Area Students

Michele Bachand, Brooks, and Kathy Pahlen, Plummer, were among 99 upperclass students who volunteered to lead information and discussion sessions for new student orientation activities held recently at the University of North Dakota, Grand Forks.

UND's enrollment services office conducted the program to introduce new students to buildings, offices and academic procedures that will be a part of their lives in the 1983-84 academic year.

Serving as student orientation squad leaders, these upperclass students conducted sessions on study skills, career planning, student health services, and library and campus features. Throughout the sessions they answered new students' questions about academic and social life.

Employers Can Be Subsidized Under Program

Employers about to hire new employees may be able to do so at no additional, immediate cost — or at a substantial payroll savings — under a new state job program.

Ray Beauchamp, job developer of the Minnesota emergency employment development (MEED) program in Thief River Falls, said that if employers hire a worker under the program they may be reimbursed up to $4 an hour in wages for the first six months of employment.

Since July 1, when the $70 million, two-year program began, 36 businesses have signed contracts for employees under the program in this area, according to Beauchamp.

"We're just gearing up," he said. "We expect to involve another 50 employers by the end of this year."

There is no limit to the number of workers an employer may hire under the program. "This subsidy represents an interest-free incentive to help businesses grow and, at the same time, creates long-term employment opportunities for unemployed Minnesotans," said Beauchamp.

Job applicants in the program should be unemployed and not receiving unemployment or workers' compensation. In additioon to the subsidized wage, day care assistance may be provided to workers enrolled in the program.

Employers wanting more information should contact Ray Beauchamp, Job Training Office, 318 North Knight Ave., Thief River Falls, MN 56701 (218) 681-7350.

SCATTERED REMAINS of a spring lamb (top photo) were all that Tim Prestebak could find in his pasture when checking for sheep losses Tuesday. He first discovered a spring lamb which had been killed Monday night, then found where two other lambs had been killed and eaten since he last checked the pasture September 30. In the bottom photo Prestebak shows where the teeth of a timberwolf punctured the throat of the lamb killed Monday night and nearly half eaten. The timberwolf is an endangered species under the federal regulations and those which prey on domestic livestock may be legally taken only by licensed trappers. One wolf was caught on the Prestebak farm this summer and Prestebak was compensated $240 for the loss of four sheep. The trapper is now after the animal or animals which caused the more recent losses.

Football Series To End

More than likely Friday's Thief River Falls-Moorhead high school football game was the last time the Prowlers and Spuds will be playing each other. The series, which has been played the past eight years, will be dropped not because of a one-sided Moorhead edge, but because of the expanded Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) sectional football playoffs that will be implemented for the 1984 season.

To Accommodate the playoff format, regular season schedules will be cut from nine to eight games. It's expected Thief River Falls will discontinue its series with Moorhead, while at the same time Crookston will sever a series with Aurora-Hoyt Lakes, allowing those two long-time northwestern Minnesota athletic rivals to meet at midseason instead of their annual season-ending confrontations, thus opening up that final week of October for the playoffs as mandated by the MSHSL.

Crookston and Thief River Falls have met each other in the final regular season football game every year since 1953.

Moorhead-Thief River Falls series apparently ends with a 7-1 edge for the Spuds, including Friday's 28-6 outcome. Lone Thief River Falls win during that series came in 1980 when the Prowlers surprised the Spuds 33-21.

Next fall eight of the nine teams in Section 8A will be involved in the sectional playoffs, which will provide a qualifier for the MSHSL Class A state playoffs.

Hibbing Program Is Shaky

Hibbing community college football coach Don Skoy was wondering if his winless Cardinals would be able to even finish the 1983 season following Saturday's 27-6 loss to Northland here in Thief River Falls.

Named Hibbing head coach just two weeks before the start of the season, Skoy said he quickly recruited, begged and cajoled 39 players to report for practice. But through injuries and defections that figure is now down to 23.

"A couple of more injuries and we might have to fold up the rest of the season," acknowledged Skoy. "I'd really hate to do that, but what are you going to do?"

To complicate matters, there isn't a whole lot of football talent among the 23 players currently on hand, admitted Skoy, who, because of the personnel shortage, found himself employing an unusual 6-1 defense instead of a more standard 5-2 set.

"You aren't going to beat many people using one linebacker," he confessed, "but I didn't have any choice."

Northland dressed 28 players for the game. But even with only five more players than the Cardinals, the Northmen are in a much better position. Despite the low numbers the Northland program is on solid ground. The Northmen do have some good athletes and they expect to win some more games before the 1983 season is completed. They finish their string of games against Northeast Division opponents Saturday when Mesabi visits Thief River Falls for a 1:30 p.m. game and then end the year against Northwest Division rivals Brainerd, Fergus Falls and the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Miscellaneous

+ Bemidji's Steve Lumbar, rated as one of the top Class AA cross country runners in Minnesota, was sidelined by an achilles tendon injury when the Lumberjacks participated in the strong 13-team field of the John Swain invitational at Duluth Saturday. Rated high in the state polls, the Lumberjacks won their first six starts this fall before finishing fifth at the prestigious Duluth meet, won by Hillcrest of Thunder Bay with 48 points, followed by Osseo with 113, Wayzata 163, Duluth Central 185 and Bemidji 210. Lumbar was the defending champion in the meet, and his appearance Saturday in top form would have chopped some 60 points off Bemidji's score. Jon Cameron of the Lumberjacks had his best day of the year with a sixth place finish. Lumbar is expected to wage a first place battle with Park Rapids' Mark Lingle when the Region 8AA cross country meet is held Oct. 27 at Fergus Falls.

+ Golden Valley Lutheran Royals, who used to feast on Northern Division teams before the Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) switch this fall into a four-division football alignment that ridded the northern teams of the misplaced metropolitan area school, have found it a lot tougher sledding in their new Southern Division surroundings with just a 1-3 record this fall. North Hennepin beat Golden Valley Lutheran 28-27 Saturday in the first meeting between the two schools since 1969, even though they are located just 20 minutes apart. Instead of making that short trip, the Royals found themselves driving to places like Thief River Falls, Ely, Hibbing, etc. because of their divisional alignment in the past. That idiocy in scheduling was finally resolved with the new football format this fall.

TRF Cross Country Invitational Held Tuesday

Mark Lingle of Park Rapids won the boys' race and Robin Skogland of Roseau won the girls' race Tuesday, but the team trophies went to East Grand Forks and Bagley, respectively, in the annual Thief River Falls invitational cross country meet run on the Thief River Country Club golf course.

Lingle showed why he is rated among the top five Class AA runners in Minnesota with a big 64-second victory over Brian Hanson of Grafton, recognized as one of the top runners in North Dakota. Lingle ran the chilly, wind-swept three-mile race in 15:15. Hanson, listed among the top five runners in North Dakota at the beginning of the year before running into a knee injury, continued to make a strong comeback, but wasn't able to challenge Lingle, finishing with a 16:24.

Meanwhile, it was a 1-2 finish for the Roseau girls as Robin Skogland ran a 12:04 for the two-mile course and teammate Tracy Hagen was clocked in 12:13.

However, neither the Panthers nor the Rams had enough depth to overtake East Grand Forks or Bagley in the final team standings.

East Grand Forks boys won with a 52-point afternoon, followed by Park Rapids with 71, Grafton 92, Thief River Falls 94, Crookston 103 and Bagley 119, with Roseau fielding an incomplete team.

Bagley girls won with 39 points, followed by Roseau with 47, Thief River Falls 54, Crookston 107 and Park Rapids 131.

Thief River Falls had two top ten runners among the boys and three in the girls. Senior Kevin Kezar ran a seventh place 16:40 and junior Mike Booren ran a ninth place 16:51. For the girls, senior Paula Wilkens, junior Stacie Kruta and eighth grade Jackie Smith were 8-9-10 in 12:47, 12:52 and 12:59, respectively.

"Overall, I thought our runners had a good day," reported Thief River Falls coach Lynn Dyer.

"Even though our boys placed fourth as a team, the times were down and we finally had two runners break into the top ten. Compared to the other races the boys have run, this was one of their better showings. It's hard to be content with fourth place, but we just don't have the runners we've been fortunate to have in the past.

"The girls ran very well," continued Dyer. "Their times are down, and they are moving more consistently to lower places in the top ten. I'd like to see our fourth and fifth runners right behind the first three, and they are closing that gap with each meet."

In other races, Chris Dubois of Fort Totten won the two-mile boys' junior high race in 11:00; Nancy Johnson of Bagley won the girls' two-mile junior high race in 12:59; and Shean Lambert of Fort Totten won the boys' three-mile junior varsity race in 16:49.

Dyer was again very pleased with the showings made by the younger Thief River Falls runners. Eighth grader Shayne Anderson was fourth in the boys' junior high race in 11:31, while eighth grader Peggy Cruz and sixth grader Rhonda Rothschadl were 2-3 in the girls' junior high race in 13:31 and 13:32.

"The junior high is running strong and consistent," mentioned Dyer. "Our younger runners have great

THREE MEMBERS OF the Lincoln high school girls varsity cross country team were bunched together near the mid-way mark of Tuesday's Thief River Falls invitational meet at the Thief River Country Club. And that's the way they finished, too, as, left to right, junior Stacie Kruta finished ninth in 12:52; senior Paula Wilkens was eighth in 12:47; and eighth grader Jackie Smith was tenth in 12:59. Thief River Falls girls finished third in the final five-team standings headed by Bagley.

Prowlers, Lumberjacks Meet For Homecoming

Two teams who have had problems offensively meet Friday when Thief River Falls hosts Bemidji in the 1983 Lincoln high school homecoming football game. And if neither the Prowlers nor the Lumberjacks correct their past offensive failings, it might be a repeat performance of their last meeting on Prowler Field — a scoreless episode that was finally decided by an overtime field goal as Bemidji won the 1981 encounter 3-0.

Bemidji began the year with one-sided 41-13 and 39-7 wins over Crosby-Ironton and Detroit Lakes sandwiches around an open date. But then the mistake-prone Lumberjacks' offense began to self-destruct. Two weeks ago Bemidji fumbled nine times, threw an interception and incurred six penalties in a 28-12 loss to Park Rapids. Last Friday it was more of the same as Bemidji lost four of six fumbles and had two passes intercepted in a 24-8 defeat at the hands of Fergus Falls.

Thief River Falls, meanwhile, has been just plain unproductive offensively. More specifically, the Prowlers' running game hasn't gotten any yards.

In a 21-12 season-opening loss to Grand Forks Red River the Prowlers rushed for just 13 net yards; in a 13-0 loss to Mahnomen two weeks later they got just 43; in a 7-6 defeat at the hands of Breckenridge they rushed for 96; and in last week's 28-6 setback to Moorhead they were limited to 39. It wasn't a coincidence that 298 yards on the ground against Detroit Lakes produced the Prowlers' only win of the year — a 20-0 conquest of Detroit Lakes.

Unable to move the ball on the ground, the Prowlers have scored just two touchdowns in the last 12 quarters.

Biggest problem is the continued mistakes made by the Prowlers in carrying out their blocking assignments, explained Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz, plus a few untimely penalties and fumbles thrown in for good measure.

"We're going to the basics this week," noted Schmitz, who doesn't plan any razzle-dazzle to spice up the offense

Northmen Face Key Test Against Mesabi Saturday

Saturday afternoon, against a Northeast Divison opponent, the Northland community college football team will find out if it can begin to challenge for a Northwest Division title the following week as the Northmen host Mesabi in a 1:30 p.m. Minnesota Community College Conference game at Prowler Field in Thief River Falls.

Like the others, Northland's 1983 MCCC schedule began with four inter-division games as Northwest and Northeast teams crossed over to play one another before spending the final three weeks banging heads within their own division. The winners meet in the first round of post-season play.

Northland lost its first two MCCC starts on the road, falling 33-15 to Itasca at Grand Rapids and losing 35-7 to Vermilion at Ely. A week ago the Northmen opened their home schedule with a 27-6 homecoming win over Hibbing.

This week it's Mesabi. A win would put Northland on pretty firm ground heading into the Northwest Division portion of the schedule that includes games Oct. 15 at Brainerd, Oct. 22 vs. Fergus Falls and Oct. 29 at the University of Minnesota-Crookston. A loss Saturday takes the Northmen out of the pennant picture even before they play a single divisional foe. Games against Northeast Division teams are worth one point in Northland's Northwest Division standings. Northwest Division games are two-pointers for the Northmen.

Mesabi matches Northland's 1-2 MCCC record. The Norseman began with a 21-7 victory over Fergus Falls, but then ran into shutout losses at the hands of Brainerd 23-0 and the University of Minnesota-Crookston 30-0. Last week's blanking by UMC was nothing new. The Trojans have outscored four opponents 115-3 this fall.

Including a 12-0 decision a year ago, Mesabi has won six of the seven meetings with Northland.

"This will be an important game for us," confirmed Northland coach John Helley. "I'm sure they'll be a little tougher than Hibbing, but they'll have about the same numbers as us, and I think it'll be two small community colleges having a good football game."

Helley said he was happy with Northland's win over Hibbing, but made it clear he wasn't completely satisfied with the effort.

"I still think these guys have more potential than what they've shown. There's some good athletes on this team who are capable of playing some real good football," Helley explained.

Offensively, wide receiver Todd Graalum, a sophomore from Fargo; runningback Kevin Roehl, a freshman from Nevis; and quarterback Steve Blanc, a freshman from Columbia Heights, all played well. Graalum caught four passes for 59 yards and two touchdowns; Roehl rushed for 138 yards and scored twice; and Blanc passed for 101 yards, including the two touchdown tosses to Graalum.

Defensively, linebacker Steve Robinson, a freshman from Westland, Mich., and end Greg Langerud, a sophomore from Edinburg, N.D., were the leading tacklers with 18 each, including 10 solo stops for Robinson and nine for Langerud.

Helley also gave special mention to an all-round effort by Bob Rockwood, a sophomore from Fargo who played several positions both offensively and defensively, and to Wade Hruby, a freshman from Thief River Falls who starred in both the offensive and defensive lines. "Wade opened some great holes with his blocking on offense," mentioned Helley. "I've never seen a better blocker going downfield. And he did a remarkable job on defense, too (nine tackles, including six solo stops)."

Tight end Avery Dahl, a freshman from Alma, Wis., reinjured his ribs in the Hibbing victory and is questionable for the Mesabi game.

Prowlers Blank Roseau By 5-0

Everybody won in straight sets Monday as the Lincoln high school girls tennis team closed out its 1983 regular season schedule with a 5-0 drubbing of Roseau on the Thief River Falls courts.

It was the Prowlers' eighth win in nine dual meet outings this fall. They also appeared in five multiple-team events, being involved in a three-way first place tie in a Bemidji triangular; sharing first place in their own Thief River Falls invitational; winning the five-team Bemidji invitational; placing second in the Bemidji-hosted Northwest Quadrangular; and also participated in the Brainerd invitational.

Post-season play starts next week. Seeding meeting will be held tonight (Wednesday) at Mahnomen to determine pairings in the North Sub-Region 8AA tournament, which will feature team play Monday at various sites; team finals Tuesday at 4 p.m. at the Grand Forks Racquetball and Tennis Centre; and the individuals matches Wednesday beginning at 9 a.m. at the same site.

John Helley, Northland football coach, is instructor for the course. Pre-enrollment is necessary, so for more information or to register call 681-2181. Fee for the course is $4.

DNR NEWS

Canada Goose Limit

A late spring in the Hudson's Bay area that drastically cut the reproduction of Canada geese resulted in lower bag limits in Minnesota this fall, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

Reduction in the fall flight of Canada geese has also prompted wildlife officials to reduce the quota of geese that may be taken at the Lac qui Parle wildlife management area in western Minnesota.

This year the quota is 4,500, a 1,000 bird reduction from last season. Officials said the season on geese at Lac qui Parle will be closed when the quota is reached or on Nov. 19, if the quota is not reached before that date.

Robert Jessen, DNR waterfowl specialist, said geese in the Hudson's Bay area normally start nesting in May, but this year they were unable to find suitable nesting conditions until late June.

"After the long delay, few geese tried to nest at all. The result is that the migration this fall will only have about 10 per cent of the number of young-of-the-year geese that comprised the fall flight last year."

In most of Minnesota, the daily bag limit on Canada geese is one bird daily and two in possession, a cut from last year's limit of two daily and four in possession. Daily bag limit of one bird at Lac qui Parle is the same as last year, but the possession limit has been cut from four to two.

Jessen said it is hoped the restrictions this season will stabilize the goose population at a level that will see a recovery to the previous figure of 200,000 following a year or two of average reproduction.

Limit on geese in the southeastern Minnesota goose zone is the same as last year.

"The birds that migrate through that area breed farther south than the Hudson's Bay flock and escaped the bad weather and poor nesting conditions, producing a normal number of young geese," said Jessen.

Receives Award

A Minnesota state park official has received the 1982 Public Service Award from the Minnesota Association of Landscape Architects for his professional contributions to scout groups, church organizations and the YMCA.

Milt Krona, recreation system supervisor with the DNR's division of parks and recreation, was presented the award at a recent meeting of the association in Minneapolis.

"His dedicated concern for the community stands as an outstanding example of the Minnesota Landscape Architect's demonstrated social awareness," said the group.

Cards' Homecoming Game Is Slated Friday

Plummer's unbeaten Nine-Man high school football team will have a little added incentive to do well Friday when the Cardinals will be celebrating homecoming with their 7:30 p.m. North Tri-County Conference game against McIntosh-Winger.

After three straight narrow come-from-behind wins over Grygla-Goodridge (14-8), Erskine-Mentor (28-22) and Fisher (22-18), the Cardinals will be heavy favorites this week in light of the Scots' lopsided 53-0 Friday night loss to Grygla-Goodridge — in the Goodridge homecoming game.

Elsewhere in the North Tri-County Conference Friday, it'll be Gonvick-Trail at Oklee, Middle River vs. Grygla-Goodridge at Goodridge and Fisher at Mentor, with Clearbrook playing a nonconference game at Climax.

Meanwhile, the Top of the State Conference begins its second round of home-and-home meetings this week with Marshall County Central at Stephen, Argyle at Greenbush and Hallock at Tri-County.

Marshall County Central, an easy 30-6 winner at Greenbush last week, and Stephen will actually be meeting for the first time in the 7:30 p.m. game at Stephen, but Argyle beat Greenbush 45-12 earlier this fall and Tri-County opened the season with a 50-18 victory over Hallock.

Argyle was a big 46-12 winner over Tri-County in last week's match-up of unbeaten conference leaders.

BREAKING INTO the top ten finishers Tuesday during the annual Thief River Falls invitational cross country meet at the Thief River Country Club was the Prowlers' Mike Booren, a junior who finished ninth with a 16:51 clocking on the three-mile course. Mark Lingle of Park Rapids won it in 16:40. East Grand Forks was the team winner in the boys' division.

Grygla Wins Two Matches In High School Volleyball Play

Grygla collected a pair of North Border Conference high school volleyball wins by beating Warroad in quick 18-5, 18-2 fashion Monday and then coming from behind twice to beat Roseau 18-16, 18-13 Tuesday.

Those wins improved the Eagles' season record to 7-3.

Grygla will host Goodridge Thursday and will entertain Lake of the Woods Monday.

Alvarado bounced visiting Goodridge 18-4, 18-12 Tuesday, dropping the Huskies' record to 1-8 for the year.

"We started to come back a little bit in the second game to make a game of it," noted Goodridge coach Patti Johnson. The first game was all Alvarado, she admitted. "We were never in it."

Goodridge will be at Grygla Thursday and will participate in the Plummer invitational Saturday.

Fall State Tournament Schedule Starts Oct. 26

First of eight Minnesota State High School League-sponsored fall sport state tournament events being held once again during a five-week span will begin October 26 when the tenth annual state Class AA and Class A girls tennis tournament gets underway, reports Larry Larson, MSHSL director of information and publication.

Tennis event starts on the last Wednesday in October and runs through Saturday, October 29, at the Rein Tennis Clubs (Como, Phalen, Lilydale) in St. Paul. Team play will be conducted on Wednesday and Thursday, while singles and doubles competition is scheduled for Friday and Saturday.

Edina in Class AA and St. Paul Academy in Class A are defending champions. In fact, Edina teams have won five straight championships and St. Paul Academy will be after its fifth consecutive Class A crown.

Among the better individual players this season include Ginger Helgeson of Edina, a sophomore, and Kim Burnet of Breck, a junior. Both players finished as runner-ups at the 1982 tournament, losing to graduated seniors Janet McCutcheon, Wayzata, and D'Arcy Kyle, St. Paul Academy, respectively.

More than 3,000 girls are participating in girls tennis this fall season. There are 169 schools registered with the MSHSL.

Soccer

Next in line among the eight fall sports state events is the week of state soccer tournaments for boys and girls. Tenth annual state boys soccer tournament and the fourth annual state girls soccer tournament is scheduled for the final day in October and on November 3-5.

Quarterfinal contests are set for Monday, October 31. Semifinal games will be played Thursday, November 3, with championship games scheduled for Saturday, November 5. Games on Monday and Thursday are scheduled for the evening, while Saturday's title games will be played at 1 p.m. Girls championship game will be played at Park high school in Cottage Grove and the boys' at Osseo high school.

Sixty-six boys teams and 50 girls teams are participating in the soccer program this fall. Burnsville is the defending boys champion and Bloomington Jefferson hopes to repeat as girls titlist.

Cross Country

Also during the first week in November, the cross country season will culminate with the state meet at the University of Minnesota short golf course in Falcon Heights on Friday, November 4.

Unlike previous years when the state meet was a two-day affair with Class AA on one day and Class A the next, this year's event will be conducted on one day. Class AA boys begin the running at 10:30 a.m., followed by the Class AA girls at 11:30 a.m. Class A boys begin their run at 1 p.m., followed by the Class A girls at 2. Boys run a 5,000-meter course and the girls cover a 3,200-meter terrain.

There are more than 5,000 runners competing state-wide. Two-hundred and eighteen schools are registered in cross country with the MSHSL.

Minnetonka is the two-time defending girls Class AA champion, while Redwood Falls won the 1982 Class A girls team title. In boys state competition last November, Winona won Class AA laurels and Staples captured the Class A crown.

Top individual girl runners competing this year include Stephanie Herbst, Chaska, and Jackie Hubbard, Becker. Both seniors, Herbst was state runner-up in the state Class AA meet, and Hubbard won the Class A championship in 1982.

Among the top-notch boys runners are senior Steve Lumbar, Bemidji, junior Jeff Taylor, Mounds View, both in Class AA, and senior Bob Jirele, Rochester Lourdes, and junior Randy Reichel, Staples, in Class A competitors. Lumbar and Taylor were the top finishing underclassmen at last year's Class AA state meet when finishing fourth and fifth, respectively, while Jirele and Reichel finished second and third in the Class A state meet last fall.

Football

Adding to the excitement of those early November days will be the start of the 12th annual state football playoffs, which culminate with the second prep bowl, the five state title games at the Metrodome in Minneapolis on Saturday, November 19.

Leading up to the Prep Bowl, quarterfinal state playoff contests are slated for November 4-5 with semifinal outings scheduled for November 10, 11 and 12.

Among the 467 schools throughout the state participating in interscholastic football, 40 of them (eight in each of the five classes) will advance to the state playdowns following regular season action. Once again championships will be decided in classes AA, A, B, C and Nine-Man.

Sites for all quarterfinal and semifinal games will be determined once qualifying teams are known. Defending state champions include Stillwater, AA; Brooklyn Center, A; Le Center, B; Truman, C; and Westbrook, Nine-Man.

Classification enrollment figures being used for a third straight year include Class AA — 800 students and above (upper three grades); Class A — 799-to-320; Classes B and C — 319 and under (largest 50 per cent will be Class B and smallest 50 per cent in Class C); and Nine-Man — (all schools playing nine-man football).

A breakdown of schools playing in each division is as follows: AA — 81; A — 91; B — 93; C — 94; and Nine-Man — 108.

Again this year conference champions and independents with outstanding won-lost records will enter post-season play.

Volleyball

Tenth annual state Class AA and Class A volleyball tournament is also on the busy November slate of state tournaments. Scheduled for the Met Center in Bloomington on Friday and Saturday, November 18 and 19, that event will bring together eight region champions in each class for three rounds of championship series ACTION.

Three-time defending champion in Class AA is Robbinsdale Armstrong, while Mayer Lutheran won last year's Class A title.

Interest in interscholastic girls volleyball has increased immensely during the sport's first decade of sponsorship in Minnesota. Ten years ago only 111 schools sponsored the activity compared to more than 475 during the last six years. Nationally, Minnesota ranked seventh in 1982 in number of schools participating (486) and in number of participants (13,214).

Attendance at the state-tournament level also indicates spectator interest — witnessed by the record 18,773 that watched last year's state tournament.

Girls Swimming

On the same weekend as the state volleyball tournament, girls swimmers and divers will be competing in the 28th state girls swimming and diving championships, scheduled for November 18 and 19 at Cooke Hall pool on the campus of the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis.

Preliminaries in all 11 events are slated for the first day with championship finals set to begin on Saturday starting at 1:30 p.m.

Defending state team champion is Burnsville, who won its second straight title in potential and are running with a lot of enthusiasm. Our top junior high boy has been Shayne Anderson, who has placed in the top in every meet this year. Peggy Cruz and Rhonda Rothschadl have both been in the top five in every meet for the girls."

Tuesday marked the lone home appearance of the 1983 season for the Prowlers, who will close out the 1983 regular season schedule with invitational meet appearances Tues., Oct. 11, at Park Rapids and Tues., Oct. 18, at Bemidji.

LHS Homecoming Game Is Set Friday Against Bemidji

or surprise Bemidji. "You can't plan to do that because you don't know what the weather will be like," he explained. "On our field, you never know from one week to the next what the conditions will allow you to do."

And right now the condition of the Prowler Field playing surface is anything but good. Wet weather and two weekend games (Prowlers vs. Moorhead; Northland vs. Hibbing) has made a mess of it.

Those conditions also play a part in the Prowlers' ability to throw the football. Quarterback Mitch Semanko is 27-for-75 passing in five games, a 33 per cent completion figure that has produced 363 yards, two touchdowns and seven interceptions. Wide receiver Steve Wiskow has caught 12 passes for 140 yards and runningback-flanker Tim Bottem has caught eight passes for 145 yards.

Despite the Lumberjacks' back-to-back losses, Schmitz expects Bemidji to have a strong team on the field Friday night. "They lost to two of the better teams in northwestern Minnesota," he pointed out. Park Rapids could be one of the state's top Class A teams and Fergus Falls could be one of the top Class AA ball clubs. They're both unbeaten.

Bemidji has won five of the last six meetings between the two long-time athletic rivals, including a 12-6 decision in 1982. Thief River Falls last beat Bemidji 22-21 in 1979.

Senior Todd Ortloff, a two-way starter for the Prowlers at center and linebacker, suffered a knee injury in the Moorhead game and isn't expected to play Friday. Roger Gonsorowski, a 5-10, 174-pound junior, is expected to fill both positions. Senior Rick Spong has apparently overcome the back problems that plagued him earlier this fall and will be holding down a starting cornerback job on defense.

MCC Starts New Winning Streak

Marshall County Central, after having its winning streak snapped at six matches the last time out in a 2-0 loss at Grygla, bounced back into the win column Monday with a 14-16, 18-11, 18-10 high school volleyball win over Greenbush at Newfolden.

"We needed this win," said Marshall County Central coach Julie Tunheim. "It took a while to get going, but we started humming toward the end. We did what we had to do to win, but we could have done better."

Three seniors were the Marshall County Central leaders as Shelly Anderson collected 10 ace attacks, Nancy Nelson was credited with 12 set assists and Stacey Gonshorowski had 10 assists.

Marshall County Central, 7-2 for the year, will host Roseau Thursday.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls water utility announced today that the State maximum allowable limit for turbidity in drinking water is being exceeded.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity levels, do not create any health hazard because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with State Health Department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lamm at the Water Plant, phone number 681-3309.

UND Basketball Coaches Clinic Is Set Nov. 4-5

Fifth annual University of North Dakota basketball clinic has been scheduled Nov. 4-5 at the Westward Ho Motel in Grand Forks, according to Sioux head basketball coach Dave Gunther.

Four successful high school coaches and the UND men's coaching staff will serve as clinic instructors.

Visiting prep coaches named as clinicians are Del Schiffler, coach of the Minnesota 1983 Class AA championship Woodbury; Bob Torgrimson, coach of 1983 North Dakota Class A state championship West Fargo; Lynn Peterson, coach of the Staples team that has appeared in the Minnesota state tournament the past three seasons; and Bob Hunskor, coach of the Newburg, N.D. high school team and currently the winningest active high school coach in the state.

Gunther said interest in the clinic in recent days has increased.

Clinic is open to all boys and girls coaches. The pre-registration fee is $20, while registration at the door will be $25.

Gunther said there will be seven clinic sessions and a social hour. The clinic also will include a Sioux practice Nov. 5 beginning at 9:30 a.m.

More information may be obtained by writing to Gunther at UND or by calling 701-777-2974.

There are fish in Amazon rivers that have developed teeth with molars strong enough to crush hard nuts, says International Wildlife magazine. They come in handy each year when the fish swim into flooded Amazon forests searching for seeds and fruit that drop from trees. Without this important source of food, the fish would probably die from lack of nutrients.

To reach under bark and into wood, the European green woodpecker, says National Wildlife's Ranger Rick magazine, can stick its tongue out 25 inches beyond its beak.

Bell Requests Increases In Phone Rates

Telephone rates in Thief River Falls would rise from $10.72 to $12.80 on a residential basis and from $27.11 to $33.50 on a business basis under a new rate schedule requested by Northwestern Bell Telephone company to the Minnesota public utilities commission last week.

That interim rate increase would go into effect November 28 and would be intended to raise additional annual revenues of $54.7 million. Under the company's request for total additional revenues of $109.4 million, residential rates would increase to $18.96 and business rates to $34.35.

Northwestern Bell said the rate increase was necessary based on the impact of competition and loss of subsidies from other services, increased risk due to its divestiture from AT&T and faster depreciation required to implement new technologies.

The proposed interim rates are proposed as the first step toward pricing residential service closer to the cost of providing it. Business rates are currently priced above cost, the company said, and Northwestern Bell is proposing to reduce business rates in the final determination of the case in order to meet competition from other technologies.

Recognizing that local residential rates will take a substantial jump over the next few years, the company said its "social pricing" must give way to the competitive marketplace. Instead of subsidizing low rates for all residential users, competition requires each service to be priced to cover actual cost.

Noting a concern that some customers eventually could be priced off the network, the company asked the public utilities commission to use the general public hearings on its proposal as a public forum to focus attention and gain input on new public policies to maintain "universal service".

In addition to the proposed increases for local service line, the company will also increase charges for extended area service to nearby communities and options such as touch-tone and custom calling features. The company will not increase charges for long distance within Minnesota.

A Teepee and a Wigwam are not the same: A teepee is a tall-cone-shaped tent, while a wigwam is a rounded or oval-shaped hut, built more on the order of the Eskimo igloo.

County Farmers To Benefit By Disaster Loans

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has reported a number of items that could affect farmers in disaster-stricken areas of northwest Minnesota.

Lower interest rates on disaster loans, an indication that at least two counties will receive the required 1983 disaster declaration, and added Farmers Home administration (FmHA) services were among the announcements today.

"President Reagan has lowered the interest rate charged for disaster loans from eight per cent to five per cent on the first $100,000 of relief," Congressman Stangeland said. "That will increase the buying power for embattled farmers."

He argued for lower disaster interest rates at the Chicago meeting with Agriculture Secretary John Block on September 2.

"Red Lake and Pennington county farmers seem sure to get disaster relief for the 1983 season," Congressman Stangeland said. "I was told by Minnesota's FmHA director Russ Bjorhus that early crop assessments indicate the two counties will be eligible for emergency crop designations."

Congressman Stangeland said he has secured disaster relief for the two counties in five of the last six years.

"As for the rest of northwest Minnesota, I have already sought and received assurances from Secretary Block that requests for disaster relief will be handled as expeditiously as possible," he said.

Congressman Stangeland also noted that two five-person "emergency loan teams" are being trained to serve disaster-stricken counties for FmHA. "This should cut the delays in netting emergency relief to farmers," he said.

Under a plan announced Wednesday, a special "disaster relief" clerk will be hired at each of FmHA's regional offices in Thief River Falls, Warren, McIntosh and Crookston. Congressman Stangeland said he persuaded FmHA to open the new office in Crookston this year.

Red Lake county farmers will be served by the McIntosh FmHA office while Pennington farmers will use the office in Thief River Falls.

"By adding a new office, farmers will get assistance more quickly and closer to home," Congressman Stangeland said.

COLLEGE FAIR at Northland community college gymnasium last Tuesday attracted approximately 700 students from area high schools. Representatives from 64 colleges, universities, trade and industrial schools and the armed services were present from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. to visit with seniors and their parents. The college fair was sponsored by the Minnesota association of secondary school counselors and college admissions officers.

Corn Husking Contest Slated Oct. 14 And 15

Minnesota will be host this October 14 and 15 to the National hand corn husking contest for the first time in 51 years, according to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols. State contest will be held at the same time, near Sanborn.

It will be only the second time ever that the National hand corn husking contest has been held in Minnesota.

More than 100,000 spectators attended the 1932 national contest held at Fairmont, when Minnesotan Ted Balko of Redwood Falls out-husked champions from 33 other states to capture the U.S. crown. At least nine states will be represented in this year's national contest.

At that time most of the nation's corn crop was still harvested by hand. Mechanical corn picker and tractor power were just beginning the modernization of American agriculture.

This year's contest will be a historic reflection of that gone by era when the farmer and his family walked the corn rows, deftly and swiftly plucking the ears from the stalks and accurately throwing the corn into accompanying horse drawn wagons. In the quiet rural environment one could determine the neighborhood's fastest husker by the rate of audible tattoo on the corn wagon bangboard.

Again official hosts for this year's state and national contest are Albert and Esther Pabst, who helped revive the Minnesota contest in 1980 at Amboy and have sponsored it in cooperation with the Sanborn community for the past two years. Contest will be held on the Pabst farm, three and one half miles south of Sanborn on highway 71.

Minnesotans may enter the state contest until 9 a.m. on October 14. There will be contest divisions for men, for women, and for youth ages 20 and under. Three winners from each division will advance to the national contest on October 15. National event will also offer open competition for two divisions of senior citizens, ages 55 through 74, and for old timers 75 and over. There is no entry fee.

Champions and contestants will be honored at a banquet the evening of October 14 at the Rope and Spur supper club in Sanborn, at which Commissioner Nichols will be the speaker.

Senator Gives Support For Aid Program

In what Senator Dave Durenberger called "an unequivocal statement of support for our most efficient federal-local aid program," the Senate recently voted 87-6 to reauthorize general revenue sharing (GRS) for another three years.

The bill (S. 1426), which was passed Wednesday evening, is fundamentally the same as the reauthorization introduced early this year with 76 cosponsors. It preserves the program's current funding level of $4.6 billion per year for three years.

"This action is more than a show of support for the thousands of local governments that depend upon GRS funds," Durenberger said. "It says, in the most bipartisan way, that general-purpose federal aid makes sense. It works." Unlike other aid programs, funds from the 11-year-old GRS program can be used for any legal purpose a local government chooses, he pointed out.

Durenberger said the GRS program should eventually be broadened, including a new revenue sharing program for state governments. However, he argued that the formulas for allocating GRS funds should first be overhauled. "I believe GRS should be strengthened and its funding expanded — but in that order. No additional dollars should go out under such flawed formulas," he said.

The bill also includes an amendment by Durenberger providing for a series of studies to be conducted over the next three years on the condition of the intergovnermental aid system.

The senator said the studies should "lay the foundation for major federalism reforms, including the return of revenues and authority to state and local governments."

The bill also includes an emendment by Durenberger providing for a series of studies to be conducted over the next three years on the condition of the intergovernmental aid system. The senator said the studies should "lay the foundation for major federalism reforms, including the return of revenues and authority to state and local governments."

The Senate bill now goes to conference committee with the House version (H.R. 2780), which would increase GRS funding by $450 million per year. Durenberger has been named to the conference committee.

Minnesota's local governments got nearly $85 million in GRS funds for fiscal year 1983. The current program expires on Sept. 30, 1983.

Survey Shows Most Fail In Buckling-Up

Data from a recent observation survey of over 5,000 drivers and passengers indicates that Minnesotan's use of automobile safety belts and child car safety seats is no better than the rest of the nation.

Despite the newly amended Minnesota child passenger restraints law, only 35 per cent of the infants observed were properly restrained in approved devices. Twenty-four per cent of the toddlers seen, ages one to four, were so protected. National averages, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, are approximately 35 per cent and 25 per cent, respectively.

Minnesota survey, funded by the National highway traffic safety administration, was conducted by the Minnesota safety council in cooperation with the Minnesota department of public safety's office of traffic safety. Brainerd, Duluth, East Grand Forks, Fergus Falls, Mankato, Rochester, Rush City and three Twin Cities shopping centers — the Southdale center, Maplewood mall and Rosedale center were surveyed from July 11 to 26.

Car passenger's use of safety restraints was the worst among adults observed with only 10 per cent buckled up. Older children, between the ages of four and 10, had 13 per cent safety restraint usage, with drivers slightly better at 14 per cent.

Peter Carr, chairman of the Minnesota child safety committee, cautioned against drawing hasty conclusions from the raw data compiled. Once it has been treated statistically to represent Minnesota motorists as a whole, an analysis could yield totally different results.

A definitive report on the survey, after statistical analysis, is expected to be available from the Minnesota safety council and the state office of traffic safety in four to six weeks.

MAY WE COME IN?

Let us introduce ourselves . . . WE are the hundreds of millions of earnest souls the world over who believe it's God's world and He makes a difference.

We worship Him and seek inspiration in His truths. We bring our children to His house for religious education. We encourage their growth in the faith of our fathers. In our every day pursuits we try to live up to our convictions. Failing . . . we seek God's help as we try again.

Our spiritual heritage is yours also. In worship each week we share its reverent expression.

May we come into your life? Please come into ours!

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hottis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Listening to a discussion on "How to make Washington work," I heard many long time "D-C'ers" indicate that our government is so unwieldy, with hundreds of entrenched agencies and bureaus, that it is difficult to manage, regardless of the president's name. One long time viewer of the capital said, "no one is in charge. . . these various government entities operate like a bunch of juvenile delinquents all doing their own thing with one objective, self preservation of the staff."

He illustrated the problem by saying that if a bureau is processing fewer cases, and someone suggests cutting back the staff, the bureaucrat in charge says, "We are handling fewer cases because we are overworked and need more money." If the bureau case load is up, the bureaucrat in charge says, "we are handling more cases, and that's why we need more money." In effect, "the inmates are running the institution" without regard for the best interest of the nation, and this has many observers wondering whether our democracy can survive under the weight of all of these bulging and growing bureacracies.

Each of these government agencies has a public relations staff plugging away selling the importance of what they do. Special interest groups are lined up to support the agency. Balanced budgets or priorities for spending so that the nation can live within its means and minimize inflation must take second place to the agency's preservation and expansion.

Everyone agrees that there is a problem, getting government to operate more effectively and within what we can afford. Few people have suggestions that will solve the problem.

Attending a forum sponsored by the Association of Private Enterprise Education, a speaker, William H. Meckling, the 19-year dean of the graduate school of management at the University of Rochester (New York), had some ideas on how to improve our government's operation. In a speech, "the Snowball effect of Government Intervention", Bill felt that our federal and state legislators have "sold out" to the special interests, and that there has been a development of a tyranny of minorities over the majority. As he sees it, representatives with small constituencies bet on the indifference of the majority and the flood of misinformation disseminated by news media interested in creating an audience to improve profits.

Bill's solution to the problem of "bought representatives" with little or no morality is interesting and deserves consideration, even though I was as shocked as everyone else in that audience when Bill advocated the abolishment of federal and state legislatures. He favors the retention of the executive branch (president and governors) and the use of national and state referenda on budgets and laws. Furthermore, it is his opinion that all budgets must be balanced every year with taxes.

This would end the individual agency's playing to their special interests in the legislative bodies and the public, and would give control of the government to a president responsible to the people. This would also end the effort by special interest groups to "logroll" their special projects by offering a vote for someone else's special projects in exchange for votes, all at the expense of the nation.

In discussing the operational details, Bill Meckling referred to the Swiss confederation, which has effectively used referenda, where everyone votes. The Swiss, he says, also require all taxing to be done by their "states" (Cantons), who then fund the federal government.

Bill also believes that we must improve information availability to our citizens through TV and other media so that they can make sound referenda judgments. He wanted to see balanced news reporting rather than biased or emotional materials designed to stir up an audience rating or readership for commercial purposes. He felt that the showmanship of our TV news, in particular, provided biased information to our people.

Like you, I am concerned about what we can do to improve our government performance. I can see Bill Meckling's dislike for the lies and deceit of political and journalistic showmen whose motivation is greed and not the national interest. On the other hand, I must admit that I would have to do a lot of thinking before I could support Dean Meckling's solution to the problem, the dissolution of our legislative branch and presidential government supported by referenda.

On the other hand, Bill Meckling has given this problem of making government work better some thought and proposed a solution, and that's why it deserves consideration. There are not too many solutions being offered today.

That's Straight Talk!

Shipments By Barge Reach All-Time High

More than $1 billion worth of farm grains and oilseeds had been shipped by barge from Minnesota terminal elevators by the end of August this Mississippi waterway season, according to agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols.

Not only did July and August barge traffic set new all time highs for export movement from Minnesota those summer months, but the accumulated season total and continuing shipping pace indicate that 1983 will easily top prior record 1981 for the terminal elevators on the Mississippi.

More than $1 billion in area gross farm cash receipts from barge movement represented the export shipments totaling nearly 256.4 million bushels of corn, soybeans, wheat, oats, rye and grain screenings.

That end of August barge volume was ahead of the same point last year by 29 per cent, and ahead of record 1981 by 16 per cent or a full month of waterway traffic.

Commissioner Nichols said that if the July-August barge export pace continues, and it has thus far shown no letup, Minnesota will break the old 1981 season record within the next five to six weeks and nearly a month before the usual Thanksgiving week river shutdown for the winter.

August barge loadings of crops set a new all time one month high, 1,314 barges filled with more than 67 million bushels that grossed farmers more than $329 million. Compared to the previous month of July, that volume was higher by 31 per cent and the farm gross was up by 53 per cent.

Corn leads in barge volume with more than 126.3 million bushels that grossed farmers an estimated $327.5 million.

Soybeans is the top generator of farm marketing receipts, the 68.3 million bushels barged out to the Gulf returning farmers an estimated $451.1 million.

Wheat exports via barge from Minnesota have totaled nearly 55.9 million bushels and grossed farmers $218.2 million.

Before The Minnesota Public Utilities Commission

IN THE MATTER OF AN INVESTIGATION INTO INTRASTATE ACCESS CHARGES TWENTY-THREE TELEPHONE COMPANIES OPERATING IN THE STATE OF MINNESOTA

DOCKET NO. P-421/CI-83-203 et al

Notice is hereby given that the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission (the Commission) will hold evidentiary and public hearings into the matter of intrastate access charges.

Recent Federal Communications Commission (the FCC) and court rulings will mean that most long distance service will have to be purchased from a long distance carrier, rather than from the local telephone company. Beginning in 1984, this will be one of the several changes affecting your telephone service.

The Commission is currently investigating how local telephone companies will provide long distance carriers with access to local customers. When it completes its investigation of this issue, the Commission may establish rates (access charges) for long distance carriers and local customers that will cover the local telephone companies' expenses associated with providing access to their local facilities used to complete intrastate long distance calls.

The Commission has directed the twenty-three (23) regulated telephone companies serving customers in the State of Minnesota to file proposed intrastate access charges, proposed rules and regulations dealing with those charges, related financial data and an implementation plan for those charges.

The FCC has already established interstate access charges that long distance carriers and local telephone customers must pay for access to local telephone company facilities used to complete interstate long distance calls. In 1984, the monthly interstate access charge for residential customers will be $2.00 per month per customer. Business customers must pay $6.00 per month per customer for interstate long distance access.

Northwestern Bell has proposed that the Commission adopt the following intrastate access charges for its residential and business customers:

Business and Residential Customers:
1 party service	.98
2 party service	.88
4 party service	.58
Semi public telephone	.98
CENTREX LINES	.98 (per CENTREX Common Line)

More Jobs Than Takers?

Following editorial by Scott Schoen appeared recently in the Redwood Gazette:

Americans are led to believe that great numbers of fellow citizens usually are hungry when they retire to rat-infested bedrooms and that the income level of many more is subpoverty even after such governmental supplements as food stamps.

And it is true, although perhaps not to the extent the Minnesota legislature was led to believe when it made provisions for 14,000 jobs, each of at least six months duration, for heads of families lacking employment or other income. Not in suburban Ramsey county, as was demonstrated August 13.

With 300 such jobs available and well publicized, county officials anticipated long lines of eager applicants at four centers set up at convenient locations. Fewer than 20 applied at one center, 48 were reported to have "drifted in" at another, and, all told, fewer than 200 made an appearance.

A dozen weeks had passed since Minnesota's emergency employment act was enacted but officials doubted that families which were destitute in May had already benefited from the business upturn. One who called the turnout "very disappointing" speculated that the expected applicants might be home watching Bugs Bunny.

The experience in other counties, particularly as winter approaches, may be quite different.

If not, credence will be given to the theory that there is more interest in handouts than in paychecks and there would be far fewer takers if the able-bodied were required to contribute a bit of labor for their keep. There also may be less empathy for the truly needy as they are identified, quite unfairly, with the indolent who are more likely to make political capital of their pretended plight. It is most unfortunate that the official interested in sorting the deserving from the imposters is immediately lambasted as an unfeeling modern Scrooge.

Perhaps that "poverty level" determination is a mistake; we all know prideful people with limited incomes who have gardens, can and freeze produce, shop carefully, and live quite happily. More happily probably than the unwed mother of several who exemplified pathetic ignorance and a responsibility void as she was being interviewed with them for a television spot.

"Look what I've done for mankind," she seemed to be saying as she lit a fresh cigarette from the butt of another.

What's The Price Of Mediocrity?

Following editorial is from the Philadelphia Inquirer:

Many Americans say that the Japanese and the West Germans and others are outcompeting the United States, taking American jobs and that something must be done about it. Something like quotas on foreign products and tariffs and "domestic content" legislation that would require automobiles sold in the United States to be made with mostly American parts.

Americans would do better to look at the domestic content of minds. A number of blue-ribbon commissions have done just that and agree that this nation faces what one of them, the national Commission on Excellence in Education, called a "rising tide of mediocrity."

Now yet another commission, this one appointed by the National Science Board, policymaking body of the National Science Foundation, has been heard from. But will it be listened to? The 20-member panel, headed by William T. Coleman, the former Philadelphia attorney who served as secretary of transportation under President Ford, spent 17 months studying the condition of precollege education in science, mathematics and technology. It arrived at a somber conclusion:

"The nation that dramatically and boldly led the world into the age of technology is failing to provide its own children with the intellectual tools needed for the 21st century."

Like its predecessors, the Coleman commission notes the "severe shortage" of qualified teachers of mathematics, science and technology. It points out that American children are much less likely to take three years of science and math in high school than are children in Japan and West Germany as well as in the Soviet Union, whose military competition the last six presidents repeatedly have warned against. It calls for higher achievement standards and longer school days and years — the average school year in the United States is 180 days, as against 204 in the Soviet Union, 210 in West Germany, and 220 in Japan.

Like its predecessor again, the commission insists that, as Coleman put it, there is a "crying need for national leadership and a national commitment" to overcome the failures of American education.

Early this year, the Reagan administration, which practically had eliminated federal support of science education, proposed a quick-fix program of $75 million to recruit and train science and math teachers. The Coleman panel calls for the commitment of $4.6 billion over the next six years for the same purpose and for improved curriculum standards and a network of "exemplary" science and math schools.

Is the price too high? What's the price of losing American jobs and business to foreign competitors? What, in a world where science and technology are racing ahead is the price of falling behind? What's the price of mediocrity?

Dead Fish Discussion

The following guest editorial in the Bemidji Pioneer was written by John S. Persell, a research biologist with the Minnesota Chippewa tribe:

The facts which surround the recent area fish kills have been glaringly absent from editorials and articles in the local papers. The fact that the worst of these kills has occurred in sewage polluted lakes may be coincidence to some observers. To those of us who research Minnesota water quality, from the Upper Mississippi chain of lakes to Mille Lacs Lake, these major fish kills are but the ramification of nutrient pollution.

Certainly the warm summer experienced this year in Minnesota has contributed to the severity of the fish kills. The warm water enhances algae production to the limits of nutrient availability. If the required algae nutrients are poured into a lake in the form of human sewage, from municipal or individual septic, the stage is set for fish kills. Both the Environmental Protection Agency of the United and the Pollution Control Agency of Minnesota have ample documentation of the chemical and biological processes involved.

The algae populations grow and die periodically during the summer, and it is the decomposition of these organisms in the water which may create an oxygen stress situation for fish. The bacteria which decompose the algae use oxygen, the same oxygen which the fish breathe. Zones may develop in lakes where there is very little or no oxygen, a condition which is intolerable to most game and rough fish alike. Indeed, some lakes on the Upper Mississippi chain have been polluted to the extent where they may contain zones without oxygen nearly year around.

The major fish species involved in the recent fish kills were rough fish. On Mille Lacs, yellow perch ran a close second to tullibees in dead fish counts, with walleyes and minnows also involved. On the upper Mississippi chain, tullibee, white fish and suckers are the major fishes involved, with yellow perch, walleye, and minnows also observed along the lakes.

While the immediate economics of rough fish kills may seem irrelevant to sport fishermen, those who utilize rough fish as a protein source have a different opinion. Rough fish and their offspring may be important in the food chain of a given lake.

Fish kills have likely occurred in Minnesota lakes since before the records were kept, given the diversity of water systems we have. The fact, is, though, the more nutrient pollution we allow into our clean water system, the quicker they will become overly plant productive and less fish production. Ongoing water research in Minnesota has vividly pointed out that our human sewage effluent standards, even for new treatment plants and for septic systems, are inadequate for the conservation of good clean fishing lakes. This year has served to give us dying proof.

Borrowed Nonsense:

At the end of a trip, the bus driver said to the lady with her six boisterous children, "Lady, I wonder why you don't leave half of your youngsters at home when you travel." She looked him straight in the eye when she said quietly, "I did."

A mother was attempting to teach her pre-school daughter the alphabet, naming each letter and having the child repeat it. All went well until they neared the end of the alphabet. "Y" the mother said. "Because," the child answered.

HARVEST FESTIVAL program at the Westaker Free Lutheran church in Newfolden will be presented by The Joyful Sound at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, October 9. Group consists of Dennis Aaker, Joy Hoff and Winston Johnson, all from Crookston. Program is open to the public with a meal to be served afterwards.

U.S. Senator Rudy Boschwitz reports to Minnesota

Even I admit that it's unusual for a U.S. Senator to stand in the 95 degree heat at our Minnesota state fair for an average of about nine hours each days as I did for 10 days. I know that I could get the same political mileage by being there a fourth as much.

This year, granted, it was different as I wanted to spend a lot of time making a point with "Rudy's Super Duper Milk House" (more on that later).

Even that aside, those 10 days are worth far more to me than just a bunch of "grip and grin" photographs. The state fair (and the 30-35 county fairs I attended this year; gives me more of a feel for what Minnesotans are thinking than at any other time of the year.

With all the traveling I do, it sounds funny to say that I don't get enough of a chance to stand around and chat with my constituents in a relaxed atmosphere. Senators are often trapped in the kinds of appointments we make. In our tightly scheduled days, everyone we see has a point to make, lobbying for one thing or another. It is amazingly infrequent that Senators get a real chance to take time to discuss issues with constituents. Letters are excellent, of course, but not a very good means to two-way communication. It's not as good as being there.

For that reason, I hold the many, many hearings around the state (I'll be having another round of them in early October).

Even those are usually to talk about a specific topic; and it tends to be groups of people instead of individuals.

The state fair, then, gives me the best possible opportunity to talk to people. It gives my constituents a chance to "get at" me about anything they please while giving me a chance to know what's happening in the state.

I always return to Washington with a better idea of what Minnesotans have on their minds. Last year, for example, people were pretty glum. Business was bad, and the economic news they were hearing was mostly negative — tales of higher unemployment, inflation and interest rates. The year before it was again, interest rates, with a special focus on the air traffic controllers. And two years before that, if I recall, it was more worry about a worsening.

I'm happy to report that this years was a positive experience for me. People for the most part seemed more optimistic about the economy and life in general — for the present and the future — than they ever had in my experience. But that is not to say they are feeling lazy in their prosperity. Far from it. None of these people I talked to had any desire to let the economy slip again. I am more convinced than ever that people have a sense of urgency about the need to cut federal spending; that federal deficits loom like a dark cloud over this recovery that threatens to blot it out if left unattended.

It was interesting also to get a feel of how Minnesotans react to a world controversy, such as the downing of the Korean jetliner. For days I watched and listened to a tone that could generally be typified as indignation, and the hope that the President would not be too lenient in his response.

I can't conclude this column without saying a little about my milk house. As you probably know, I put a great deal of the blame for our current dairy difficulties on lack of consumption of dairy goods. And I was happy that so many of you agreed. I was pleased, also, that so many people realized the agriculture problems, such as the current dairy problem, go a lot further than just the country. When the farmers is affected, all of Minnesota is affected. I hope my milk house made the point.

Coal Slurry Pipeline Bill Is Defeated

Seven national farm groups supported by Congressman Arlan Stangeland's efforts to defeat the coal slurry pipeline bill (H.R. 1010) which was defeated in the House by a vote of 182 to 235.

"This bill attacks farmers in three words: land, water and transportation," he said. "Without those three items, no farm family can keep going."

The bill would allow pipeline builders to condemn farmland and other property under the "right of eminent domain." Many farms would be eliminated or cut in half by the coal-slurry pipelines.

Once the pipelines were constructed, over 59 billion gallons of water would be taken from farmers to move the coal. "As we emerge from the worst drought since the Dust Bowl, we can see the folly of draining the Plains for a pipeline we don't need," Congressman Stangeland said.

If the pipelines were built, railroads would lose the valuable coal-carrying business. "This would force rail companies to raise farmers' rates and abandon lines to rural areas," the Barnesville area Congressman said.

"If there were a crisis in coal transportation, then those sacrifices might be worth it. But the railroads are getting the job done. There is no compelling need to grant such sweeping power and create so much hardship in the farm economy."

The ranking Republican on the House water resources subcommittee, Stangeland is also concerned about the storage of 59 billion gallons of toxic, contaminated "slurry water."

"There are so many things dead wrong with these pipelines that Congress should not have even considered this legislation," he said.

In collecting votes against the pipeline proposal, Congressman Stangeland worked with the American Agriculture movement, the American Farm Bureau federation, the National Farmers Union, the National Farmers Organization, the National Grange, the National Wheat Growers association, and the National Cattlemen's association.

Washington Report

Sen. Dave Durenberger

An apple a day may keep the doctor away but it won't stop the bill from going up.

Medical care costs continue to rise. Last year, one out of every 10 dollars spent in our country was spent on health care. And people are finally saying enough!

For years now the cost of health care has been rising faster than the rate of inflation. In fact, health care costs have been rising at twice the rate of other services.

One thing I've been preaching for a long time is consumer choice — a powerful weapon in any market. We have to exercise our options in buying health care plans for ourselves and our family.

For some of us, it means forcing a change in the way we think about the things we buy. Expensive and bigger isn't always better or even necessary.

We assume that less expensive health care plans and less expensive doctors and hospitals mean poor quality care. That's just not true. A recent study of Rochester's Mayo Clinic showed that its doctors keep their patients in the hospital 40 per cent fewer days than the national average. Their surgery rates were well below the national averages. And the Mayo Clinic is the best in the country, with the best in quality care.

So we have to change the way we think about selecting health care plans. We have to start making some choices. For example, young single people starting their first job should ask themselves — do I really need all that expensive coverage? Do I really need all of the options available in a particular health care benefits package? People should have the ability to choose health care coverage that best meets their needs.

Whether you're in business for yourself — farming, a shop owner, a small business owner — or whether you're employed by someone else, you've got decisions to make that will affect your pocketbook.

In order to have this choice, however, you have to be given options. Employers should be encouraged to offer their employees a variety of health care plans so that the worker can make the most cost-effective choice.

Bit by bit Congress is waking up to the need to change our health care system. In fact, on October 1 a major reform took place in the way hospitals are reimbursed by medicare. The change rewards efficient hospitals, while encouraging inefficient hospitals to become more cost-effective.

We won't change the system overnight. But we are recognizing that we can control health care costs while still maintaining the best quality health care in the world.

I was the guest speaker recently when the Future Farmers of America came to Washington to receive awards for their hard work in the "achievement in Volunteerism" program. The FFA members work in community development projects as part of the "Building Our American Communities" program.

Lots of young people were there, including Robin Shoen of Truman, Minnesota. Robin was Minnesota's statewide winner in the Minnesota FFA's volunteerism efforts and a chairperson of Truman's "Building Our American Communities" program.

After seeing these young people, there's little wonder that teenagers make up over half of American's volunteer force in meeting the needs of their communities.

Volunteering is great for young people. It gives them a chance to explore career options and learn a skill or profession. It gives them an opportunity to interact with adults, make important decisions and serve their community. When I meet young people like those involved in the Future Farmers of America that I saw this week, I feel great about the future of our country!

I had a great time at the recent Worthington King Turkey Days festival. Not only did Worthington beat our Cuero, Texas for the title of Turkey Capital of the World, but in the Great Gobbler Gallup, Paycheck (Worthington's prize turkey) beat Ruby Begonia (Cuero's turkey) in a race which set a new record for fastest run down Main Street!

Computer May Be Helpful For Tax Records

A personal computer may be helpful in keeping track of your financial affairs. Minnesota society of certified public accounts (CPAs) says that with the right software your computer can play "what if" with your finances. With the touch of a few keys, it can determine how to save taxes, decide on retirement plans, keep track of your assets, and get the best rate of return on various investment options.

But CPAs point out that while any computer can determine figures and some projections, no computer does your thinking for you. You may want to consult a CPA for specific financial advice you won't find in any program — like where to put excess money from your checking account, tax rulings to watch out for, and how to plan for your children's college education.

Also, computers are not practical for everybody because they are costly when the software is included, and the procedures to follow can be formidable. If all you want is to balance a checkbook or record your expenses, you're probably better off sticking to pencils, hand-held calculators and file folders bulging with receipts.

But, if you already own a personal computer or want one for word processing or just to become "computer literate," it could pay you to look into accounting, filing, and tax preparation software programs, which cost from $50 to more than $500 each.

Type of financial software to buy depends on what you want to do, CPAs say. Many programs use your personal checking account as the beginning step in financial planning. You record your financial transactions — the checks you write and deposits you make. CPAs suggest software with sufficient flexibility to handle all your transactions.

By hitting the right keys you can separate your checks according to tax-deductible expenses, CPAs say. Software programs even allow you to split checks when you make a single multi-purpose payment. For example, if you pay one credit card bill that includes charges to the dentists, auto repair shop, and a business lunch, the computer can divide the amounts according to different categories.

Of course, you can reconcile your checking account within seconds. And with a printer attachment your computer will write checks for you. You can search that computer if necessary, by check number, expense, payee, date, or any other category you choose.

Another financial program catalogs property and other assets for a personal financial statement establishing your net worth.

Other financial software for personal computers can help you prepare your taxes. These programs do the arithmetic for you, assemble totals of income and expenses, and some even let you call up the line-by-line questions from IRS tax forms. If tax laws change, however, you'll need a revised program. And smart as your computer is, it cannot advise on certain strategies you would otherwise get from a human tax advisor. Costs of these tax programs are deductible, CPAs say.

One of the most popular computer programs is an electronic spreadsheet that can be set up to record all financial transactions of a small business. It allows simultaneous financial calculations which make budgeting, record keeping, and tax computations easier.

If you are self employed and use your personal computer at work, you may be able to deduct the computer's cost as a business expense, CPAs say. Even if you only use the computer part-time for your work, you can prorate part of the computer's cost for a deduction.

You can also use your home computer to gain access to stock market quotes. Using a "modem" and telephone lines, you can get stock price quotes and analyses without leaving your home. Besides the cost for the telephone lines, you have to pay an "access charge" to punch into the stock report service.

Maps Available For Bicycle Touring Of MN

Minnesota office of tourism believes there's no better way to see the state this fall than from the seat of a bicycle. And to support this belief, the state is offering 54 maps for cyclists interested in traveling Minnesota's roadways and bikeways.

According to the department of transportation, who designed the maps, the state has over 131,000 miles of roadways, nearly all of which permit cycling. State also has nearly 500 miles of off-road bikeways through some of the most scenic state parks and wilderness areas anywhere in North America.

Each of the 54 bikeways maps is complete with detailed road information, including pavement conditions and clearly marked hazards. Maps also include accurate locations of public parks and scenic attractions.

Since the state of Minnesota classifies a bicycle as a legal road vehicle, there are few regulations — other than state vehicle laws — to obey. Transportation department does make certain recommendations in its maps for safer biking.

Department suggests avoiding travel during poor weather conditions and low motorist visibility. Weekdays are also preferred to weekends for cyclists because fewer vehicles are traveling the scenic roadways.

All of the 54 bicycle maps are available by order form. Cyclists may purchase up to 19 maps for $1.50 each plus $1 postage and handling. Twenty or more maps may be purchased for $1.20 each plus $1 postage and handling. To receive an order form, write the Minnesota travel information center, 240 Bremer Building, 419 N. Robert St., St. Paul, MN 55101, or phone 1-800-652-9747.

Pest Managing Conference Set For December

Presence of molds, fungus and pests effect the quality of stored grain. Restricted-use chemicals used to treat stored grain are toxic and dangerous and only licensed applicators may apply them.

To fulfill licensing requirements, elevator personnel, farmers and pest control applicators can attend the 1983 stored grain pest management conference, December 7 and 8, at the University of Minnesota Earle Brown center in St. Paul.

First day of the conference, designed for people new to grain pest management, provides basic information about pest identification and integrated pest management principles.

Second day of the conference focuses on state and federal regulations and highlights new directions in stored grain pest management.

Minnesota law requires that all restricted-use pesticides by applied by or under the supervision of licensed certified applicators. Persons who are newly licensed or have never attended a pest management conference must attend both days to be able to take state examinations required for licensing and certification.

Currently licensed applicators may attend the conference on December 8 to meet the 1984 license renewal training requirements.

For registration information, contact Gene Anderson, Office of Special Programs, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, MN 55108, (612) 373-0725.

NORTHWEST SENIOR FEDERATION officers were elected at the fourth annual convention Thursday at the American Legion club rooms in Thief River Falls. Seated are Victor Johnson, Lake Bronson, executive vice president; Ragna Anderson, Middle River, secretary; and Olga Engevik, Thief River Falls, treasurer. Standing are Al Clark, Thief River Falls, president and Loren Heckmann, insurance administrator for the Minnesota senior federation, who was guest speaker for the morning federation session. Previous officers included Johnson as president, Clark as executive vice president, David Brown of Goodridge as vice president, Orphy Krull of Williams as secretary and Viola Henning of Thief River Falls as treasurer. Clark also serves as second vice president of the state federation.

Safety Rules Now Apply To Most Trucks

Most trucks now are required to comply with motor carrier safety rules by action of the state legislature, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) announced.

Concerns for the safety of the public as well as for the motor carrier prompted the application of safety rules to trucks over 10,000 pounds whether the carrier is "for hire," exempt or private, said Douglas Differt, assistant commissioner, program management division.

Public expects safety regulations to be followed by all trucks operating on our roads whether they are "for hire" or a private carrier.

Most previously exempt carriers operating vehicles over 10,000 pounds now must comply with rules for safety for operation and equipment. These rules apply to vehicle operation, equipment safety, notification of accidents, inspection, repair and maintenance of trucks by the owners and operators, he explained.

Only new equipment required is that exempt carriers must carry a fire extinguisher and reflective triangles in the vehicle.

Private carriers are persons who transport property or passengers to further their business, but whose primary business is not transportation. Motor carrier safety regulations also apply to private carriers operating vehicles over 10,000 pounds. They must comply with rules for driver qualifications, maximum hours of service of drivers and safety of operations and equipment, he said. This includes service trucks carrying tools or equipment.

These changes, said Differt, are required by the Federal surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 so Minnesota qualifies for grants for vehicle safety enforcement.

Other changes in the law are: 1) Expansion of safety regulations to cover all exempt vehicles licensed for more than 10,000 pounds except school buses, commuter vans, emergency vehicles, implements of husbandry and farm trucks operated within 150 miles of the owner's farm. 2) Requirement that hazardous materials be transported according to federal regulations. 3) Amendment of the definition of "for hire" to distinguish between activities that constitute "for-hire" transportation and private carriage. 4) Provision for procedures for reinstating carriers whose authority has been suspended or cancelled for failing to pay fees, renew permits or file insurance. 5) Increase penalties for transporting "for hire" without authority, for rate violations and for transporting hazardous materials in violation of the law.

Additional information may be obtained from Gordon Boldt, director, Office of Motor Carrier Safety and Compliance, 404 Transportation Building, John Ireland Boulevard, St. Paul, MN 55155; phone (612) 296-0331.

Dr. Easton Reports . . .

Three-Way Merger Of Colleges Works

Merging of Northland, Fergus Falls and Brainerd community colleges into the Clearwater community college region appears to have created a situation which is working well, according to Dr. Alex Easton, president of the three-campus region. Dr. Easton reported Monday evening to the Northland community college advisory board meeting at the college.

Ability of Northland to retain both its registrar and finance officer positions has been a positive feature of the merger, the former Northland president said. He noted that the joining of the three campuses into one region will save a minimum of $100,000 this year in administrative expense and that those funds will be available to the colleges for use in programs.

Enrollment at all three campuses is up this fall, he said. Fergus Falls will have an FTE from 417 to 438 and Brainerd will show a growth of about 15 full time equivalent students. He said this is a trend in the community colleges with very few schools in the system having a drop in enrollment.

Dr. Easton also said that he has received several appointments to statewide committees and commissions, primarily recognizing his representation of the three campuses covering northwestern Minnesota.

Regarding legislative effort to effect a merger of community colleges with area vocational-technical institutes, Dr. Easton said he sensed a definite softening of a legislative hard line on that question. He said there will be aggressive pursuit of cooperative ventures on a local basis, but he doesn't foresee a concerted effort by the legislature to bring about an actual merger.

Ken Wiebolt, provost at Northland, commented that the local college budget is in good shape because of the enrollment gains. "On August 1 we were 25 students behind last year's enrollment and now we have ended up 21 ahead of a year ago," he said. "It points out the difficulty which colleges face in budgeting because enrollment is such an unknown until it actually takes place."

Wiebolt also said that the college is purchasing and setting up its own computer system.

Vice provost Madalyn Novellino called attention to the gain of 31 full-time equivalent students in Northland's off-campus programs — an increase which more than accounts for the total FTE increase for the college. The FTE is 17.27 at the Grand Forks air force base, 7.60 at Fosston, eight at Middle River, 13 at Roseau and 11.20 at Warroad. English, accounting, psychology and computer programming are offered at Roseau with computer courses being taught at Warroad and Fosston.

Novellino also pointed out that Northland has made it clear that non-traditional students are welcomed and accepted on campus. The persons considered non-traditional are basically those older than the normal post high school college student. An effort is being made to create a non-traditional student center where such students may feel more comfortable and have an opportunity to exchange views with others in similar circumstances.

Kays Is Guest Actor In NCC's Autumn Musical

Chris Kays

Chris Kays will perform in the capacity of guest artist and production consultant in the Northland community college fall theatre production of the musical "Godspell" to be presented in the college theatre two consecutive weekends, October 28, 29 and 30 and November 4, 5 and 6.

Kays, a 1978 graduate of Lincoln high school, Thief River Falls, is an alumnus of Northland community college where he participated in the threatre program under the direction of Roger Vaughan, and is a 1983 graduate of Moorhead state university, with a bachelor of arts degree in theatre with an acting concentration, under the direction of Dr. Delmar Hansen.

During his college career, Kays was involved in over 40 productions, including lead roles in 15 of them and was a member of the Moorhead state university Straw Hat Players for three summer seasons. He was also a member of the board of governors for the M.S.U. theatre department as a senior.

His theatre training includes training in stage dialects, directing, children's theatre, technical theatre, stage design and dance training in classical ballet, tap dance and ballroom dance. In addition to playing the lead role of the Christ figure in "Godspell", Kays is assisting Vaughan in staging the production and is working with Wendy Easton on choreographing the show. He also designed the set for the production.

Kays' first acting role was as Amahl in the opra "Amahl and the Night Visitors" with the Lincoln high school concert choir in 1971 when he was 11 years old. Roles in Lincoln high school musicals, under the direction of David Morken, were in "The Boy Friend" (which featured his dancing ability), "Bye, Bye Birdie" and "Carnival".

While at Northland he appeared in "The Misanthrope", "Damn Yankees" (where he played Mr. Applegate, the devil), and in "A Company of Wayward Saints", for which he received the best actor [illegible] community college fine arts festival.

Since leaving Thief River Falls, Chris has played title roles or leads in "Where's Charlie?", "The Pied Piper", "Something's Afoot", "The Boys from Syracuse", "Da", "No, No, Nanette", "A Midsummer Night's Dream", "The Fitzgeralds", "Annie Get Your Gun", "Move Over Mrs. Markham", "Pirates of Penzance" and "Snoopy".

He also appeared in "Beauty and the Beast", "Pinochio", "Strider", "Whose Life Is It, Anyway", "The Corn Is Green", "Tin Types", "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat", "The Elephant Man" and "Red Hot and Cole".

Kays' future plans include pursuing a career in professional theatre following a move to New York City.

Dick Sjoberg Receives Cable Industry Award

Richard J. Sjoberg, president of Sjoberg's Cablevision in Thief River falls, was honored by the cable television industry at the annual convention of the Minnesota Cable Communications association (M.C.C.A.), as outstanding service award recipient for 1983.

The award is presented annually to a Minnesota cable manager who has distinguished himself and advanced the goals of the association, according to association officials. Sjoberg was specifically cited for his long-standing [illegible] association's board and his representation on behalf of the industry in legislative and regulatory affairs.

Public Hearing On Highway 59 Set October 17

A public hearing to discuss proposed improvements to highway 59 between Atlantic avenue and First street in Thief River Falls will be held in the Thief River Falls city auditorium on Monday, October 17, at 7:30 p.m.

This will be a formal hearing, sponsored by the city of Thief River Falls, at which the Minnesota department of transportation will receive oral and written testimony from concerned citizens.

According to Steve Baker, preliminary design engineer for the department, several meetings have been held with the city council, city planning commission and the safety committee as well as a public meeting on August 11 to develop a preliminary layout for the project.

Many divergent opinions had to be considered in developing the preliminary layout. The public hearing will provide an additional opportunity for citizens.

The preliminary layout as well as the project path report is available for inspection at the Mn-DOT office located at Zeh and State street in Thief River Falls.

Briefly, the project involves complete reconstruction of this roadway segment with essentially the same design. Modifications will be made to bring the design up to modern standards considering such items as safety, capacity and roadway strength. Some intersections will require modification for safety reasons and the bridge deck over the Red Lake river will be replaced and widened.

In addition, the storm sewer under the roadway will be replaced during construction under a cooperative agreement between Mn-DOT and the city of Thief River Falls.

Senate Subcommittee Hears Of Area Farmers' Plight Friday

Members of the Minnesota senate agriculture subcommittee of the agriculture and natural resources committee saw and heard the plight of area farmers Friday during a visit to Pennington and Red Lake counties. The nine senators were given a tour of the area in the afternoon prior to a hearing conducted that evening in the Northland community college theatre.

Successive years of wet weather have made it impossible for some farmers to harvest a crop and severely reduced yields for others. In some cases crops have been planted and wet field conditions precluded harvest, and in others saturated fields made spring planting impossible. The unique situation has resulted in a number of farmers being in dire financial straits with conventional credit sources exhausted.

Sen. Joe Bertram of Paynesville chaired the hearing and called on farmers and agri-business people who had registered to testify. Other members of the committee in attendance were Sen. Gene Merriam; Coon Rapids; Sen. Doran Isackson, Storden; Sen. Collin Peterson, Detroit Lakes; Sen. LeRoy Stumpf, Plummer; Sen. Roger Moe, Ada; Sen. Darrel Wegscheid, Apple Valley; Sen. John Bernhagen, Hutchinson; and Sen. Chuck Davis, Princeton. Also on the panel for the hearing was Rep. Jim Tunheim, Kennedy.

First to testify was Bob Miller, manager of the St. Hilaire Cooperative Elevator association, who noted the high amount of accounts receivable his elevator holds. Unless the receivables are reduced by the end of the year, he said, the elevator's line of credit will be severely restricted. "We will be able to get enough money to operate," he said, "but it will be tough going."

Miller pointed out that disaster loans received by farmers in previous years had been expended for the following year's crop rather than to pay past debts. When those next crops were also failures, creditors were left with large unpaid accounts. The elevator manager estimated that 50 per cent of the farmers in the community "can't make it now" and the need for help is critical.

SENATOR JOE BERTRAM of Paynesville, who chaired the senate agricultural sub-committee hearing conducted Friday evening in Thief River Falls, listened attentively to testimony being presented. A number of area farmers and those involved in agri-business testified regarding the disaster situation caused by several years of wet weather and the need for financial assistance to permit farmers to continue operating.

SENATOR STUMPF

SENATORS LeRoy Stumpf (right) of Plummer and Collin Peterson of Detroit Lakes were among those attending the subcommittee hearing Friday evening at Northland community college in Thief River Falls. Subject of the hearing was the need for agricultural assitance programs to farmers who have been hit by several years of wet weather and unable to harvest their crops.

Mayor Bob Carlson noted that the weather has been devastating for farmers in some areas over the past four years and that need for assistance is beyond what help can be given by the state of Minnesota. He pleaded with the senators to help get the message to the federal government in Washington that assistance is needed immediately.

Greg Hallstrom, who farms southwest of St. Hilaire, said he believes the priorities in Washington are out of order. "There are subsidies for the airlines and plenty of money for defense but nobody wants to help the farmer," he said. "If farming would improve all the rest of the economy would improve along with it." He added he didn't expect any help until there is a Democrat president elected.

Maryann Gagner suggested that all government had to do to find out where troubled farmers are is to check the income tax forms. "The tax

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Wagner And Johnson Vows Exchanged At Zion

Lorae Margaret Wagner and Jeffrey Lyle Johnson, both of Thief River Falls, exchanged marriage vows recently at a four o'clock wedding at Zion Lutheran church in this city.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wagner and Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Johnson, Thief River Falls.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Rev. Richard Larson. Christie LaCoursiere, a friend of the bride, was the organist, playing "Ice Castles" and the traditional wedding march for the processional. Susie Amundson, a cousin of the groom, and Jim Hayes, a friend, sang "Wedding Song," "Love Lifted Us Up Where We Belong," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Forming the setting for the bridal party were 14-taper candelabra with greenery and white ribbons. On the altar was a basket of lavender flowers.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a gown of white dacron organza styled with a flared skirt edged with a ruffled lace flounce which flowed into a chapel-length train. The fitted bodice featured a Chantilly lace yoke accented by lace ruffle. Matching lace accented her leg-of-mutton sleeves and edged her veil of bridal illusion held by a profile headpiece, trimmed with pearls. She carried a cascade of pale lavender roses, lavender and white carnations and babies' breath accented with stephanotis in white and shades of lavender.

Attending the bride were Lisa Wagner, a cousin, as maid of honor, Carol Sorvig and Melanie Lund, friends of the bride; Teresa Johnson, sister of the groom, and Denise Jesperson, a cousin of the bride. All wore chalk mauve gowns with pleated skirts attached to double spaghetti strapped empire bodices. Complementing the gowns were jackets with ruffled collars and ruffled cap sleeves. In their hair, they wore a cluster of babies' breath centered with a lavender rose. They carried round bouquets of lavender tipped roses, lavender and white carnations, stephanotis, babie's breath and corresponding ribbon streamers.

The flower girl was Lanay Samuelson, Duluth, cousin of the groom. She wore a lavender floor-length gown, ruffled at the neckline and sleeves. A deep lavender ribbon encircled her waistline. Her headpiece was a halo of small lavender flowers and babies' breath, made by her mother, who also made her gown. She carried a white wicker basket filled with flowers, similar to those carried by the bridesmaids.

The rings were carried by Corey Peterson, a cousin of the bride. Like the groomsmen and ushers, he wore a silver tuxedo, a white ruffled shirt tipped in lavender, and a lavender rose boutonniere.

The groom wore an all-white tuxedo with a white pleated shirt and white bow tie. His attendants were Tim Johnson, his brother as best man, Dana Mongoven, Bryan Rupprecht, Craig Harbott, friends of the groom, and Kent Wagner, a brother of the bride. The ushers were Kurt Wagner, brother of the bride; Marlin and Scott Johnson, brothers of the groom, and Mark Amundson, a cousin of the groom.

The mother of the bride was attired in a lavender floor-length gown; and the groom's mother wore a light blue, long-sleeved street-length dress. Their corsages were of lavender roses and carnations with sprigs of babies' breath. Their flowers, like the flowers at the wedding, were made by Linda Helgeland.

Honor guests were Augot Wagner, Middle River, Vera Bing and Hartley Peterson, grandparents of the bride; Olga Johnson, Holt, and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hegtvedt, grandparents of the groom; Dianne Pollock, Milwaukee, Wis., Don Peterson, Waverly, Iowa, and Ken and Sharon Wagner, godparents of the bride; Jan Kelly, Crookston, godmother of the groom; and Nancy Larson, the bride's personal attendant.

A reception for 200 guests followed in the church parlors. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Arland Brandon and Mr. and Mrs. Bryon Sagmoen. Jill Johnson, a sister of the groom presided at the guest book as Rodney and Sandy Peterson ladled the punch.

Gift bearers were Andy Peterson, Bobby Houle and Christopher Klein.

The pillared, three-tiered wedding cake, baked and decorated by the bride's mother, was accented with light lavender roses and white drop flowers. At the base was a flowing water fountain with lavender water. Surrounded by a wreath of lavender roses with lavender and white stephanotis and babies' breath. Topping the cake was a double bell ornament backed by a filigreed heart and lavender roses. Dianne Pollock, aunt of the bride, and Ruby Moen, aunt of the groom, cut and served the cake. Sharon Wagner and Angie Swenson, also aunt of the bride and groom, poured the coffee.

Waitresses were Lana Wagner, Lori Lindemann, Jeneen Klein, Becky Jones and Veronica Johnson. The bride's aunts: Bonnie Wagner and Genevieve Ring pinned the flowers and Sharon Wagner arranged the gifts.

The couple is at home in Thief River Falls. The bride is a 1981 graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed by the Farmers Co-op Grain and Seed. The groom, a 1979 graduate of Lincoln high school, is employed by Minnesota State Grain Inspection. Photo, Mike Anderson

Finding True Family Takes Special Effort

Are you an adopted person looking for information about your genetic parents: Are you a genetic parent seeking information about a child put up for adoption? If so there are steps you should follow, according to the Minnesota attorney general's office.

First, and in either case, you must request assistance from the agency (whether public or private) that handled the adoption.

If you are an adopted person, 19 years or older, your request for contact will be passed on to your genetic parents. If you are not yet 19, your adoptive parents may make the request for you. Likewise, if you are a genetic parent wishing to contact your adult child whom you had put up for adoption, you would ask the adoption agency to make that contact.

The process is fairly straightforward. Say you are an adopted adult and you wish to get in touch with your genetic parents. You ask the agency to help you. The agency would forward your request to them and would find out whether they wanted to communicate with you or otherwise share information with you. If they didn't, the agency would honor that wish.

If some communication or contact is desired, the adoption agency will attempt to help set that up. Similarly, the agency will contact adult persons or adoptive parents at a genetic parent's request and will attempt to facilitate further communication if desired by all the parties.

Communication can be open or confidential. If "confidential communication" is desired, letters with no last names or return addresses may be exchanged through the agency. Pictures and gifts may also be exchanged. The agency may be asked to set up a face-to-face meeting in which only first names are exchanged. Open communication includes the exchange of current names and addresses and periodic or ongoing telephone calls or visits. Before open communication is arranged, the participants must sign permission statements that will be on file with the adoption agency.

Post-adoption services may also be available to adult siblings if precautions are taken to protect the confidentiality rights of the genetic parents. If a person wishes to find a brother or sister who has been adopted, certain requirements must be met. If any sibling has been in contact with a genetic parent, the written consent of the genetic parent must be obtained before an agency can arrange for sibling contact.

Often adopted adults simply wish to identify their genetic parents. This may be done by requesting a copy of one's original birth certificate from the Minnesota Department of Health. The adopted person must be at least 21 years old. When the Department of Health receives such a request, it notifies the Department of Public Welfare. The Department of Public Welfare, through alocal agency, will then conduct a search for the genetic parents to obtain permission for release of the certificate. The agency may charge a small fee for the search, which may take up to six months. If the parents are not found during this time, or if it is discovered they are dead, the adopted person may petition the court for release of the certificate.

The process of requesting an original birth certificate will be easier for children adopted after August 1, 1977. When such children become adults, their original birth certificates will be released to them upon request, unless either parent has signed an affidavit prohibiting its release.

Things will also be simpler for children adopted after August 1 of this year. For adoptive placements from this date on, genetic parents will be required to sign an affidavit stating that unless they object, their names and last known addresses, birth dates and birth places will be released to their adult child upon request. The affidavit of objection filed by the genetic parent is valid until the genetic parent decides to withdraw the objection, or until the parent dies.

If you are interested in finding out about your genetic family, you should send a written request to the Department of Public Welfare, Adoption Unit, or your adoption placement agency, if known. The requests should include the adopted person's name, birthdate, birthplace, and the name of the person's parents, either adoptive or original. The Department of Public Welfare address is: Adoption Unit or Guardian Consultant, Minnesota Department of Public Welfare, Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, (612) 296-3740. Or contact the Attorney General's Office, 515 Transportation Blvd., John Ireland Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55155, (612) 296-6404.

Bemidji Group Plans Walk To Air Force Base

A Bemidji group has announced plans for a "Freeze Walk" from Bemidji to the Grand Forks air force base. Bemidji "Friends for a Non-Violent World" will be leaving Bemidji at 10 a.m. October 16 after a send-off rally at the fairgrounds.

Spokesman Greg Klave said the walk symbolizes the group's "opposition of being made victims in preparations for nuclear war. The destination, Grand Forks air force base, is seen by the group as both a target and perpetrator of nuclear violence."

Rallies will be held at noon Monday, October 17, in Bagley; noon on Tuesday, October 18 in Fosston; and Thursday evening, October 20 in Crookston. "The walkers will be joining members of the Red River Valley Peace Workers in Grand Forks Saturday for peace education activities and a vigil at a nuclear missile silo." Klave said.

The activities are being held in conjunction with non-violent actions world-wide to protest the deployment of Cruise and Pershing II missiles in Europe. On Sunday, October 23, Bemidji Friends for a Non-Violent World will walk to the air force base.

Harvest Of Row Crops Continues At Rapid Rate

Row crop harvest last week proceeded rapidly in western portions of the state, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Good drying weather predominated early in the week, but moderate to heavy rains interrupted field activity from Thursday onward in many localities.

Heavy rains kept farmers off the fields in the east central through central districts, while the excess topsoil moisture conditions in the southeast were greatly improved by a dry week. Wet conditions were slow to improve in the northwest district; again this year, some small grains remain unharvested in the soggy Pennington-Red Lake-East Polk area.

For the state, an average of five days were suitable for fieldwork during the week. Topsoil moisture as of September 30 was rated six per cent short, 75 per cent adequate, and 19 per cent surplus.

Hay producers took advantage of good weather by putting up their last crop hay. With good late growth in hayfields in southern areas, some have been able to get four crops this year.

Maturity of corn and soybeans advanced quickly during the week, pushed by more above-average temperatures and aided by last week's hard frost. Field corn maturity is nearly two weeks ahead of the five-year average for this date, while soybean maturity is about a week ahead. Moisture levels of harvested corn and beans were falling below five-year averages. Soybeans which were not mature at the time of the frost are drying down, but relatively slowly compared with the earlier beans.

Field corn is 95 per cent mature, compared with 71 per cent last year and 79 per cent for the five-year average. Corn for grain harvested has reached 16 per cent versus one per cent a year ago and four per cent for the five-year average. Moisture content of corn grain averages 27 per cent compared with the normal of 30 per cent. Cutting of field corn silage is 79 per cent complete versus 44 per cent last year and 62 per cent for the five-year average.

Soybeans are 99 per cent shedding leaves versus the five-year average of 97 per cent. Soybean maturity at 87 per cent compares with last year's 57 per cent and the five-year average of 74 per cent. An estimated 20 per cent of soybean acreage has been harvested versus eight per cent a year ago and 18 per cent for the five-year average. Moisture content of combined beans is 13 per cent compared with 14 per cent for the five-year average.

Sunflowers are 13 per cent combined compared with four per cent a year ago and 19 per cent for the five-year average. Sugarbeets are 17 per cent harvested versus the five-year average of 10 per cent. Potatoes are 61 per cent harvested, behind last year's figure and the five-year average, both at 65 per cent. Dry edible beans are 60 per cent harvested compared with 48 per cent a year ago. Flax is 77 per cent harvested versus 74 per cent for the five-year average.

Winter wheat for 1984 harvest is 96 per cent seeded and winter rye is 93 per cent seeded; five-year average figures are 91 per cent and 90 per cent respectively. Plowing or other intended tillage of this year's hay and small grain stubble is 74 per cent complete versus 69 per cent for the five-year average.

Balladeer To Perform At BSU Homecoming

Minnesota's resident balladeer, Michael Johnson, will perform at an 8 p.m. concert in memorial hall October 16 to conclude the homecoming festivities at Bemidji state university (BSU).

Johnson's recorded ballads include "Bluer Than Blue" which became his first gold record and moved his name from the list of talented hopefuls to promising artist.

That came in 1978, and he since followed with the single hits "Like Being in Love" "This Night Won't Last Forever." His credits also include five albums.

Advance tickets for the concert, which is presented by the Hobson union programming board, are $3 for students with a valid BSU activity card and $4 for the general public. All tickets will be $5 at the door.

Advance sales tickets can be purchased at the information desk of the BSU student union, at the Melody shop and at Stereo I.

More information is available by contacting the Hobson union programming board, Bemidji state university, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218-755-3760).

Quin County Health Board Slates Meet

Quin county board of health will meet at 7:30 p.m., October 17, in the Quin county community health services offices in Newfolden.

Included on the agenda are adoption of 1984 budgets and review of maternal and child health special project grant applications.

EVEN THE ACTORS (actresses?) couldn't keep a straight face during the ninth grade skit for homecoming activities at Lincoln high school on Friday afternoon. Having a little fun at the expense of the Bemidji Lumberjacks, the skit drew bowls of laughter with some cross-dressing and a purported view of homecoming at the rival school. Whether the skit was responsible is debatable, but something certainly inspired the Prowlers as they earned a 14-6 victory over the Lumberjacks on the football field later that evening.

Sparby Likes Inc.'s Survey On Business

Minnesota ranked fifth in the nation for having a good small business climate, reports Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls. According to a national magazine devoted to small business, Minnesota's ranking is up from 19th in a similar survey last year.

In its October issue, publishers of "Inc." rank the 50 states in five categories — capital, labor, taxes, business activity and state support. Minnesota's best ranking in these categories was in the availability of capital; Minnesota ranked fifth.

"This report disputes what certain groups of people have been purporting about the state government's response to the needs of small businesses," said Representative Sparby. "Minnesota is sympathetic to those needs and has supplied the financial resources to support those endeavors," he stated.

The report said the top 10 states in attractiveness to small business are: Texas, California, Colorado, New York, Minnesota; Florida, Massachusetts, New Mexico, Connecticut and New Jersey.

"Inc." states, "Minnesota's tax and wage rates are well above the national medians. But aggressive bank lending and investments by local SBICs (small business investment companies) make it one of the top states for capital resources. Such assets have boosted Minnesota to the number five spot overall."

"Most businesses in Minnesota are small businesses that have produced 80 per cent of the new jobs in recent years," Sparby pointed out. "Because of their size, entrepreneurs have unique problems finding start-up capital. The magazine's report shows Minnesota is successful in providing those resources. We can also be proud that Minnesota provides management advice and planning help for our small companies," he added.

The magazine survey ranked Iowa 34th this year, North Dakota 19th, South Dakota 43rd and Wisconsin 49th.

The "Inc." survey showed 24 states with improved rankings this year while 21 states moved down. Delaware showed the biggest gain, from 49th to 16th, while Arizona dropped from seventh to 38th. The magazine also reported that weaknesses in overall state rankings are often tied to poor performance in the capital resources category.

"Even though it's looking up for small business in Minnesota, we will continue to work hard to improve the business climate in every possible way," Sparby said.

Set-Aside Rules Changed Due To Wet Conditions

County committee of the agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS) reports that wet conditions of area fields have created a problem in dealing with set-aside acreage.

Noting that rain which started during late August prevented farmers from having set-aside acres seeded down to a cover crop by September 1, as required by the rules, the committee states that no one will be declared out of compliance and out of the program because of conditions out of their control, adding that the last 10 inches of rain have been beyond the control of any of us.

ASCS suggests that set-aside acreage which has not been seeded down at this time should simply be left alone. Volunteer cover which establishes itself will meet minimum requirements for erosion control. If fields do dry up later this fall, ASCS suggests that going over the set-aside acres one more time with the cultivator would be acceptable, provided that it was cultivated at right angles to prevailing winds, with at least 30 per cent trash cover remaining on top of the ground. They caution that going into winter months with no cover is unacceptable, so set-aside acres should not be turned into clean, black fallow.

Anyone desiring further information should contact the county office of the ASCS by calling 681-1612.

B. Erickson Completes CPA Requirements

Brenda (Ohlhauser) Erickson, Thief River Falls, a 1983 Bemidji state university (BSU) graduate with a degree in accounting, was one of 11 candidates who passed the entire four-part certified public accountant examination.

Nineteen candidates from Bemidji state university took part in the examination. Scores released in August revealed that 11 students passed with an additional six students passing two or three parts to condition to exam. Conditioning means an individual does not have to repeat sections already successfully completed.

Pass and condition rate of BSU candidates tested eighty-nine per cent while the BSU pass rate was fifty-eight percent. Results from the most recent certified public accountant examination are significant when compared to the national pass rate of 10 to 15 per cent.

Senate Group Hears Plight Of Area Farms

forms will tall you where the losses are," she said.

Everett Schumacher of West Polk county noted that it is not only Red Lake and Pennington county which have suffered losses. He said he still has 480 acres of grain standing in fields too wet to harvest: "Farmers in these areas are really trying but they have been hit by something entirely beyond their control," he pointed out to the committee.

"We have to have hope," he continued. "We have to believe that next year will be better. We can't just write off northwestern Minnesota. Farmers who can't plow their fields in the fall are in trouble for the next year because spring plowing in this area just doesn't work. Agriculture is the only industry to build on here and it needs help."

Gladys Hallstrom of rural Red Lake Falls also expressed the opinion to the committee that something must be done. "Our farm has been in the family for 95 years," she said, "and the thought that we might lose it because of something that is not our fault really hurts."

Harold Kalsnes, chairman of the Pennington county ASCS committee, said there is a need for funds to permit farmers to consolidate their bills and make payment over an extended period of time. He said reinstatement of the payment in kind (PIK) program would help and that retroactive federal crop insurance would also be of assistance. "Chapter 11 bankruptcy is a bad way to go," he said, "but there are a lot of farmers in this area who are at that point."

Farmer Larry Schafer of Red Lake Falls told the committee flatly that "we can't live in fantasy no more. The farmer needs some help. The feds have dough for everyone else; they must be able to find some dough for rural America."

Andy Bates of Goodridge said assistance may come too late for him. He sold his machinery at auction about three weeks ago, he said, and took in $35,000 on $100,000 worth of equipment. His area received 14 inches of rain in a one-week period, he noted, and 80 acres of crop were under water for a month.

Under questioning from the commitee chairman, Bates said he had bought the land for $75 to $200 per acre and that it was now valued at $600. He said it was appraised two years ago for $950 and that he had been offered $1,000 an acre prior to that.

Don Schirrick of rural Red Lake Falls pointed out that wet fields mean more stress on machinery, more fuel use and greater dependency on costly chemicals. Every fall since 1979 has been the same, he said. "We need the federal government to get the message that there is a disaster here."

Alvin Jensen of Oklee said he has two crops of mink which have not been sold, primarily because the value of the U.S. dollar is too high. The majority of the few mink he has sold have gone to Italian, German and Frency buyers.

Joe Mutnansky of Goodridge said it appeared likely he would have to sell out his 400-acre farm that he purchased in 1978. He felt that weather had thwarted the best efforts of good farmers in his area.

"What are you going to do?" the committee chairman asked Mutnansky.

"That's what I'd like to know," he replied, then added almost apologetically, "It's pretty hard to farm without any money."

Michael Seeger said he had been farming for about 10 years and the last several years of disaster have resulted in his losing most of the equity he was able to establish during the first five years. He suggested a loan program where farmers would consolidate debts and stretch out payments at a low rate of interest.

Vern Wavra testified as "party owner of the only farm implement business left in Red Lake county". He said that farmers have been unable to meet obligations in equipment purchases and that many have been trying to repair and farm with machinery which is worn out and should be replaced.

Russ Bjorhus, director of the Farmers Home administration (FmHA) in Minnesota, said that disaster aid will be coming for Red Lake and Pennington counties. If one ore more farmers in a county has a 30 per cent loss, he said, disaster aid can be obtained for that county. Aid allowable is for 80 per cent of the loss up to $500,000, he said.

Farmers must still show an ability to repay the loans, Bjorhus stated, and county directors are not allowed to go beyond the law in making loans. Many times the seemingly long delay in loan processing is the result of office personnel trying to work out a program to make the farmer eligible by establishing a likelihood of cash flow.

"We always expect next year to be normal," the director said. "If we could use a normal yield figure in determining crop prospects it would help. We can make a three-year deferral on loans, after which the amount due is divided into four equal annual payments. I recognize that some of you have used up your equity, but law requires us to show repayment ability."

Bjorhus said that the Pennington and Red Lake office had loaned $26.5 million in 1981, about $20 million in 1982 and approximately the same amount this year. "That's a lot of money in this area," Bjorhus said. "But I don't forsee any shortage of money to loan to those farmers who can qualify."

Bjorhus said FmHA did not foreclose on a single farmer in 1983 and only four in 1982. There was 187 FmHA borrowers who went out of farming among some 16,000 who were granted FmHA loans.

"When you consider that we are the lender of last resort," the director said, "and that five to eight per cent of farmers go out of business in the first five years, our record looks pretty good. Farmers don't have to worry that we're going to pull the plug if they show a willingness to cooperate."

Darrell Anderson, representing Minnesota commissioner of agriculture Jim Nichols, offered the services of that department.

Willard Brunelle, whose group had assisted in arranging for the hearing here, took Bjorjus and his personnel to task for their attitude in dealing with farmers. "Your director in Crookston told me that if farmers can't make it in farming they should get the hell out," Brunelle charged. "Now what kind of an attitude is that?

"We've talked to Congressman Stangeland, Senators Boschwitz and Durenberger and what did we get?" he asked. "Not a damn thing," he answered his own questions. "We went to Washington to meet with them and all we get is a hello and a goodbye."

EVALUATION of the Thief River Falls elementary schools for compliance with equal opportunity criteria was conducted last week. Archie Holmes, manager of equal educational opportunity for the Minnesota department of education, is shown with Supt. Robert Block of the local school system reviewing the evaluation criteria. School District 564 is one of the early districts in the state to become involved in the compliance program, having formed a local committee and been evaluated at the high school level a year ago. Alan Buhl heads the local committee. Supt. Block was one of the first superintendents in Minnesota interviewed on the program. It is expected evaluation of the Franklin middle school will take place next spring.

REFLECTI NS

The sweetest revenge is to forgive. By forgiving wrongs to us we cleanse ourselves of the acid effects of hate, bitterness and misery. How sad the man who wallows in revenge . . . plotting and planning to "get even." How much simpler and easier to forgive and then get on to more pleasant aspects of life. The harm done will heal more quickly because hate cannot flourish in a forgiving heart.

Ideas Sought For Education Program In MN

State board of vocational education is seeking ideas to improve vocational technical education programs in the state. With the fast paced world of work, demanding changes are taking place in our education. New approaches are needed to meet the needs of the changing economy and advancing technology of today.

State board of vocational education member will be at a regional input session hosted by the Pine to Prairie cooperative center which will be held at the Minnesota wheat growers building in Red Lake Falls.

Meeting is scheduled for October 17, from 7 to 10 p.m. For those unable to attend there will be people from the state department available to receive recommendations from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Minnesota wheat growers building, or recommendations may be mailed to the State Board of Vocational Education, Capitol Square, 550 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55101.

Public is invited to participate in the meeting where two plans will be reviewed:

(1) State plan — A comprehensive document that will give guidelines to educators and help them define and structure vocational technical programs.

(2) Long-range plan — A document that will help educators plan and manage change in vocational technical education to the year 1990 and beyond at both the state and local levels.

These plans need to be based on the realities of those who are the consumers of vocational technical education business, labor, industry, agriculture, professional, and para-professional. At this meeting, the public will have a chance to express their opinions and concerns, and to offer suggestions on a variety of topics, such as program availability, accreditation, meeting the needs of business, labor, and industry.

Enrollment At UND Surpasses 11,000 Mark

Fall semester enrollment at the University of North Dakota (UND) in Grand Forks surpassed the 11,000 mark for the second consecutive year. Number of full-time students increased by 1.3 per cent, reaching a record for that category.

Enrollment figure of 11,053 is 50 students (0.45 per cent) fewer than last fall's record enrollment of 11,103.

Don Wermers, UND's director of admissions and records, noted that the on-campus undergraduate enrollment was up one student, and that graduate enrollment declined by 15 students (1.3 per cent). Enrollment in the professional colleges decreased by four students (less than one per cent.

University's 1983 enrollment includes 9,257 undergraduates, 1,290 graduate students in both on-campus and extended degree programs and 506 graduate professional students in law and medicine. Women account for more than 47 per cent of the total enrollment.

State Requests Additional Surplus Food

Commissioner Barbara Beerhalter, Minnesota department of economic security, has asked for an increase in the allotment of United States department of agriculture (USDA) surplus commodities for the state of Minnesota.

Concern over the inadequacy of the amount of food that the USDA has allocated to the state for the next three months has resulted in letters from Beerhalter to the Minnesota congressional delegation and to John R. Block, secretary of agriculture.

Beerhalter said that current allocations of cheese, butter and milk for the months of October, November and December will be sufficient to serve only 150,000 of the 220,000 households who regularly receive surplus commodities.

Beerhalter has asked for an increase of 440,000 pounds of cheese, 80,000 pounds of butter and 800,000 pounds of non-fat dry milk for each of the three months.

Cheese and non-fat dry milk in bulk packaging will be available to Minnesota after December. These bulk quantities will be repackaged by the state and will result in adequate supplies to serve all 220,000 participating households.

Cystic Fibrosis Patients Dealt A Double Blow

Families of some 30,000 children born with cystic fibrosis (CF) are dealt a double blow. Not only is this chronic lung and digestive disease physically devasting, it is also one of the most expensive to treat.

This explains the heavy demand and recent reprint of the cystic fibrosis foundation's guide, "Health and Nutrition Programs." The brochure is a valuable resource of federal, state and local financial programs which can help families meet the high costs of cystic fibrosis.

"Until we find a cure for cystic fibrosis, kids with this disease have to depend on expensive medication and treatment to stay alive," said John Kelly, president of the Minnesota chapter of the foundation. "Cystic fibrosis not only emotionally but also financially drains its victims and their families."

According to the foundation, medical expenses for people with cystic fibrosis average from $6,000 to $10,000 a year, depending on the severity of the disease. Because CF produces a thick, glue-like mucas that clogs the lungs and leaves a person susceptible to dangerous respiratory infections. Frequent hospitalizations, doctor visits and special respiratory equipment are often necessary to fight the debilitating effects of this inevitably fatal disease.

People with cystic fibrosis also lack a key enzyme which helps absorb protein and digest food, Kelly explained. To stay healthy, they need two or three times the normal quantity of food which means high grocery bills. Enzyme supplements, vitamins and antibiotics (often up to 40 a day) contribute to exorbitant medication costs.

"Health and Nutrition" booklet describes which types of medical and nutrition services are covered by programs such as crippled children's service, medicaid, medicare, maternal and child health services (MCH), special supplemental food program for women, infants and children (WIC) and insurance plans.

This booklet is part of the foundation's "consumer facts" series which also covers: special tax deductions; equal employment opportunity and access to education programs.

Publication of these guides is made possible by contributions from the public, the sole supporters of the cystic fibrosis foundation. A nationwide voluntary health agency, it receives no government funds and relies on public support to carry out life-saving programs of research, care and education.

For copies of "Health and Nutrition" or any of the other consumer facts booklets, contact the Minnesota chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation at 2344 Nicollet Avenue South, Suite 150, Minneapolis, MN 55404.

Eye Disease Is Preventable If Caught Early

This year, over 125,000 Minnesotans will develop an eye disorder such as glaucoma, cataract, or macular degeneration. Key to preventing permanent eye damage and vision loss is early diagnosis and treatment.

According to the Minnesota society for the prevention of blindness and preservation of hearing (MSPBPH), over half of all blindness is preventable. MSPBPH recommends regular eye examinations, especially if you have a family history of eye disease or personal history of a disease such as diabetes. If you notice any one of the following symptoms, you should consult your opthalmologist immediately: blurred or distorted vision; frequent changes of glasses, none of which is satisfactory; flashes of light, haloes around lights; sudden onset of floaters; pain in or around the eye; excessive tearing or discharge from the eye; swelling of the eyelid or a bulging of the eye; double vision; or a change in the color of the eye.

For more information on specific eye diseases, send your request and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: MSPBPH, 1208 Pioneer Building, St. Paul, MN 55101.

Aerial Sprays Eliminate The Gypsy Moth

Last spring's aerial spray campaigns in Woodbury and St. Paul were successful in elimination of the Gypsy moth from those two established infestations, but the same intensive summer long survey also identified two new potential infestations plus another eight communities on the suspect list, according to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols.

This year's survey and efforts to prevent the establishment of the nation's most destructive forest pest in Minnesota's urban environment confirmed the need to escalate the vigil this fall and for another full year.

New hot spots are residential neighborhoods in northeast St. Anthony, and near the river bluffs north of downtown Stillwater. A yard-by-yard search of these two areas is scheduled this fall as soon as trees drop their leaves. Cooperative team of specialists will be duplicating the difficult searches of last fall in St. Paul and Woodbury, looking for the always concealed Gypsy moth egg masses this time in St. Anthony and Stillwater. Moths hide the masses in tree bark, lawn furniture, building siding, rocks and landscape timbers, under boats, trailers and other recreation equipment including canvas covers.

Commissioner Nichols said that the new target areas, where the ground searches will start about October 1, are much smaller than those last year when 430 acres had to be inspected. Preliminary data, linking the multiple trappings of male Gypsy moths to household moves within the past three years, gives the search initial four square block targets each in St. Anthony and Stillwater. Egg mass search will help determine what future action may be necessary to control the destructive pest.

The 10,000 traps used in this year's most intensive Gypsy moth survey to date, will be concentrated next year in the communities that have recorded multiple Gypsy moth trappings. No moths were found in 28 of the 40 counties that were trapped this summer.

In addition to the St. Anthony and Stillwater communities, next year's trappings will be intensified in Sauk Rapids, Northfield, White Bear Lake, Apple Valley, Eagan, St. Louis Park, Minneapolis and Mounds View, which had multiple moth catches this year.

Slow Down and Live

Cities Urging Support Of GRS Increase

Minnesota cities recently urged President Reagan to approve legislation providing for a three-year extension of general revenue sharing (GRS) including the possibility of increased funding for that program. Efforts are underway to send the president a message from cities across the country, and Minnesota cities in particular are anxious to present the president with arguments to convince him of the importance of the program.

Current legislation will shortly be in conference where differences between the house and senate will be resolved. Concern of cities is that the office of management and budget may recommend that the president veto the bill if any increase in funding is included as a result of congressional action. Cities make the point that there has not been an increase in funding for the program since fiscal 1977, and at this point the program purchasing power has been reduced by half.

Mayor Robert Anderson of International Falls, LMC president, has sent a letter to President Reagan urging his support, and the league of Minnesota cities is contacting members of the Minnesota congressional delegation urging them to encourage the president to sign the legislation at an increased level of funding.

League has contracted member cities numbering well over 700 to respond at this point and communicate their concern to the president, pointing out to him his past strong support for GRS as a model of "new federalism" and a program that he has seen fit to support in the past.

In his letter to the president, Mayor Anderson suggested that, "A veto of this vital program would seriously disrupt local governments in our state by undercutting local budgets, and cities are in no position to deal with such an event."

It is expected that nationwide cities would be vocal in their support of the continuation of the general revenue sharing program and of an increased level of funding to assist with the loss of purchasing power for those federal dollars which have been of vital importance to local government.

'Hairy Scary' Is Theme For Discussion

Theme for the "Footsteps" program for the week of October 10 is "Hairy Scary" with the topic being fear. Program will discuss reasons for fear in children and ways for parents to help children face and overcome these fears.

Sponsored by community education, footsteps is a parenting program which combines video tape presentations followed by group discussion. Tapes are broadcast over KTRF cable channel three at 8:30 p.m. each Monday. On Tuesday the tapes are again broadcast in room 114 at the AVTI at 7:30 p.m. with discussion being held from 8 to 9 p.m.

Parents may attend any of the sessions at no charge. Pre-registration is required by calling adult education at 681-5424 before 2 p.m. each Tuesday.

Volunteers To Be Noted At RSVP Banquet

"Hats Off to Volunteers," is the theme for the annual retired senior volunteer program (RSVP) recognition banquet which is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. on Tuesday, October 18, at the Crookston armory.

"The banquet is held to recognize senior citizens for the volunteer work they have done throughout the year," said Harl Gamber, director of the RSVP.

Over 400 RSVP volunteers will be recognized for their community service throughout the year. This includes over 45,000 volunteers hours in five counties, at 60 stations such as hospitals, nursing homes, transportation, social service, senior meals, telephone reassurance, and others, according to Gamber.

Banquet is free for RSVP volunteers, and spouses are invited to attend for a minimal charge. For more information call the RSVP office on the University of Minnesota-Crookston campus at 218-281-6510, extension 339.

NEA Political Hit List?

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has asked for an explanation from the head of the National Education association (NEA) regarding a "Secret hit list" of 37 Republican congressmen. The list was supposed to have been leaked during the NEA political action committee meetings in Washington, DC, recently.

"Our teachers are working hard and the NEA should be cooperating with Congress and local school boards to help the teachers," Congressman Stangeland said to Mary Futrell. The list was distributed by NEA political director Kenneth Melley and reportedly did not have official NEA sanction.

The 37 Republicans, including Rep. Stangeland, were apparently targeted because their 1982 elections were narrow victories. Dale Lestina, NEA director for legislation, said the list was not based on any legislative issues.

A former school board member and local PTA president, Stangeland said he has supported several key NEA goals, including the math and science teachers bill and the Simon and Perkins amendments to preserve school funds. He added that he would support any fiscally-responsible effort to assist local school districts in improving education.

"It seems that leaders at NEA are using union dues to play political games over a year before the election," the congressman said. "The NEA should be working to help students and teachers. Here, they seem to be trying to extend political campaigns that are already far too long."

He suggested that Melley should be disciplined by the NEA if he was acting on his own. "Otherwise," he said, "parents and taxpayers will write off the NEA as just a partisan political organization."

Good heavens! Would anybody really believe that?

For Peat's Sake, Keep It Small

Following column was written by Molly MacGregor for the Bemidji Pioneer. MacGregor is a former staff member of the Pioneer and now lives in Grand Marais.

Highway 61 north from Duluth travels through Minnesota's most spectacular scenery. As you follow the twists and turns of the cliffs on Lake Superior's North Shore, you may turn a corner and be treated to a broad expanse of the lake, with tiny rocky islands, covered in fog, in the distance. Drivers headed north pass hardwood and pine forests, cross bridges over babbling brooks that tumble over huge rocks towards the lake, and past secluded homes.

If you go far enough north you can also see Minnesota's two newest ghost towns — Silver Bay and Taconite Harbor. The huge Reserve Mining Co. complex at Silver Bay and the planned residential community at Taconite Harbor suggest human achievements, equal in scale to that of nature's achievement at Lake Superior.

Unfortunately, while Lake Superior will always dominate the landscape, Silver Bay and Taconite Harbor are fading away. Twenty years ago, a massive infusion of capital in the area promised new industry from iron ore that would keep northern Minnesota healthy and wealthy. Today, state officials are talking about moving former taconite company employees to other parts of the state where they may be able to find jobs. They'll leave behind the railroad tracks, storage tanks and warehouses that stood on Superior's shore. They'll also leave behind the two dozen or so houses of Taconite Harbor, clustered together on Highway 61 like a suburban development transplanted from the Twin Cities.

Now Gov. Rudy Perpich tells us that "Peat is going to be bigger than taconite" for Minnesota. That remark should be filed away under the Faint Praise and Cause for Skepticism Dept., and pulled out for examination every few months. Perpich has the right idea in looking for natural resources of the area from which new economic returns may be extracted. However, Minnegasco, the Minneapolis-based utility, has already backed away from its plans to do for peat what the steel industry did for taconite. Large-scale development is not economically feasible, the company said when it announced its change of heart last year. If peat is developed in northern Minnesota, the scale is certain to be small.

With just short of six million acres of peatlands, Minnesota has the most peat in the lower 48 states; only Alaska has more. Unfortunately, most of that peat is on private or protected land, or is simply too shallow in concentration to make mining worthwhile. The state Department of Natural Resources estimates that only one million of those six million acres can be harvested. New state requirements restrict each parcel leased from state for development to less than 3,000 acres, to protect the delicate environmental balance in peatlands.

Peat has long been used as a heating fuel in northern climates. The Russians, for example, burn about 80 million tons of peat in power plants annually. The Scandinavian countries and Finland burn peat in boilers to heat individual buildings. Thirty per cent of the energy supply in Ireland comes from peat, mostly in the form of electricity. Those countries have also used peat in the production of some industrial chemicals.

Peat can also be converted to synthetic natural gas through the process of gasification, a process that is being developed using lignite coal in North Dakota. It is that use of peat Minnegasco investigated a few years ago. The project was abandoned when it was determined it would cost $1.8 billion to build a plant to convert 10,000 acres of peat into methane annually, for gas that would cost about twice the market price of natural gas.

The federal government, through the U.S. Synthetic Fuels Corps, is backing two other peat-to-methane conversion projects, in North Carolina and Maine. The Synthetic Fuels Corp. has pledged $456 million to the North Carolina venture, enough to cover 86 per cent of the costs if the project should fail. Price subsidies will guarantee investors $1.05 per gallon, while the market price of methanol is $.50. Because removal of the peat will enable them owner, a New York investor, to farm the acreage when the peat is gone, the Washington-based Environmental Policy Institute called the plan a "multimillion-dollar windfall" for the owner, rather than a project in the national interest.

Small-scale peat development starts next summer in Minnesota at the Zim bog in St. Louis county. A Swedish firm, Rasjo Torv Co., will use the sod extraction method to produce peat for sale to homes and businesses for fuel. The method is one of the more energy efficient and least environmentally harmful ways of extracting peat. The DNR will help the firm with marketing and environmental impact assessments, in addition to leasing the company 2,500 acres for extraction.

It's not certain if peat can compete with other fuel sources — coal delivered by unit trains or natural gas. But the Swedish company is hopeful, as is the DNR. That kind of small-scale, cautious development makes sense. Massive federal commitments to expensive technology makes about as much sense in buying a house in Taconite Harbor does. Please, Mr. Perpich, let's keep peat smaller than taconite.

Detroit's New Road

Following editorial is from the Chicago Sun-Times:

Most U.S. carmakers are in overdrive. Sales soared 40.8 per cent early last month. July's 1.8 per cent surge in factory output included strong gains in autos. And unemployment among auto workers is down. Last November, one in four was out of work; by July, one in 11.

What cary buyers do tomorrow obviously may differ sharply from what they did yesterday. But a University of Michigan survey finds consumer confidecne in the economy at its highest level since 1972 — good news for Detroit.

Such statistics are reassuring. Yet if America's car industry is to reach new high ground — and stay there — it is absolutely necessary that it improves the efficiency of it's manufacturing operations and the quality of its vehicles.

That's why Detroit's efforts to revamp relations with auto parts suppliers is more exciting for the long run although less well known, than current gains in car sales.

The big manufacturers' ties with their smaller suppliers are becoming more cooperative and less adversarial. Ford Motor Co., for one, has been working quietly for 18 months to reduce the number of suppliers and strengthen relationships with remaining parts makers.

This can mean better quality at a lower cost as small companies, armed with longer contracts and a new sense of teamwork with carmakers, invest in machinery and workers needed to turn out better products.

Protectionist barriers against imports won't end Detroit's woes; better questlity at reasonably prices will. Small unglamorous steps like this one are the way to go.

RODNEY KRAGNESS, job developer with the Thief River Falls job training office for the past eight years, was presented with a special award from the Greater Minnesota Private Industry Council, Inc., at its business meeting in September, in recognition of his help to employers in locating and training new workers. In presenting the award, council member Betty Walton praised his efforts in developing good relationships with area employers, noting, "Rod's concern for the disadvantaged and his hard work on behalf of employers in setting up on-the-job training has resulted in good will in the community and additional job training funds for the office." Private industry council is a group of business, education and community leaders from throughout the state which sponsors job development and training programs in the private sector.

The High Cost of Health

An apple a day may keep the doctor away but it won't stop the bill from going up.

Medical care costs continue to rise. Last year, one out of every 10 dollars spent in our country was spent on health care. And people are finally saying ENOUGH!

For years now the cost of health care has been rising faster than the rate of inflation. In fact, health care costs have been rising at twice the rate of other services.

As chairman of the U.S. Senate Health Subcommittee, I've been pushing for ways that the individual, the employer, the doctors, the hospitals and the government can work together to control the cost of health care.

One thing I've been preaching for a long time is consumer choice — a powerful weapon in any makret. We have to exercise our options in buying health care plans for ourselves and our family.

For some of us, it means forcing a change in the way we think about the things we buy. Expensive and bigger isn't always better or even necessary.

We assume that less expensive health care plans and less expensive doctors and hospitals mean poor quality care. That's just not true. A recent study of Rochester's Mayo Clinic showed that its doctors keep their patients in the hospital 40 per cent fewer days that the national average. Their surgery rates were well below the national averages. And the Mayo Clinic is the best in the country, with the best in quality care.

So we have to change the way we think about selecting health care plans. We have to start making some choices. For example, young single people starting their first job should ask themselves — do I really need all that expensive coverage? Do I really need all of the options available in a particular health care benefits package? People should have the ability to choose health care coverage that best meets their needs.

Whether you're in business for yourself — farming, a shop owner, a small business owner — or whether you're employed by someone else, you've got decisions to make that will affect your pocketbook.

In order to have this choice, however, you have to be given options. Employers should be encouraged to offer their employees a variety of health care plans so that the worker can make the most cost-effective choice.

Bit by bit Congress is waking up to the need to change our health care system. In fact, on October 1 a major reform took place in the way hospitals are reimbursed by medicare. The change rewards efficient hospitals, while encouraging inefficient hospitals to become more cost-effective.

We won't change the system overnight. But we are recognizing that we can control health care costs while still maintaining the best quality health care in the world.

I was the guest speaker recently when the Future Farmers of America came to Washington to receive awards for their hard work in the "Achivement in Volunteerism" program. The FFA members work in community development projects as part of the "Building Our American Communities" program.

Lots of young people were there, including Robin Shoen of Truman, Minnesota. Robin was Minnesota's statewide winner in the Minnesota FFA's volunteerism efforts and a chairperson of Truman's "Building Our American Communities" program.

After seeing these young people, there's little wonder that teenagers make up over half of American's volunteer force in meeting the needs of their communities.

Volunteering is great for young people. It gives them a chance to explore career options and learn a skill or profession. It gives them an opportunity to interact with adults, make important decisions and serve their community. When I meet young people like those involved in the Future Farmers of America that I saw this week, I feel great about the future of our country!

I had a great time at the recent Worthington King Turkey Days festival. Not only did Worthington beat out Cuero, Texas for the title of Turkey Capital of the World, but in the Great Gobbler Gallup, Paycheck (Worthington's prize turkey) beat Ruby Begonia (ceuro's turkey) in a race which set a new record for fastest run down Main Street!

High Figures Set For Draft Registration

Selective service announced recently that 103,500 men registered during the most recent two-week reporting period. These figures represent the highest registrations for any comparable time period since January 1983. This surge in registrations puts overall registration figures at 96 per cent while registration of men born in 1963 or earlier, the (first to be called if congress ordered a return to a draft) is over 98 per cent. Since about 5,000 men turn 18 on a given day, approximately 30,000 of the registrations represent late registrations, a late registrant being one who registers more than 31 days after his 18th birthday.

Selective service officials attributed the rise in registration to several events: Increased public awareness of the legal requirement to register. College students registering with selective service as a condition of applying for federal student aid. The new job training partnership act requirement that men of registration age must be registered to participate in job corps and other JTPA programs. Increased direct mail contact with potential registrants using lists compiled from Federal, state and commercial sources.

H.W. Walls, selective service region director for the states of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin, said that he has noted a resurgence of patriotism among American youth.

Major General Turnage, director of selective service, stated that a return to a peacetime draft is highly unlikely because the armed forces are meeting their enlistment goals. General Turnage said that President Reagan had insured the success of the all volunteer force by persuading congress to increase military pay and by restoring dignity and pride to military service. He pointed out that the administration supports peacetime registration because it would save six weeks or more if a future emergency forced the nation to mobilize.

Would Require Smoke Detector In Airplanes

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has cosponsored legislation to require airlines to install smoke detectors and fire extinguishers in key areas of airplanes.

The commercial aircraft fire safety act came in response to the recent in-flight fire aboard the Air Canada DC-9 which killed 23 persons and injured 18 others.

"That accident proved beyond doubt that smoke detectors and fire extinguishers must be placed on airplanes," Sen. Boschwitz said.

The national transportation safety board (NTSB) reports that since 1964 there have been 10 U.S. air carrier accidents caused by in-flight fires. Two of these accidents resulted in 42 deaths. There have also been two major non-U.S. air carrier in-flight fires which have resulted in 424 deaths since 1973.

"Despite this tremendous loss of life, and the frequency of these incidents, the federal aviation administration has repeatedly rejected recommendations of the NTSB to require smoke detectors and automatic fire extinguishers," Boschwitz said.

In November the subcommittee on aviation will be holding hearings on this and other airline safety initiatives.

Flow Of Direct Current Used To Save Roads

An innovative practice which uses a flow of direct current electricity to reduce highway pavement deterioration is being expanded by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Known as cathodic protection, the practice involves introducing an electrical current into the grid of steel reinforcing bars (rebars) to reduce the rusting process in reinforced concrete pavement. When the bars rust, they expand and weaken the surrounding concrete, damaging the pavement and causing potholes.

Process is known as cathodic protection because the direct current causes the rebars to become cathodes, blocking the normal electrochemical process which causes rust to form.

Mn-DOT's success with its cathodic protection installations on a TH 100 bridge in Golden Valley in 1975 and on a 1,000-foot section of I-35W in Blaine activated in 1980 has led to expansion of its cathodic protection testing.

Examination of the installations by infrared photography and other methods shows that cathodic protection on I-35W has been effective in retarding corrosion that leads to potholing, said Paul Dietheim, Mn-DOT director of research and development.

A cathodic system to protect a one-mile section of I-35E in Vadnais Heights was activated August 5 and installation of a similar system in under way on the 42nd Street bridge over I-35W in south Minneapolis. Completion is expected by fall.

The I-35E system uses a series of rectifiers — the devices which change alternating current to direct current — to provide the flow of electricity into the network of rebars.

Each of the rectifier installations is slightly different to provide Mn-DOT researchers with a wide variety of data about the most effective cathodic installation methods.

System being completed on the 42nd Street bridge uses two grids made from carbon strands and copper-cored wire installed in the surface layer of the bridge deck. Grids spread the electric current evenly throughout the deck, providing uniform protection over the entire span.

Dietheim, said the bridge's cathodic system differs from others because the grids are installed in the surface rather than in a separate layer of conductive material such as coke between the surface and the superstructure.

Both installations will be monitored for the next three years to determine their performance and overall cost effectiveness and whether similar systems should be used in the future.

Dietheim said the installation of I-35E, for example, cost about $169,000 or about half the cost of replacing damaged pavement in the test section.

"If the installations prove effective," Dietheim said, "the systems could be models for future use on Minnesota's 200 miles of continuously reinforced concrete pavement, bridge decks and structures such as bridge support piers. Cathodic protection has the potential to greatly reduce concrete pavement deterioration and to improve service for the traveling public."

NW Minnesota Gets $426,167 For Training

Minnesota has been allocated $29 million under the federal job training partnership act (JTPA) for the nine-month period from Oct. 1, 1983 to June 30, 1984, Gov. Rudy Perpich has announced.

In northwestern Minnesota, $426,167 of the state's total allocation has been made available for job training services.

The funds will be used to provide job training services which prepare youth and adults for entry into the labor force, Gov. Perpich said.

Beginning October 1, various districts within the state called service delivery areas are making available to Minnesotans the job training services authorized under the federal legislation.

Among the services provided job seekers are remedial education, classroom instruction, vocational counseling, school-to-work transition assistance, on-the-job training, job upgrading and retraining, job search assistance and job placement.

Services to employers include evaluation of trainees prior to being referred for interviews, financial incentives such as wage subsidies or special tax credits for hiring certain workers, and customized training to meet particular needs. No fees are charged for services.

The service area allocations represent 78 per cent of Minnesota's total federal job training allocation of $29 million. The remaining 22 per cent will support special grants for education, performance incentives to program operators, older worker programs and administrative expenses.

The governor has established the governor's job training council to assist in coordinating state activities and in monitoring local job training programs.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the community college of the air force.

Erickson will now receive specialized instruction in the computer systems field.

He is a 1980 graduate of Lincoln high school, Thief River Falls.

Use Of Travel Info Centers Up This Year

Nearly 15 per cent more inquires were made at Minnesota's seven travel information Centers (TIC) during June, July and August than for the same period last year, according to the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT). In addition, number of visitors increased by 3.4 per cent over the same period, said R. Douglas Olson, TIC manager.

Strong growth in the number of inquires and the increased number of maps and brochures distributed in response to them indicate Minnesota is attracting a growing percentage of its travelers as vacations, Olson said.

He noted that a total of 476,196 brocchures describing Minnesota's summer attractions were distributed, an increase of 12.7 per cent over 1982, and travelers received more than 87,000 maps, a 4.8 per cent increase.

Olson attributed the growth of travel center use to greater public awareness of services the centers provide, an increased statewide emphasis on tourism and efforts of local communities to promote their own cultural, athletic and other events and attractions.

Driver's Ed. Helps Reduce Accident Rate

Information released during the National highway traffic safety administration's (NHTSA) symposium on highway safety impact, held in Chicago in May reflects additional positive results of driver education (DE). Analysis of student records reveals that driver education was effective in reducing accidents during the first six months following instruction in the safe performance curriculum study conducted by NHTSA in the DeKalb County, Georgia, schools.

Accident results were highly significant in favor of the training. So great were the differences during the first six months that DE graduate accident experience was better during the entire first year following instruction. Those who received instruction also had fewer violations (at a highly significant level) during the first six months. The violation experience was highly significant in favor of instruction for two full years following the DE course. As was reported in August, 1982, the driver education students were more knowledgeable about community traffic safety problems.

Begin Advocacy Program For Mental Patients

When psychiatric patients complain, the system doesn't always listen says Bill Johnson, manager of the lay advocates network. Johnson hopes his new statewide network of advocates will help to change that.

"It's a unique effort to give mental health consumers in Minnesota a voice in what happens to them while they're in treatment settings," says Johnson.

Network, funded by the McKnight foundation, is a special project of the Mental health association of Minnesota. "We saw a need for such a service," said association executive director George Carr recently, "and since advocacy is at the core of our organizational mission, we're excited to be providing this type of direct service."

Network will make advocates available to any current or former psychiatric consumer who needs help with a complaint. Complaints may fall under a variety of headings, including treatment rights, public benefits rights, and employment and housing discrimination issues. The project includes four staff "field advocates" — one each in Bemidji, Duluth, St. Cloud and Rochester. The name of the project tells what it is, says Johnson. "The field advocates do the networking. They also take advocacy cases, but they are really out there to establish a network of advocates who will be ordinary citizens trained in advocacy techniques."

Johnson believes the most feasible way to reach clients who are spread out all over Minnesota is to use volunteers. By 1985 the network hopes to have at least 200 trained advocate volunteers throughout Minnesota. Not just anyone, however, can become a volunteer advocate; prospective volunteers will have to fill out an application just as they would for any job. "We have high standards," says Johnson, "because we think our clients deserve dedicated people to advocate for them." Johnson also notes that volunteers will be paid a small stipend to help defray personal expenses during their activities with the network.

Many of the client complaints are received on a tollfree number at the mental health association office in Bloomington. Some calls are referrals from other agencies, and in those cases, the network staff must contact the prospective client for permission to be involved. But most calls are from the individual clients. "Our clients tell us what the problem is, and once we substantiate the complaint, one of our advocates represents the client," Johnson says.

When a client needs an advocate, network staff located one who lives near the client. "At least that's the ideal situation," sayd Johnson. Until volunteers are trained and available in all areas, the staff advocates will take most cases. "Our first priority is to speak in behalf of our clients." But, adds Johnson, he hopes that linking clients with volunteers from communities will also make people more aware of some of the issues mental health consumers face. "Many of the issues are directly related to the isolation and alienation that seem to be so common among our clients."

Johnson believes patients and ex-patients need a statewide advocacy program. Each state hospital has an advocate on staff, and there is an ombudsman program for nursing home resident, but until now there were no advocates to represent patients of other public treatment centers and private psychiatric hospitals. Johnson thinks the Mental Health Association is an appropriate organization to provide advocacy services because it is not a governmental agency. "If you have a grievance with the same system you work for, then ultimately your loyalty is to your job and not your client." The bottom line of the Network, says Johnson, is "we can advocate for reasonableness and fairness for our clients without fear of loosing our jobs in the process; we are really accountable to the clients we serve."

Farmers Sell 83 Per Cent Of Jan. Carryover

September 1 inventories of old crop soybeans stored on farm indicated that Minnesota farmers have marketed almost 83 per cent of the record January 1 carryover, according to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols.

Farmers grossed an estimated $820 million from the sales of 101.3 million bushels of soybeans that disappeared from on farm storage during the past eight months.

More than half of this year's soybean sales were during the past eight months, when market prices soared to two year highs as federal forecasts indicated the 1983 harvest will be one third fewer soybeans than last years record national crop.

Disappearance of soybeans from Minnesota farm storage during the first eight months this year was 32 per cent greater than the previous high volume for that period, in 1982.

Less than 21 million bushels of soybeans remaining on Minnesota farms on September 1 was the third highest volume of carryover for that date, behind the stocks held by farmers in 1980 and 1981.

Noting that Minnesota's 1983 soybean crop is not yet in the storage bins, but in the fields subject to fall weather hazards, Nichols is optimistic that market prices will continue to be favorable for farmers at least until the harvest is completed and final estimates of this year's drought are determined. He added that he is looking for another market upturn before he contracts the balance of his own soybeans.

This year's Minnesota soybean crop has been estimated at 142.6 million bushels. That September 1 forecast was reduced by 12 million bushels from the month earlier forecast due to drought impact. Current forecast is 32 million bushels lower than last year's record soybean harvest in Minnesota. Only Iowa and Illinois are estimated to have bigger soybean crops than Minnesota's 9.3 per cent share of U.S. 1983 production estimated on September 1 crop conditions.

In The Matter of Intrastate Access Charges
Notice of Evidentiary and Public Hearings

Notice is hereby given that the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission (the Commission) will hold evidentiary and public hearings into the matter of intrastate access charges.

Recent Federal Communications Commission (the FCC) and court rulings will mean that most long distance service will have to be purchased from a long distance carrier, rather than from the local telephone company. Beginning in 1984, this will be one of the several changes affecting your telephone service.

The Commission is currently investigating how local telephone companies will provide long distance carriers with access to local customers. When it completes its investigation of this issue, the Commission may establish rates (access charges) for long distance carriers and local customers that will cover the local telephone companies' expenses associated with providing access to their local facilities used to complete intrastate long distance calls.

The Commission has directed the twenty-three (23) regulated telephone companies serving customers in the State of Minnesota to file proposed intrastate access charges, proposed rules and regulations dealing with those charges, related financial data and an implementation plan for those charges.

The FCC has already established interstate access charges that long distance carriers and local telephone customers must pay for access to local telephone company facilities used to complete interstate long distance calls. In 1984, the monthly interstate access charge for residential customers will be $2.00 per month per customer. Business customers must pay $6.00 per month per customer for interstate long distance access.

As part of its investigation into the matter of intrastate access charges, the Commission will hold evidentiary and public hearings. Evidentiary hearings will be held on October 17-21, 1983 for the purpose of receiving formal intervenor testimony into the record of the investigation. The public is welcome to attend these hearings, but no public testimony will be received at the evidentiary hearings. The evidentiary hearings will be held starting at 9:00 a.m. in the Commission's Large Hearing Room, 7th Floor American Center Building, 160 East Kellogg Boulevard, St. Paul, Minnesota.

The Commission will hold nine public hearings across the state for the purpose of gathering public testimony and comment on the appropriate form, level and application of intrastate access charges as well as provide information on the issue of access charges. The public is encouraged to attend these hearings. Representatives from the Commission, the local telephone companies, long distance carriers, and participating state agencies will be present at the hearings to answer questions.

The public hearings will be held at the following locations at the place and date specified.

BELTRAMI COUNTY COURTHOUSE.
DISTRICT COURTROOM
BEMIDJI, MN 56601

Anyone who would like to comment to the Commission on access charges but is unable to attend any of the public hearings is invited to send in their comments in writing. Comments should be sent to:

Pirates, Prowlers Eye Playoffs

If northwestern Minnesota is to be represented in the 1983 Minnesota State High School League Class A state football playoffs, it'll be either the Crookston Pirates or the Thief River Falls Prowlers as the qualifying team.

East Grand Forks, last year's qualifier and Class A state runner-up, has been eliminated from 1983 post-season contention. To earn a playoff berth the Pirates, Prowlers and Green Wave must have better-than-.500 seasons and beat the other two area rivals. East Grand Forks is 1-5 with just one game remaining — Wed., Oct. 19, vs. Thief River Falls.

At 3-3, Crookston is still in contention, and at 2-4, Thief River Falls still has an outside shot at a playoff berth. The Pirates must beat either Barnesville or Mountain Iron-Buhl over the next two weeks, then finish with a win over Thief River Falls in the regular season finale here Oct. 28. The Prowlers, on the other hand, must win their final three games against Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston to make the playoffs.

In the playoffs, the area independent qualifier would be paired against the Mid-State Conference champion in opening round Class A play. Highly-regarded Park Rapids is the likely Mid-State representative.

In the same Class A playoff bracket will be conference champions from the Mesabi Range and Seaway leagues. International Falls is the early leader in the Mesabi Range Conference while Cloquet and Hermantown were the front-runners in the Seaway Conference.

First round playoff games will be played Nov. 4.

Three-Class Plan Response

Certain members of the East Grand Forks board of education and school administration noted that the shoe was on the other foot and made no effort to change the situation recently when asked to enforce a new three-class plan for high school boys and girls basketball, volleyball and track, according to the East Grand Forks Exponent.

Request was initiated by Warren high school officials through the District 31 Committee and the District 31 Coaches Association. It asked support from school districts for a proposal to create three classes on the basis of enrollments for athletic competition.

East Grand Forks was just this year returned to Class A competition from the Class AA ranks, and longtime board member Ordean Thompson asked the new three-class backers: "Where were these people eight years ago when we were looking for their support."

The subject was dropped without further discussion when there was no motion either for or against support for the request.

"Some of their reasoning is very sound," said East Grand Forks athletic director Larry Selk about the three-class plan. "But we thought our reasoning was sound eight or nine years ago, too. The (MSHSL) will have to hear them, but they heard us, too, back when we made our proposal. All I can say is good luck."

Miscellaneous

+ Mark Lingle of Park Rapids, winner of last week's Thief River Falls invitational, is the No. 1-rated runner in Class AA, according to the latest Minnesota State Cross Country Coaches Association poll. Bemidji is ranked No. 3 in the Class A team rankings. Randy Reichel of Staples, whom the Prowlers faced earlier this fall in the Detroit Lakes invitational, is the No. 1-rated runner in Class A. His Staples team is ranked No. 2.

+ Moorhead, scheduled to be in Thief River Falls for a Tues., Oct. 18 match, is rated No. 4 in the latest Minnesota State Volleyball Coaches Association poll. Fosston, an earlier winner over the Prowlers, is rated No. 10 in Class A.

+ Three freshmen from Thief River Falls are currently on college cross country teams, including Sarah Green at Northwestern in Roseville, along with Lon Aune and Kristy Forsberg at the University of North Dakota.

+ United States Olympic hockey team coach Lou Vairo, whose team faced six National Hockey League clubs during the NHL preseason schedule — Hartford, Pittsburgh, Detroit, New York Rangers, Washington and Minnesota — Called the North Stars' Neal Broten the top pro he watched from among the 120-or-so that took the ice against the Olympians. "He's the best player we have faced from one of the NHL teams," said Vairo about the former Roseau high school star, who led the North Stars in scoring in the preseason with seven goals and five assists for 12 points in 10 games. He skated on a line with wingers Steve Payne and Brian Bellows, and was described as the dominant performer on the ice on nearly every shift he played.

+ John Hermes, 65, who retired in 1977 from the Fergus Falls public schools faculty, died Mon., Oct. 3, at his home in Fergus Falls. He served as head baseball coach at Fergus Falls for 32 years, directing the Otters to an overall record of 241-169, including state tournament trips in 1961 and 1969.

+ Minnesota State High School League has allowed the petition of Wadena to stay in Class AA for wrestling, even though the Indians will compete in Class A for all other sports. Reason for Wadena's request was the fact that the Indians are in the same Class A district (District 24) as powerful Staples and they can avoid the Cardinals by remaining in Class AA. There are 13 Region 8AA wrestling schools: Sub-Region 1 — Melrose, St. Cloud Tech, St. Cloud Apollo; Sub-Region 2 — Rocori, Little Falls, Sauk Rapids, Brainerd; Sub-Region 3 — Alexandria, Fergus Falls, Moorhead, Park Rapids; Sub-Region 4 — Bemidji, Detroit Lakes.

+ A state Class B football playoff berth will be at stake Friday when Bagley and Mahnomen, both 5-0, square off in a high school football game at Mahnomen. The two former Pine-to-Prairie Conference rivals are playing as Class B independents this fall. Mahnomen beat Thief River Falls 13-0 earlier this fall.

Prowlers Defeat Lumberjacks 14-6 For Homecoming Game Win

According to Thief River Falls coaches, the Prowlers' playbook for a previously unproductive running game was reduced to just eight plays in preparation for Friday's high school football game against Bemidji. They ran just six of them, but ran them very well and won their 1983 homecoming game by a 14-6 margin.

Actually, the margin of victory could have easily been much higher. The Prowlers threw an interception after reaching the Bemidji 10-yard line in the first quarter and lost a fumble on a first down snap inside the Bemidji 1-yard line in the second quarter. And it could have been a shutout, too, except a pass interference penalty with no time showing on the clock gave Bemidji an extra play and the Lumberjacks used it to score their only touchdown.

For the most part, Thief River Falls dominated play with the Prowlers' best combined offensive-defensive performance of the 1983 season. Especially pleasing was the 201 yards they netted on the ground after failing to crack the 100-yard barrier in four earlier losses.

"They just went out and blocked like we talked about," explained Thief River Falls head coach John Schmitz, who simplified the Prowlers' blocking assignments and spent the entire week trying to polish a handful of plays.

While the blockers blocked, the runners ran. Tim Bottem was outstanding with a tackle-breaking 129 yards on 20 carries, while Ryan Drees and Rick Spong also brought smiles to the faces of the coaches with their determined runs. Drees had 48 yards on 10 tough carries and Spong, in his first real role of the season in the offensive backfield after being plagued by back problems much of the fall, averaged nearly seven yards on four carries for 27 yards.

It was an interesting two-half offensive game for the Prowlers, who started the game throwing the ball, then settled into a ball-control ground game after intermission. Quarterback Mitch Semanko was 5-for-13 passing for 99 yards, a touchdown and three interceptions in the first half, then did not attempt a single pass in the second half. It was just the opposite for Bemidji quarterback Joe Edlund, who put the ball in the air just once in the first half, but was 6-for-17 for 102 yards, a touchdown and two interceptions in the second half.

Considering the field conditions, the Prowlers' passing game at the start was a surprise.

"We wanted to loosen them up," said Schmitz. "They were clogging up the middle too much."

They loosened it up in a hurry. On their second offensive possession the Prowlers scored when Semanko and Drees hooked up on a 40-yard touchdown pass. It appeared as if Semanko had overthrown wide receiver Steve Wiskow on the right side, but as Wiskow leaped for the high throw, the ball settled into the arms of Drees who was only a couple of yards behind him. He sprinted the final 20-or-so yards to the end zone for 5:01 left in the first quarter. The conversion kick was wide to the right.

Mark Bondy's interception of an Edlund pass at the Lumberjacks' 24-yard line put the Prowlers right back into scoring position. A 12-yard run by Drees put them at the Bemidji 10-yard line, but linebacker Dave Lawrence intercepted Semanko at the eight.

Later, a 26-yard punt return by Bottem set Thief River Falls up in business at the Bemidji 31-yard line. An eye-opening, determined 26-yard run by Bottem on a fourth-and-six call from the 27 gave the Prowlers a first down inside the Bemidji 1-yard line. Semanko went into the end zone on a quarterback sneak on the next snap, but unfortunately for the Prowlers, the ball didn't. Linebacker Pete Lapp recovered the fumble at the one with 3:29 left in the second quarter, preserving a 6-0 halftime score.

After netting just three first downs and 46 yards worth of offense in the first half when their deepest penetration was the Thief River Falls 37-yard line, the Lumberjacks threatened to score on the first possession of the second half when three Thief River Falls penalties helped them reach the Prowlers' 13-yard line. But on a fourth-and-two call, fullback Dave Lawrence got just one yard to the 12 as the drive died.

Two players later Bemidji had another shot at scoring when nose guard Jerry Meland recovered a Thief River Falls fumble at the Prowlers' 37-yard line. Edlund hit and Craig Boyer in the end zone on an apparent 28-yard touchdown pass a couple of minutes later, but the play was erased by a five-yard illegal procedure penalty assessed the Lumberjacks.

Helped by an interference penalty against the Prowlers, Bemidji still reached the Thief River Falls 7-yard line on the same drive, but on a fourth-and-six call, linebacker Tim Kruse came up with an interception on a deflected Edlund pass in the end zone on the first play of the fourth quarter.

That initiated the Prowlers' most impressive touchdown march of the season as they went 80 yards in 14 plays — all carries by either Bottem, Drees or Spong. Bottem had runs of 11, 12 and 8 yards in there and Spong ripped off a 19-yarder. Twice the Prowlers picked up first downs on fourth-and-short yardage situations, and Bottem's ninth carry of the drive was a 1-yard touchdown plunge through the middle with 6:39 left in the fourth quarter. Semanko rolled to the right and hit Wiskow with a two-point conversion pass for the 14-0 cushion.

Bemidji avoided the shutout at the very end against Thief River Falls reserves. Edlund found Randy Malterud coming out of the backfield wide open on the left side for a 47-yard pass play that carried to the Thief River Falls 24-yard line in the final minute. Two penalties on the Prowlers carried the Lumberjacks to the 10-yard line — including the interference call in the end zone as the final second ticked off the clock.

With time expired, Edlund hit split and Jeff Smith over the middle in the end zone for the touchdown.

Schmitz was well-satisfied with the effort. The early turnovers weren't particularly upsetting, he said, because the Prowlers were stopping the Lumberjacks on defense. "We felt our defense was playing well enough to keep us in the ball game at that point," he noted. "We shut them down. When they finally got it going in the second half, it was our penalties that did it for them."

Of the seven second half Bemidji first downs, four of them came on Thief River Falls penalties.

It was the third straight loss for the Lumberjacks after two season-opening wins. The Prowlers, who snapped a 22-game losing streak earlier with a 20-0 shutout of Detroit Lakes, are now 2-4, ending a three-game losing streak.

"The streak wasn't as long this time," quipped Schmitz.

Thief River Falls ends a five-game homestand with a Friday night trip to Fergus Falls.

Bottem scored from the 1-yard line a few moments later as Thief River Falls opened up a 14-0 lead in what turned out to be a 14-6 homecoming game victory over the rival Lumberjacks. Bottem finished the night with 129 yards on 20 carries.

Nordics Lose To Tigers

Marshall County Central turned the ball over six times, five of them on pass interceptions, and lost a 26-12 Top of the State Conference Nine-Man high school football game at Stephen Friday.

"Just too many mistakes," explained Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart, "and too poorly played on our part."

Stephen scored the first two times the Tigers touched the ball, jumping out to a 14-0 lead on one-yard runs by Wayne Carlson and Dennis Borowicz, with the second touchdown coming after the first of the Tigers' interceptions.

"We didn't play a very good first half," acknowledged Gebhart.

Marshall County Central managed to cut the defict to 14-6 before the first quarter was finished when Kevin Boe hit Bret Hanson with a 63-yard touchdown pass on a fake punt, but the Nordics didn't score again until Boe reached the end zone from the 4-yard line in the fourth quarter.

"Defensively we played a lot better in the second half," mentioned Gebhart.

Marshall County Central wound up with 93 yards rushing and 134 yards passing. Boe was the leading ball carrier with 62 yards. Freshman quarterback Danni Halvorson was 10-for-24 passing for 71 yards, but was intercepted five times. Hanson caught two passes for 67 yards and Jay Nelson caught four for 30 yards. Stephen, meanwhile, rushed for 209 yards and passed for 58 more.

Boe was also among the Nordics' leaders on defense with 13 tackles, including 10 solo stops. He had to come from the secondary to make seven tackles in the first quarter alone. Daren Stokke was credited with 14 tackles, Ross Olson 11 and Hanson had nine.

It was a roughly played game, noted Gebhart, who was forced to attend to a number of injured ball players throughout the course of the evening. He hopes to have them back in the line-up Friday when the Nordics host Tri-County.

Gonvick-Trail 20
Oklee 16

Offensive errors plagued Oklee Friday in a 20-16 North Tri-County Conference loss to visiting Gonvick-Trail.

Gonvick-Trail defense started the scoring by tackling Oklee quarterback Kevin Enerson in the end zone for a first quarter safety, then putting six more points on the board when Ross Bergerson returned a pass interception 30 yards for a touchdown in the second quarter.

Oklee came back from a 14-0 halftime deficit to take a 16-14 third quarter lead on touchdown runs by Duane Baker and Darrin Tougas, plus a pair of two-point conversion passes.

But another Gonvick-Trail interception set up a 1-yard fourth quarter touchdown run by Alan Bardwell for the winning points.

"Defensively I was happy with what we did," pointed out Oklee coach Dale Svaren, "but you just can't keep turning the ball over like that."

Oklee netted only 90 yards rushing, with Tougas getting 72, and added 96 yards passing on a 9-for-26 night for Enerson.

Defensively, Baker and Tom Dulka, the team's linebackers, were in on a combined 45 tackles — 24 for Baker and 21 for Dulka. Tougas came from the secondary to make 19.

Oklee, 2-3, hosts Grygla-Goodridge Friday at 7:30 p.m.

KEEPING AN eye on things, Marshall County Central's Nancy Nelson put a teammate in position for a spike with this set against Crookston during Saturday's Northern Lights invitational high school volleyball tournament played in the Lincoln gym. The Nordics beat the Pirates in the quarterfinals, lost to eventual champions East Grand Forks in the semifinals and defeated Bemidji in the third place match.

Volleyball Tourney . . .

EGF Shades TRF In Title Match

Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson predicted at the start of Saturday's sixth annual Northern Lights invitational volleyball tournament in the Lincoln high school gym that East Grand Forks would win the eight-team event.

She proved to be right, but her Prowlers nearly pulled off an upset in the finals of the day-long affair before the Green Wave triumphed 18-7, 2-18, 18-10.

It was a good day for the host Prowlers, who had won just four of 11 matches coming into the tournament. Saturday they beat Greenbush 18-13, 18-13 in the opening round quarterfinals, edged Bemidji 18-16, 18-15 in the semifinals and threw a scare into defending champion East Grand Forks in the finals.

"It was exciting for the kids," explained Anderson. "They were happy to get that second place trophy."

East Grand Forks reached the finals by beating Warroad 18-13, 18-11 in the quarterfinals and by outlasting a strong Marshall County Central team 18-14, 14-18, 18-12 in a closely-played semifinal encounter.

Marshall County Central, an 18-4, 18-10 first round winner over Crookston before losing to East Grand Forks, came back to win third place honors by beating Bemidji 18-8, 18-7 for a productive day against larger schools.

Crookston finished as the consolation champion, rebounding from its opening-round loss to Marshall County Central with wins over Warroad 18-10, 18-9 and Greenbush 18-14, 18-8.

Anderson said it was good, solid teamwork that made it a successful day for the Prowlers. "They were so aggressive," she explained. "They picked things up all over the court and they did a good job blocking. They all did a super job."

Junior Kristi Finney collected 14 service points and junior Paula Bergan had 11 in Thief River Falls' opening-round win over Greenbush, a good, close contest to open the 11-match tournament.

Thief River Falls teamwork won out, explained Anderson, in the Prowlers' semifinal victory over Bemidji. Junior Deb Opdahl sparked the winners with 15 service points, along with a strong game at the net.

A pleasant surprise probably best described the Prowlers' championship match success against an East Grand Forks team that had just recently handled them 18-9, 18-4 in a regularly scheduled meeting.

East Grand Forks started with a 5-0 first game lead, but Thief River Falls came back to tie it 5-5 before the Prowlers' servers began to miss the mark in the 18-7 Green Wave win.

It was East Grand Forks' turn to make service mistakes in the second game as Thief River Falls rolled to an unexpectedly-easy 18-2 victory to tie the championship match at 1-1.

East Grand Forks once again started fast, opening a 4-0 third game lead, only to see Thief River Falls rattle off nine straight points for a 9-4 advantage. But sparked by the point-producing serving of senior Rita Gonsorowski, the Green Wave out-scored the Prowlers 14-1 the rest of the way for the title, 18-10.

Gonsorowski scored 10 service points in that third game, including a string of seven straight to win it. Bergan led the Prowlers with 12 points for the match, while senior co-captain Missy Bondy had seven.

Northland Mistakes Lead To 33-6 Mesabi Triumph

There was a difference of opinion as to who won or lost the game, but the outcome was never really in doubt Saturday as Mesabi defeated error-prone Northland 33-6 in a Minnesota Community College football game played in Thief River Falls.

"They beat us, no doubt about it," said Northland coach John Helley. "They put it together and we never really got started."

However, on the other side of the beat-up Prowler Field playing surface, Mesabi coach Pepper Lysaker had a different version: "It isn't that we beat them; they beat themselves. It would have been a real close ball game, but they made about four big mistakes and we scored on them."

Lysaker did say, though, that it was a good performance by his Norsemen. "That's the best we've played all year," he acknowledged.

Close game Lysaker might have envisioned lasted through a scoreless first quarter. It didn't stay that way long, however, as Mesabi scored three times in a 4½-minute span early in the second quarter.

A succession of poor field positions finally caught up to the Northmen that period when punts of 24 and 22 yards set Mesabi up at the Northland 38 and 35-yard lines on back-to-back exchanges. Both times quarterback Jay Bebow followed with touchdown passes. On the first one, a good fake into the line brought the defenders in as he rolled left and hit wide receiver Brent Debenedet behind the secondary in the end zone with just 1:17 elapsed in the second quarter. Second time he fired to 6-4, 220-pound tight end Jon Anderson, who towered above shorter defenders in the end zone with 8:22 left on another roll-out to the left side.

On the very next Northland offensive snap, Mesabi line backer Craig Pototcnik intercepted Northland quarterback Steve Blanc's pass over the middle at the Northland 42 and had a clear path to the end zone, providing the Norsemen with two touchdowns in 18 seconds and three scoring strikes in 12 snaps.

Any chance for a Northland second half comeback was quickly squashed when defensive end Roy Anderson intercepted Blanc at the Northland 35 on the third play after intermission and returned the ball to the 6-yard line. Runningback Brian Duaime scored by going through the middle on first down, making it 26-0 with just 1:47 gone in the third quarter.

Mark Ostoff, a 6-0, 175-pound freshman from Barnum who finished with a game-high 104 yards on 15 carries, capped a seven-play, 63-yard Mesabi touchdown march in the fourth quarter for a 33-0 bulge.

Northland avoided the shutout on a 1-yard Bob Rockwood touchdown run with 1:21 remaining, finishing a 9-play, 57-yard drive that mostly included Blanc passes to Kevin Roehl for 15 yards, Kent Kainz for 19 and Todd Graalum for 17.

Beset by injuries and sickness that disrupted practices during the week, the Northmen were never really in it. Blanc was among those sidelined by sickness during the week, and in fact wasn't expected to play at all Saturday, but came off the bench early in the first quarter to take the controls.

To complicate matters, the Northmen lost their two best offensive linemen to injuries during the course of the game — guard Wade Hruby and center Jay Welher.

"We really had limited practice this week," confirmed Helley. "We just don't have the depth to compensate for those types of things."

Northland, 1-3 in the MCCC and 1-4 overall, will be at Brainerd Saturday for a 1:30 p.m. game. Mesabi evened its MCCC record at 2-2.

Cardinals, Blue Devils Record Shutouts Friday

Unbeaten Plummer and once-beaten Grygla-Goodridge both collected shutout wins Friday in North Tri-County Conference Nine-Man high school football action.

Plummer blanked McIntosh-Winger 33-0 in the Cardinals' homecoming game while the Blue Devils stopped Middle River 36-0 at Goodridge.

Grygla-Goodridge 36
Middle River 0

Doug Schulz rushed for 210 yards on 21 carries and scored three touchdowns as Grygla-Goodridge handled Middle River 36-0.

Rick Mosher also had a productive rushing night with 85 yards on nine carries, including a 50-yard touchdown run, as the Blue Devils totaled 361 yards on the ground. They added 75 yards on a 7-for-14 passing night.

Grygla-Goodridge led 18-0 at halftime, but the Blue Devils played their best football in the second half, reported winning coach Rick Nelson. "We started kind of sluggish, but all-in-all we're happy with the way things turned out."

It was the Blue Devils' second straight shutout. They've given up just five touchdowns in six games, with Dale Verbout and Ron Kiesow having strong games in the defensive line to lead the way, according to Nelson.

However, it was a costly victory for the Blue Devils, who lost the services of Scott Groven, one of the top receivers in the North Tri-County Conference, and Rick Carlson, a starter at defensive end. Groven suffered a shoulder injury in pre-game warm-ups and did not play in the game. Carlson suffered a knee injury early in the first quarter.

Grygla-Goodridge, 5-1, will be at Oklee Friday for a 7:30 p.m. game.

It was the fifth straight loss for the 1-5 Skippers, who have given up exactly 36 points in each of their last three outings — the last two being shutouts. Middle River hosts Plummer Friday at 4 p.m.

"We were just outmatched," said Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "They have a better ball club than we do. We just couldn't get anything going."

Sparby, too, said it was the play of Verbout and Kiesow at the tackles that made it so difficult for the Skippers to move offensively. In the third quarter, for example, they ran just four plays, one of which was a punt.

Plummer 33
McIntosh-Winger 0

Big plays were featured in Plummer's 33-0 victory over McIntosh-Winger, with the Cardinals scoring three times on plays of 42 yards or longer.

It started when Duane Franklund and Gary Torkelson tackled the McIntosh-Winger punter in the end zone for a first quarter safety. Then on the first play after receiving the ensuing free kick, Gene Fisher hauled in a 42-yard touchdown pass from Tim Gagner on the final play of the first quarter.

Troy Gustafson returned a punt 42 yards for a touchdown, and on the final play of the first half Russ Fisher went 24 yards for a touchdown that made it 20-0. That play was set up on a 37-yard Tim Gagner pass play to [illegible].

Long-range scoring strikes continued as Russ Fisher broke a 54-yarder on the first play of the fourth quarter.

"We didn't have much consistency on offense," admitted Plummer coach Gary Brantl, "but we came up with the big plays to win. Defensively we played well all night."

Russ Fisher carried nine times for [illegible] yards to pace the Cardinals' [illegible]-yard ground game. They added 103 yards on a 3-for-10 passing night.

Defensively, tackles Mike Konickson and Franklund spearheaded the shutout, with ample support from Gary Torkelson in the middle of the line, with Gene Fisher and Gagner playing well in the secondary, reported Brantl.

Plummer, 5-0, will be at Middle River Friday for a 4 p.m. game.

LHS Sophomore Team Beaten By Red River

Grand Forks Red River defeated host Thief River Falls 35-8 Thursday in a sophomore high school football game.

It was the fourth straight loss for the winless Thief River Falls club. They visit Crookston Thursday for a 4:15 p.m. game.

Thief River Falls junior varsity, 0-3, winds up its season Monday at home against Grand Forks Red River with a 7 p.m. kickoff.

TRIPPED UP BY Northland defensive lineman Nathan Bukowski (78), Mesabi runningback Brian Duaime was brought down near midfield after a six yard-game in the third quarter of Saturday's community college football game played in Thief River Falls. Northland's Todd Stokke (25) and Greg Langerud (72) also gave chase on the play. The visiting Norsemen won 33-6.

Area Volleyball . . .

Huskies Top Rival Eagles

Goodridge surprised rival Grygla 18-12, 13-18, 18-10 Thursday in area high school volleyball action.

Results snapped a four-match winning streak for the host Eagles, leaving them 7-4 for the year, and it was just the second win in eight starts for the Huskies, but their second win in their last three outings.

"We played real well," reported Goodridge coach Patti Johnson, who had special praise for junior Cheri Nelson. "She was just outstanding. She was our sparkplug," said Johnson. Nelson was most effective at the service line, collecting 12 consecutive service points during one scoring streak.

Junior Melissa Iverson and sophomore Jennifer Race also had strong games, said Johnson.

"Goodridge played well," confirmed Grygla coach Kurt Vandermeer, "but we were flat. It was the worst we've played this year."

It was the sixth match in ten days for the weary Eagles, explained Vandermeer, and they were also operating without senior Kathy Foss, the team's floor leader who suffered a back injury in practice the night before.

Grygla was scheduled to host Lake of the Woods tonight (Monday) and will be at Tri-County Thursday. Goodridge will host Climax Tuesday and entertain Stephen Thursday.

MCC — Roseau

Marshall County Central improved its record to 8-2 Thursday with an 18-8, 18-16 home court victory over Roseau.

After an easy first-game win, the second game was deadlocked at 16-16 before junior Barb Garthus reentered the game and served the final two points.

Junior Jodi Nelson and senior Shelly Anderson had five and four ace attacks, respectively, for the winners and both were credited with a block.

Marshall County Central will be at Badger Tuesday and at Lake of the Woods Thursday.

Middle River — LOW

Middle River finally solved its problems at the service line, but then saw its setting game collapse Thursday at Baudette as Lake of the Woods beat the Skippers 18-16, 18-13.

"It was a really good match," pointed out Middle River coach Julie Helgeson, "but our setters were off, and that's what cost us the match."

Seniors Diane Black and Paula Rantanen were both cited for strong games by Helgeson, who warned opponents, "If we can ever put everything together, we're going to be good."

Middle River, an 18-11, 18-11 winner over Badger earlier in the week to snap a four-match losing streak, is 4-7 for the year. The Skippers visit Roseau Tuesday and host Warroad Thursday.

Plummer — Oklee

Plummer climbed above the .500 mark by wearing down visiting Oklee 14-18, 21-19, 18-5 Thursday.

It was the Cardinals' third straight win, improving their dual meet record to 5-4.

Plummer hosts Argyle Tuesday in the Eagles' only match this week. They entertain Thief River Falls Mon., Oct. 17.

TRF — RLF

Red Lake Falls handled Thief River Falls 18-2, 18-9 Thursday in the Lincoln high school gym, dropping the Prowlers' dual meet season to 3-5.

Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson said it was a "disappointing" performance by the Prowlers. She was very impressed, however, with the play of the Eagles' Kim Christensen and Corrie Axvig. "They just didn't miss. They hit hard and hit it right on every time," she said.

Thief River Falls' junior varsity improved its record to 5-3 with a come-from-behind 14-18, 18-12, 18-8 victory.

Lone outing this week for the Prowlers will be Thursday in an 8 p.m. match at Fisher.

Plummer Wins Own Volleyball Tourney Title

Plummer won three matches Saturday to win its own four-team, round-robin invitational high school volleyball tournament.

While the Cardinals were going 3-0 for the day, Mentor was 2-1, Goodridge 1-2 and Lancaster 0-3.

Plummer swept Lancaster 18-7, 14-18, 18-3; Goodridge 18-10, 16-18, 18-9; and Mentor 18-6, 18-15.

Mentor beat Goodridge 18-9, 18-9 and Lancaster 18-11, 18-8.

Goodridge defeated Lancaster 18-3, 18-6.

It was the second tournament title this fall for the Cardinals, who won the eight-team Roseau invitational Sept. 24.

Tournament To Open Today For Tennis Players

Detroit Lakes and Thief River Falls were rated 1-2 for the start of the 1983 North Sub-Region 8AA girls high school tennis tournament today (Monday).

Two sites were to be used for today's matches. At Detroit Lakes, No. 5-seeded Moorhead was scheduled to play No. 4-seeded Fergus Falls at 1 p.m., with the winner facing the host Lakers at 4 p.m.

Thief River Falls will meet No. 3-seeded Bemidji at 3 p.m. at the Grand Forks Tennis Center.

Today's survivors will meet in Tuesday's North Sub-Region 8AA team finals at 4 p.m. at the Grand Forks Tennis Center.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Every year at about this time nine to 10 million families with high school seniors must start thinking about next year for that May-June 1984 high school graduate. What will that graduate do next?

The alternatives are immediate work, additional vocational training, or attendance at a junior college or four-year university. Most of our high schools have counseling available, where a trained adviser reviews the student's records and can recommend additional interest and placement testing to help produce the right answer on what to do.

Not everyone should immediately go to work. Not everyone should go to a vocational training institute. Not everyone should devote the time to a junior college or four year university. Each individual has different interests, background and objectives. This decision, what to do, is important and could affect a life.

If your senior makes the decision to go to work upon high school graduation, he or she should start right now on this job hunt, because finding a job is difficult and it won't get any easier even with economic recovery. This job search, started now, may give your senior some ideas as to whether he or she is adequately prepared, and may even change that decision in time for another alternative, without a wasteful lapse in time. Some thoughts on how to search out a job are available from a counselor at your state employment service office.

If your senior decides to go to a vocational training school to learn the specifics of a skilled trade, I believe school selection is important. Many of our public vocational training institutes teach carpentry, accounting, auto repair, office skills, meat cutting, fashion design, and much more. There are privately owned schools. The senior who contemplates attendance at one of these schools should discuss the school of choice with a high school counselor, spend some time with a present student of that school, and arrange a conversation with a graduate.

While I have a high regard for many of these public vocational training institutes, and have seen some private schools that do a good job for their clients, there are also private institutions where attendance is a waste of time and money. Shopping around makes good sense.

As a parent who has sent off four of his family members to universities, large and small, private and public, with two presently in grad school and two as undergrads right now, and a high school senior of my own. I have gone through this selection trauma many times. I find that many young people want to leave home and spread their wings. I also find that many have an idea that the education they receive will be based upon the school they attend, and that a big name expensive private school is the place to get the best education. Some of these ideas are myths.

There are college and university directories available in most high schools, public libraries, and book stores describing every college and university, their costs and facilities. You can visit these schools. But these techniques will not, in themselves, solve your problem. I think that your senior should recognize that further education will be the result of personal efforts and those of the faculty, so it is important to ascertain class size and whether those prestigious faculty names are his or her teachers, or whether you are paying a hefty bill for a teaching assistant, whose name no one has ever heard.

Two of my college grads (now in graduate schools) attended four years at expensive private universities where they had few exposures to listed faculty members, and had classes that were so large that they got the feeling they were numbers and not named individuals. One of my current college students attends a "name" institution that has indivudual classes with 1,200 students in a lecture hall, and that's as close as the students get to their professor, who is off and running at the end of 50 minutes.

At the same time, one of my "kids" (really inapplicable at 23) is finishing up at a small school where (1) a very fine faculty does its own teaching, (2) students are names not numbers, and (3) enrollees get a good private school education at a public school price. The football team is not featured on TV Saturday afternoons, but I don't believe that appearance adds much to most student educations.

Right now there's a shortage of freshmen and a surplus of college space, a buyer's market. Your senior has more alternatives than high school grads of the past couple of decades. With some parental assistance and aid from a school counselor, he should be able to make a good decision. It's your senior's life, therefore he should make this decision as he attains his majority and becomes a full fledged responsible adult.

That's Straight Talk!

Every so often politicians feel it is necessary to "squeak" loudly and attract attention. Let's look at a few of the more recent "squeaks" and see whether they make any sense or are just "political hot air," a diversion from facts:

1. Our actions in Central America have one objective, keeping big problems from arising on our borders. Central America is not thousands of miles away on the other side of the Pacific Ocean. It's just next door. Supporting opposition to communism and continual pressure is designed to provide security for our nation that will not exist with communist subversives on the other side of a border fence, terrorizing Texans, Californias, Arizonans and New Mexicans. Do you believe that the Russians would allow a change in governments in Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia or Poland? If you honestly believe that there would be no trouble in Latin America if we were not in El Salvador with less than 100 advisers for training and necessary military and economic aid for support, or assisting those in Honduras who understand what is happening in Nicaragua, you don't have the real picture. Thousands of Castro advisers and tons of military equipment were on the scene before we got involved, and their numbers have not declined.

Our politicians who talk about "another Vietnam" didn't understand Vietnam, don't understand geography, and don't understand that if we do not demonstrate the backbone to defend ourselves, we will be encouraging another big war. Sooner or later, provoked or poked, we would have to respond, and cowardly actions now encourage provocation and miscalculation. The divisive speeches and actions of some of our politicians are "hot air and hokum" that are damaging our nation.

I have two sons of military age and two daughters who also might be subject to a call up. I don't want a war. But I recognize that the "squeaks" and the "easy talk" will encourage a war. History should teach us something.

2. The time, money and energy being spent on the Carter campaign political papers caper is stupid. It indicates how little work many of our talkative politicians have to do. This whole situation boils down to campaign speech information, which was available to all of us every day through newspaper and broadcast releases. There was nothing criminal, immoral or unethical. This summer just didn't produce much news. No one broke in and stole documents. No one bugged any phones or took any pictures on the sky.

What surprises me is that the "squeakers" are folks who should remember incidents in the Johnson-Goldwater and Kennedy-Nixon campaigns by their heroes and supporters that would make our hair stand on end and Watergate look like a Bible camp revival.

3. There has been much discussion on missiles and chemical warfare. We know that the Russians have missile superiority and used chemical warfare weapons over the last few years. To not be properly prepared is stupid, yet we have some politicians who are stupid enough to risk our security and misrepresent the facts.

I believe in turning the other cheek, except that it doesn't work when you are dealing with those who are not honest and who fight dirty. There are no real rules when you are fighting to stay alive. The Russians have no reputation for living up to agreements whenever they don't want to.

Summing up, our defense industry is a big employer providing lots of jobs, and it is wrong to assume that we can survive in weakness or with old equipment.

4. Many of the "hot air artists" are so political and have so little regard for our intelligence that they rewrite history and assume we'll swallow this tripe. Walter Mondale and "Tip" O'Neil seem to forget that the little guy was paying more than 21 per cent interest when they were running the show . . . that everyone, including the little guy, was watching their money deteriorate at more than 10 per cent annually when they were running the show. . . that weakness encouraged the Iranians to take over our embassy and keep our people hostage because the Iranians knew that the Carter-Mondale-O'Neil power group wouldn't do anything, and when they finally sent in a military group to help, our poor defense posture produced planes crashing into one another and a real fiasco.

I think that we are more savvy and have a better memory that our politicians realize. I sure hope so!

DNR Provides Funds

Department of Natural Resources has made $301,600 available to the city of Granite Falls for repair of the Granite Falls dam, located on the Minnesota river. Funds were authorized by the 1983 session of the legislature and will be matched by the city.

A safety inspection by the DNR revealed that the concrete, embankment and gate sections of the dam need to be repaired.

Funds for the project are administered under the dam safety grant-in-aid program of the DNR's Division of Waters. The city will control the engineering and construction activities necessary to repair the dam and will be reimbursed by the DNR for 50 per cent of project cost or $301,600, whichever is less.

Netting Season

Whitefish-tullibee netting season for 1983 has been announced by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources' fisheries section.

Dates are similar to previous years with some lakes opening Oct. 14 and others opening Nov. 4.

Regulations allow only one 100 foot net, with restrictions as to mesh size and the depth of water in which the net may be placed.

By law, only Minnesota residents may obtain a netting license. Cost of the license is $3. Licenses and schedules for the season on specific lakes will be available from county auditors.

For the first time this year the season will be opened with 48 hours notice on eight lakes: Mille Lacs in Aitkin, Crow Wing and Mille Lacs counties; Flour Lake, Pike Lake and Poplar Lake in Cook county; Big Balsam, Deer and Swan Lakes in Itasca county; and Vermillion Lake in St. Louis county.

Notices announcing the opening of the season on these lakes will be made available to the news media, according to fisheries personnel.

Officials said about 3,000 netting licenses for whitefish and tullibee are sold annually.

Trees Available

Department of Natural Resources forestry division announced that 500,000 white spruce seedlings are available for purchase by the public in addition to the species listed in an earlier announcement.

Of the total number of white spruce, 50,000 have been set aside for planting in southeast Minnesota. Also available are 47,000 black walnut for planting in that portion of Minnesota south of a line between Washington county and Big Stone county.

Landowners planting trees in southern Minnesota under a federal cost sharing program have access to both red oak and black walnut seedlings. Information on how to obtain planting stock is available from local district foresters.

Price for the seedlings is $65 per thousand and the minimum order is 500 trees. Trees must be ordered by species in units of 100, 500 or 1,000.

Further information or assistance in ordering trees can be had by contacting DNR Forestry, P.O. Box 95, Willow River, MN 55795; telephone 218-372-3183.

Tree buyers may also contact DNR Forestry headquarters in the Centennial Building, St. Paul, phone 612-296-4479, or local forestry offices and offices of the ASCS and SCS or county extension offices.

DNR Auction

Some 600 persons turned out Sat., Sept. 24, at an auction of firearms and other hunting and fishing equipment confiscated by conservation officers of the Department of Natural Resources.

Auction was held in the St. Paul National Guard Armory.

Nearly 300 items were sold, including 123 firearms. Highest price paid for any single item was $390 for a 12 gauge Browning shotgun.

Sale produced $20,676.20 which was deposited in the state game and fish fund. Monies from the fund are appropriated by the legislature to the DNR for game and fish management purposes.

Enforcement officials said the items in the sale were confiscated from convicted violators of Minnesota game and fish laws.

Black Bay Opened

Department of Natural Resources reports it has secured agreement with the National Park Service to open Black Bay of Rainy Lake to duck hunting this fall.

Joseph Alexander said the area to be opened has been designated "Gold Portage Wildlife Management Area". Migratory birds such as ducks and geese may be hunted and trapping will be allowed during the established seasons.

Alexander set forth the rules governing hunting and trapping in the area in Commissioner's Order No. 2162.

It includes regulations similar to those in effect in other state wildlife management areas but includes other restrictions as well.

It allows the use of motorized watercraft and snowmobiles but prohibits camping, and emphasizes that only migratory birds may be hunted — no other species of large or small game.

Alexander said Senator Bob Lessard of International Falls deserves considerable credit for his efforts to persuade the National Park Service to allow hunting and trapping in the Bay — the best duck hunting area in a part of the state where there are few waterfowl marshes.

Rep. Bob Nauenshwander was also helpful in achieving agreement with the Park Service, said Alexander.

Waterfowl Lakes

Department of Natural Resources has reminded duck hunters of some special regulations in effect on certain lakes.

Those lakes are designated 'migratory waterfowl feeding and resting areas", and no motor propelled watercraft or aircraft are allowed on them during the waterfowl hunting season: Oct. 1 through Nov. 19.

Lakes are listed on Page 11 of the 1983 Waterfowl Hunting Regulations as follows:

Upper Rice Lake in Clearwater county, Bear Lake in Freeborn county, Squaw Lake in Itasca county, South Heron Lake in Jackson county, part of Lake Christina in Grant and Douglas counties, part of Marsh Lake in the counties of Big Stone, Lac qui Parle and Swift; part of Lake Lizzie (also known as Rush Lake) in Otter Tail county, Big Rice Lake in Cass county, Dora Lake in LeSueur county and Lake Johanna in Pope county.

Rough Fish Harvest

Minnesota commercial fishermen are expected to harvest nearly 10 million pounds of non-game fish during this coming fall and winter, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

Floyd Hennagir of the DNR Fisheries Section said the harvest will consist of 5 million pounds of carp, 3 million pounds of buffalofish and 2 million pounds of bullheads.

He said the fish are taken in nets that allow game fish to be returned to the water.

"The fish are sold for human consumption and a large percentage of the harvest is shipped to eastern markets, said Hennagir.

Dam Repair Funds

Department of Natural Resources has made $15,000 in matching funds available to the city of Faribault for repair of the Woolen Mill Dam, located on the Cannon river. A safety inspection by the DNR revealed that concrete, embankment, and gate sections of the dam need to be repaired.

Funds for the project were appropriated to the DNR by the 1983 legislature and are administered under the dam safety grant-in-aid program of the DNR Division of Waters.

City will control the engineering and construction activities necessary to repair the dam and will be reimbursed by the DNR for 50 per cent of project cost or $15,000, whichever is less.

Successful completion of the course will certify students to teach two relatively new National Rifle Association (NRA) programs: home firearms responsibility, and voluntary practical firearms programs.

Three instructor ratings will be available, depending on the age of the student: 15-17 — apprentice instructor; 18-year-olds (minimum) — assistant instructor; 21-year-olds (minimum) — certified instructor.

Since individual attention given to each student must be extensive in the short, two-day time frame, the class size will be limited to ten participants, filled on a first-come, first-served basis.

Students must pre-register for the course on or before Oct. 28.

For additional information, or to acquire a registration form, call or write W. F. Dunham, Route 1, Box 109, Williams, MN 56686; telephone 783-2731.

DNR Lowers Water Level In Marsh Area

A drawdown of water in the main pool of the 6,000 acre Grayling Marsh wildlife management area near McGregor means there will be a little if any duck hunting there this season, the Department of Natural Resources has announced.

Water was lowered as a follow up to improvement work carried out this summer, said wildlife officials. The channels and marsh were becoming clogged with masses of cut floating vegetation.

Officials said that it is planned to return water levels to normal this coming spring.

Swans Released

Nine rare trumpeter swans were released by the Department of Natural Resources' nongame wildlife program at the Baker Park Reserve in Hennepin county September 22. Two additional swans will be released at a later date, said officials.

Their release was part of a cooperative effort by Minnesota's nongame wildlife checkoff program and the Hennepin county park reserve district to re-establish a wild, migratory population of these beautiful white swans.

Trumpter swans are the largest waterfowl species in North America, reaching a weight of 35 pounds and having a wingspread of seven feet. Historically, trumpeter swans nested in Minnesota's marshes, but they were eliminated by pioneers during the state's settlement era.

This release is part of a six-year effort by the DNR to help re-establish trumpeter swans. Last year, five young swans, called cygnets, were obtained as eggs from the Lacreek National Wildlife Refuge in South Dakota. At 12 weeks of age they were transferred from DNR rearing facilities at the Carlos Avery game farm near Forest Lake to a release site in Hennepin county.

This year, six cygnets were hatched and reared by the DNR, and five additional cygnets were transferred to Carlos Avery from Hennepin county when the male disappeared and the female was injured by entanglement in a fence.

Now these 11 cygnets are being released on a marsh where they will spend the next year as flightless swans with clipped wing feathers. Next summer their new flight feathers will grow back and they will be allowed to fly free.

Overtime Football Now Commonplace

Record for most overtime games in a Minnesota State High School League football season is 75, set back in 1973, the first year overtime games were played under the new tie-breaking system where both teams were given the opportunity to score within four downs from the 10-yard line, reports Larry Larson, MSHSL director of publications and information.

Through the first five weeks of the 1983 season there were 26 overtime games. The longest went four overtimes on Sept. 2 as Houston edged Lewiston 18-12.

Record for the longest game played in prep history is five overtimes, first set in 1973 in a 24-22 Harmony win over Houston. There were five games played in 1975 that went five overtimes, including Delano 30-24 over Howard Lake; Swanville 30-24 over Waubun; Royalton 23-20 over Grey Eagle) Alden-Conger 46-38 over East Chain; and St. Anthony 13-12 over Golden Valley.

MSHSL Notes

Stuart Nordquist, head coach at International Falls, joined the 100-victory club when his team beat Greenway-Coleraine 14-12 on Sept. 30. Nordquist, now in his 17th season as a head coach, owned a career mark of 100-47-2 with that win.

Paul Mausling, a 1977 graduate of St. James high school who finished fourth in the state Class A cross country meet his senior year, was runner-up in the recent Twin Cities marathon run. Mausling, 24, had a time of 2:16.26, or 3:16 behind the winning time set by winner Allan Zachariasen, 27, Odense, Denmark, the defending champion. Another former prep standout, Lindsay Brown, Stillwater, who was the state's prep two-mile champion in 1976, finished in sixth place, some five minutes behind the champion.

Effective April 1, 1984, Sanborn and Lamberton high schools will combine all extra-curricular activities and have a single membership in the MSHSL. They will be known as Sanborn-Lamberton. The request was approved by the League's Board of Directors at a September meeting.

Lois Schmidgall, a sophomore from Hancock high, served 18 consecutive points to lead the Hancock girls volleyball team to a 18-2 victory over Barrett in a recent game. The feat is believed to be a first in the 11-year history of girls high school volleyball in Minnesota.

Mary Manderfeld, a former University of Minnesota basketball captain, has been named the new head girls basketball coach at Robbinsdale Armstrong. Manderfeld was an assistant coach at Edina last year.

Kurt Virgin, an all-tournament choice on the 1970 South St. Paul state runner-up basketball team, is the new head girls basketball coach at Apple Valley. Another new head mentor at Apple Valley is Mark DeCenzo, who becomes the new head hockey coach, replacing Larry Henrickson, who is on a leave of absence. DeCenzo, captain of the Michigan State hockey team in the late '70's, was a member of the Grand Rapids High squad which finished in third place in the 1974 state hockey tournament.

John Bunkers, head football and track coach at Fulda for 15 years, recently resigned from his coaching duties.

Gary Warren, assistant hockey coach at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo., is the new head hockey coach at Austin high school.

Brady Lipp, former Breckenridge high school athletic standout who served as head girls basketball coach at Benson high school last year and guided them to a berth in the state tournament, has resigned to accept an assistant coaching position at North Dakota State University in Fargo.

Frank G. "Butch" Larson, International Falls high school football coach for 22 years during the period 1952-73, recently passed away at the age of 71. A Minnesota Coaches Hall of Fame member, Larson, who also coached at Duluth Central, had a career coaching record of 158-76-6.

Pursuant to the provisions of Title 23 United States Code, Section 128, notice is hereby given that the Minnesota Department of Transportation, Operations Division, is affording a public hearing to discuss the location and design features of improvements to Trunk Highway 59 between Atlantic Ave. and First St. in Thief River Falls.

The public hearing will be held at the Thief River Falls City Auditorium on October 17 at 7:30 p.m. and is sponsored by the City of Thief River Falls.

The project will involve complete reconstruction of the roadway with the same basic design as the existing roadway. Changes to the existing design will be as follows:

4. Intersections at Pine Ave., Spruce Ave. and Mussey St. will be modified.
5. Sidewalks will be preserved and extended to First St.

A bridge repair project will be tied to this project and involves replacing the superstructure of the bridge over the Red Lake River and widening the deck to accommodate four lanes of traffic and two sidewalks.

The Department of Transportation and the City of Thief River Falls will share the cost to replace the storm sewer system beneath the roadway as part of this project.

The general public is invited to present testimony at the public hearing regarding this project, or submit written testimony postmarked no later than October 27, 1983, to R.E. Wolfe, District Engineer, Attn: Steve Baker, Minnesota Department of Transportation, Box 727, Bemidji, MN 56601.

1. Social, economic and environmental effects.
2. Tentative schedules for right-of-way acquisition and construction.
3. Relocation assistance programs.

The project path report for this project along with maps, drawings and other pertinent information will be available for public inspection and copying at the Mn-DOT Resident Office located at Zeh and State St. in Thief River Falls.

"Is There Anyone Out There Like Me?"

Organize Support Group For NCC Non-Traditional

COORDINATOR Geri Howe of the adult continuing education support group at Northland community college in Thief River Falls discusses her program with Madalyn Novellino (left), vice provost at the college. The group is intended to provide assistance to men and women who are returning to school after some absence from the classroom. "We want to help calm the fears and anxieties of those who are renewing their experience in school and for some reason feel they don't or won't fit the pattern of students again," Howe said.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"Is there anyone out there like me?"

Geri Howe says she felt like shouting that question — or running an ad in the paper asking it — as she began attending Northland community college following her divorce and subsequent decision to go back to school.

"And now I feel there are probably quite a few other people who share the same reaction, the anxieties, the uncertainties connected with changing a lifestyle and returning to school," she said. "In fact, I know there are others because they have told me so. That's why we are forming our support group."

The organization — loosely knit and likely to stay that way — is presently being called the Adult Continuing Education Support Group. It is primarily intended to provide support and a sense of belonging to the single, non-traditional student at Northland community college. Howe is the coordinator of the group which headquarters out of space allocated at Room A-43.

Suggestion that the organization is loosely knit and likely to stay that way is not at all derogatory. There is not expected to be any effort to provide a rigid, structured, formal type of organization or club. That is not what the need is perceived to be. It is simply an entity to which those who feel a need can turn for conversation, reassurance, experienced advice or information.

For example, the group is being formed to help the single, non-traditional student. . . the person who has been out of high school at least a year before going on to more education. But persons who want to join don't have to be single, and they don't have to be non-traditional. They don't even have to be students at Northland. They can be attending the AVTI or they don't have to be students at all. It's sort of a non-exclusive, all-inclusive, self-help by helping others type of group.

First meeting of the support group has been scheduled for Thursday at 8 p.m. in room A-43 at Northland. At that time the structure of the group will be established in accordance with the wishes of those interested. It's likely there will be regular meetings, but nothing very happy.

"This group is being formed for support and not counseling," Howe emphasized. "Non-traditional married students most often don't have the same needs as the non-traditional single students. They usually have the support of a spouse and shared family and household responsibilities. But we can't ignore them if they need support and believe they can benefit by participating.

"Somewhat the same situation applies to the traditional students, those who are entering college directly out of high school. Their circumstances are usually different, but if they need help or if they want to provide help, their participation is welcomed."

Madalyn Novellino, vice provist at Northland, points out that there are 292 people enrolled in Northland adult programs and continuing

School Board Certifies '84 Levy Of $3,837,615

Certification of a local tax levy of $3,837,615 payable in 1984 was made to the Pennington county auditor Monday evening when the Thief River Falls board of education met at the school district service center.

The levy is approximately $90,000 less than the $3,927,768 levied a year ago, according to Harry Nelson, business manager for the school district. However, it represents the maximum amount that can be levied under state formula in nearly all categories and reflects those constraints rather than a reduction in school district obligations.

The board also heard a progress report from Roger Tunberg, Jerry Sandstrom and Ev Ault of Jobs Incorporated. The three men noted that much had been accomplished so far under the cooperative agreement with Jobs Incorporated, School District 564, Pennington county and the city of Thief River Falls. Formal request for additional funding to support the program in the future will be presented to the board at a future meeting.

Report of Inter-County nursing service for services provided during the 1982-83 school year was noted and discussed. Quotation from Tunberg Motors in the amount of $10,454 for a 1984 cargo van was accepted.

The 1982-83 and 1983-84 contracts for aides and confidential employees units were approved as negotiated. Following discussion of use of school facilities by the city recreation department, it was consensus of the board that requested facilities continue to be used free of charge. A policy to that effect will be presented for board approval at a future meeting.

Board members Arnt Aune and Hank Hallstrom were appointed to work with Dr. Orley Gunderson, director and Fred Ballou, assistant director at the AVTI, regarding possible purchase of a building from Arctco, Inc. The building purchase is being studied to provide facilities for the AVTI aviation program.

Resolution concerning a statement of assurances for the block grant application was approved. Proposal for a three-class system for extra-curricular activities under the state high school league was discussed and additional information will be presented at a later meeting.

Congratulations from the board were extended to Janet Shaw, home economics instructor at Lincoln, who was recognized as a Minnesota "Teacher of Excellence" at the annual MEA "Teacher of the Year" awards banquet in Minneapolis last Sunday.

Resignations were accepted from Duaine Espeseth, regular route bus driver; Myron Peterson, eighth grade basketball coach; and Wilton Swenson, assistant principal on leave of absence. Leave of absence without pay was approved for Maxine Mottram, AVTI cosmetology

In support of the family (Bruce's father, Harold, will accompany him and provide the marrow for the transplant) which will incur a good deal of out-of-hospital expense in connection with the transplant procedure, friends and family are sponsoring a fund-raising event. Members of Black River Lutheran church of rural St. Hilaire and Redeemer Lutheran church of Thief River Falls will hold a spaghetti supper at Redeemer church October 25 from 4:30 to 8 p.m.

City Adopts 1984 Levy Of $994,990 On Tuesday

Thief River Falls city council adopted a 1984 tax levy of $994,990 (an increase of 11.2 per cent over 1983) and granted conditional approval of a plan to rebuild Third Street, among other business conducted at their regular meeting last night in council chambers at city auditorium.

Increase in the levy would raise the mill rate approximately 3.3 mills. According to county assessor Gerard DeHaan, changes made in the 1983 legislative session altered assessed values, homestead credits and other factors which could change taxes considerably, but he offered approximate figures (based on 1983 assessed valuations) which showed that homestead property taxes on a $30,000 home would increase by $10 as a result of the city levy. City finance officer Roger DeLap emphasized that the city's share of taxes on that home were only $61 in 1983, compared to $109 for the school district share and $49 for the county share. He noted that school and county levy amounts for 1984 are still unknowns.

Other comparable figures prepared by DeHaan indicated that a home assessed at $54,000 in 1983 had a homestead tax of $450, which would increase by $25 due to the city levy increase. Homes valued at $75,000 had a tax of $1,036 which would increase by $75. Commercial properties valued at $50,000 would have taxes increased by $50; valued at $100,000 would have taxes increased by $150; and valued at $200,000 would have taxes increased by $370.

On questioning, finance committee chairman Jim Womack indicated that they were following a direction of increasing real estate taxes in order to keep user fees in line. DeLap noted that they had levied the maximum in the general fund but had cut back on special assessments. Maximum which the city could have levied was $1,067,000.

Steve Hagen, planning engineer with the Minnesota department of transportation (MnDOT) was present to discuss plans for the project to rebuild Third Street between Atlantic Avenue and First Street. He prefaced his remarks by noting that before the highway was constructed in 1935, a letter had been written to MnDOT by a Mr. Dahlquist of Thief River Falls which emphasized the im-

Rocksbury Will Allow Off-Sale Liquor Licenses

Rocksbury township board has authorized the issuance of up to three off-sale liquor licenses in the township and designated one licensee pending conformity with state regulations and approval by the state liquor control board.

Board chairman Clayton Mathson said the board had received requests from Larry Kruse of St. Hilaire and The Lantern restaurant and lounge for off-sale licenses several months ago. Several meetings of the board were conducted and discussions held with the applicants, Ray Nibbe of the state liquor commission, Pennington county attorney David Olin and others.

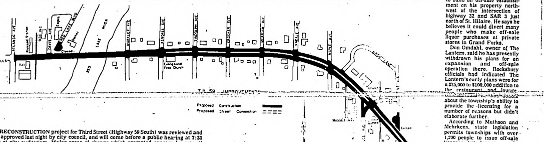
Ken Mehrkens, a Rocksbury township supervisor, said the license fee had been set at the maximum allowable of $500 annually. That fee, plus any increase in taxable valuation resulting from new construction, would be the only income derived by the township as a result of the licensing.

Presently the communities of St. Hilaire, Goodridge and Thief River Falls use the profits from municipal off-sale operations to subsidize their local government operations. There are no private off-sale operations in Pennington county.

Kruse told the Times this morning that his plans are still incomplete but he would like to build an off-sale establishment on his property northwest of the intersection of highway 32 and SAR 3 just north of St. Hilaire. He says he believes it could divert many people who make off-sale liquor purchases at private stores in Grand Forks.

Don Omdahl, owner of The Lantern, said he has presently withdrawn his plans for an expansion and off-sale operation there. Rocksbury officials had indicated The Lantern's early plans were for a $75,000 to $100,000 addition to the restaurant and lounge. [illegible] doubts about the township's ability to provide the licensing for a number of reasons but didn't elaborate further.

According to Mathson and Mehrkens, state legislation permits townships with over 1,200 people to issue off-sale licenses but leaves on-sale licensing to counties and municipalities. The Lantern presently has an on-sale license through the county, since it is located outside the Thief River Falls city limits.



PROPOSED RECONSTRUCTION project for Third Street (Highway 59 South) was reviewed and conditionally approved last night by city council, and will come before a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Monday at city auditorium. Major areas of change which prompted concern by council members were the closing of Red Lake Boulevard, and Pine Avenue, and the loss of parking in front of the Chamber of Commerce office which is used as a bus stop. Also of major concern is the handling of emergency traffic while the bridge over the Red Lake River is being widened and redecked. Dotted line shown across from Spruce Avenue shows where the preferred access for Pine Avenue traffic would be constructed. Minnesota department of transportation maintains that the project cannot be approved without the street closures due to safety factors involved.

Julie Easton-Jeff Oseid Wed At St. Bernard's

Flowering plants in the right alcove and a white banner featuring a rose colored wedding ring on a wine colored cross, in the right alcove graced the chancel at St. Bernard's Catholic church for the August 20th wedding of Julie Ann Easton and Jeffrey Wade Oseid, both of this city. To complete the setting, plants and baskets of babies' breath surrounded the lectern.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Alex Easton of Fergus Falls and formerly of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Oseid, also of this city.

Rev. Dave Super officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride's aunt, Sister Mary Walker, Bismarck, N.D., was the organist. She played "Largo in G" for the processional, and "Joyful, Joyful We Adore Thee," as the recessional. Soloists were the bride's uncle, Denny Doppler, Bismarck, and her cousin, Ruth Ann Doppler, Dickinson, N.D. Selections sung were "All I Ask of You," "Wherever You Go," and "May the Lord Protect and Keep You." Miss Doppler also served as flautist. The assembled guests participated in the ceremony by singing "Here I Am Lord," and the recessional hymn.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a white taffeta gown with lace and taffeta ruffles outlining the neckline which dipped to a V in front and back. A lace front panel with ribbon trim graced the fitted bodice; matching lace edged her elbow-length puffed sleeves; and a scalloped overskirt and a sashed bow complemented her floor-length skirt. Her headpiece was a woven silk circlet of lilies of the valley and miniature roses featuring narrow, waist-length silk ribbons attached in back. She carried a bouquet of fresh garden gypsophila, grown by the groom. Her jewelry consisted of a double pearl bracelet, a family heirloom, tiny rose porcelain earrings and a crystal heart necklace on a narrow ribbon, her gifts from the groom.

Attending the bride were her sisters: Lili Fredeen, St. Paul, as matron of honor and Wendy Easton, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Ann Olimb, Minot, N.D., and Callie Sollom, friends of the couple. They wore briar rose satin tea-length gowns fashioned with tulip sleeves and a wide satin sash. Matching narrow ribbon, attached in front, flowed freely from the waist to the hemline. They carried fresh garden flowers in shades of rose and purple, tied by narrow rose ribbon. Their rose and white fan pins were gifts from the bride.

Mary Jane Doppler, Bismarck, a cousin of the bride, was the personal attendant.

The groom wore a black tuxedo with tails, a white shirt with wing-tip collar, black bow tie and cummerbund, and a boutonniere of gypsophila.

Best man was Jeff Gobell, St. Paul, a friend of the couple. Ushers were Kirk Oseid, St. Paul, a brother of the groom; Steve Easton, San Francisco, Calif., a brother of the bride, and Wayne Krueger, a friend of the couple. Ushers were Jack Oseid, brother of the groom, and Tom Dondelinger, a friend. Kris Oseid, brother of the groom, distributed the wedding programs. All wore black tuxedos and matching boutonnieres featuring rose and white bachelor buttons.

The mother of the bride wore a street-length dress in light blue, off-white and rose plaid with a handkerchief hem and a blue ribbon sash. The groom's mother was attired in a navy blue sheer street-length dress with a ruffled neckline, short sleeves and a gathered skirt. Both wore pearl necklaces and a single white orchid corsage.

Honor guests were Lillian Walker, Bismarck, grandmother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Hedlund, Roseau, and Ruth Oseid of this city, grandparents of the groom.

Host and hostess at the reception, which followed in the church parlors for 250 guests, were Mr. and Mrs. Francis Gilchrist, Bismarck, and Mr. and Mrs. Don Grahn, Roseau, uncles and aunts of the bride and groom. The bride's cousins, Dede Reinehr, Lincoln, Neb., registered the guests and Mr. and Mrs. Marquies Doppler, Wheaton, N.D., served the punch.

The three-tiered, all-white wedding cake, decorated with lilies of the valley, was topped by fresh gypsophila. It was cut and served by the bride's aunts: Fran Reinehr, Lincoln, Neb., and Wandi Doppler, Bismarck. Pouring coffee were Mary Mitchell, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, aunt of the bride and Judy Huber, Shakopee, aunt of the groom. The Kransekake, the traditional Scandinavian wedding cake, was cut and served by Mrs. Francis Gilchrist and Mrs. Don Grahn.

Stephanie, Theresa and Alanna Altepeter were waitresses. At the gift table were Penni Brokemeier, Oklee, and Mary Amundson. All are friends of the couple.

Following a wedding trip to Winnipeg, Man., Canada, the couple is at home at 409 University Avenue, S.E., apartment 24, Minneapolis. Both are attending the University of Minnesota, the bride as a first year law student, and the groom as first year medical student. Both are graduates of Lincoln high school, Northland Community college, and the University of Minnesota, Duluth. Photo, Jim Solsten, Thief River Falls.

Kathy Muzzy - J. Narlock Married in Grand Forks

Miss Kathy Muzzy, Grand Forks, N.D., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Muzzy of rural Thief River Falls, became the bride of Jerry Narlock at 6:30 p.m., on September 17 at Zion United Methodist church in Grand Forks.

Rev. Bill Bates officiated at the private double-ring ceremony witnessed by the immediate families. At the organ was Jean Jacobson, playing the traditional wedding march as the bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her parents. Candelabra with white satin bows formed the background for the wedding party.

The bride was attired in an all white gown of Chantilly lace over taffeta, featuring a fitted empire bodice with pearl and sequins accenting the Queen Anne neckline. Her long, tapered sleeves came to a point over her wrists. Creating back interest were lace flounces extending from the waistline into a chapel-length train. Her waist-length veil was held by a Chantilly lace derby hat with a netting bow. She carried a cascade of white Sweetheart roses and light purple azaleas with white and purple ribbon streamers.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Laureen Muzzy of rural Thief River Falls. She was attired in a deep purple gown styled with a modified A-line skirt and a short sleeved tunic top. She carried a white lace fan topped by deep purple and lavender roses with purple and white ribbon streamers.

Roger Lautt, Grand Forks, a friend of the groom, was best man. Serving as usher was Darrel Muzzy, Thief River Falls, a brother of the bride. The groom and his attendants wore black tuxedos with wing-tipped shirts, black bow ties and white and light purple Sweetheart roses.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Muzzy wore a slate blue street-length dress complemented by a corsage of light purple azaleas and white Sweetheart roses. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's grandmother, Eva Gerszewski, who was attired in a lavender long-sleeved street-length dress.

Other honor guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Odin Hanson, grandparents of the bride, and Brenda Walberg, who attended her sister as personal attendant.

A reception at the Knights of Columbus followed. Hosting the event were the bride's parents. Susanne Johnson, a cousin, served the punch; Coby Walberg, distributed the rice packets, and Mitch Muzzy, Joanie Hanson and Mark Johnson, were in charge of the gifts.

The two-tiered wedding cake, iced in all white, was topped by lavender azaleas and white roses. It was baked and decorated by Susan Spaeth. Brenda Walberg, a sister of the bride, cut and served the cake. Sherrie Kolawski, a friend, poured.

Waitresses were Kathy Kochevar, Joan and Ray Lembke, and Susan Spaeth, friends of the bride.

The couple will be making their home in Corpus Christie, Tex., where they will be employed. The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school, Thief River Falls, and the groom is a graduate of the Oslo high school. Photo, LeRoy Walberg.

It is supported by service organizations and their auxiliaries with the local Legion and its auxiliary giving regular donations.

Mrs. Driscoll stated that 26,489 people in service had used the center from Nov. 22, 1982 through July 1983. During that time the center had served 11,520 packages of potato chips, 11,000 hot dogs, 316 pounds cold meat, 16,968 cans of pop, 6,192 doughnuts, 7,092 sweet rolls and 18,400 cups of coffee. She urged service people to make use of this free service.

Numerous other reports were also given. Annabelle Cuppett read the changes in the By-Laws, Marilyn Winters read the budget for 1983-84, and Avis Odegaard reported that 393 members had paid their dues. New Products Could Reduce Heating Bills

Some of the many new products on the market today could help to reduce home heating bills this winter. There can be up to a 30 per cent heat loss through the window area of Minnesota homes, Deborah Matero, Pennington county extension agent noted.

Efficiency of products should be studied carefully by the homeowner considering them, since some are so expensive that the payback time is too long to justify using them on that principle alone, she said.

Ease of installation, effectiveness, attractiveness and durability should be considered along with cost. These factors, along with suggestions for improving windows to ease heat loss will be discussed at the extension home study group leader training to be held on Friday at 1:30 p.m. at Thief River Falls in the courthouse meeting room. Anyone interested in this topic is invited to attend.

just accepting contributions in behalf of Bruce and his family. Of course, we hope donations will be generous so we can provide as much help as we can."

Bruce, who attended elementary school in St. Hilaire before moving to Perham with Harold and Marcheta (Cummings) Van de Streek, brothers Jeff and Tim and sister Amy about eight years ago, is also the son of Karen (Mosbeck) Vlam of Chandler, AZ.

His maternal grandmother is Mrs. Mabel Mosbeck of Red Lake Falls, paternal grandfather is Egbert Van de Streek of Grand Forks, step-grandfather is Elton Cummings and step-great-grandmother is Mrs. Amy Jorde, both of Thief River Falls. He also has four aunts in Thief River Falls — Mrs. Dorothy Morehouse, Mrs. Barbara Nelson, Mrs. Mildred Robinson and Mrs. Phyllis Mosbeck.

Bruce was diagnosed as having leukemia June 9 at St. Luke's hospital in Fargo and was hospitalized from that time through late August, under-going chemo therapy to get the cancer into remission. That has been accomplished but more chemo therapy will be given before he leaves for Seattle. The hospitalization there is projected to be from 60 to 114 days.

Doctors have told the family that the bone marrow transplant appears to be the only hope for a cure. Harold will be the donor and expects to have to stay in Seattle for a minimum of 60 days with his son. This will require renting an apartment and leaving his automotive wrecking business at Perham. Marcheta will also leave her beauty shop business with another operator to accompany them to Seattle for the early part of their stay.

The transplant will be done at Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research center, 1124 Columbia Street, Seattle, WA 98104. After October 24 mail can be addressed to Bruce there.

"We hope some of the many good people in this community will turn out for the spaghetti supper and help this family in its time of need," Melin added. "We will appreciate it and we know the family will be grateful for the assistance."

City Adopts 1984 Levy Of $994,990 Tues.

portance of the entrance to the city, recommending that (what was then) Johnson Street be widened and that they "not look too short" in planning the construction. Hagen noted the importance of looking far enough into the future again, noting that the roadway "will be there another 35 years."

Although the plan is basically the same as previously reviewed, Hagen emphasized that public input had been carefully considered by MnDOT engineers in considering alternatives to proposed changes. Previous attempts to resurface the street had failed due to improper soil conditions under the concrete, and the state is now convinced that total reconstruction is the only way to go. That will involve total removal of the concrete and a subcut of three feet to lay in a proper base.

Street will be widened to a full four lanes between Kendall Avenue and Atlantic Avenue, although the westbound right lane will be designated for right turns only. This will remove on street parking in the area of the Chamber of Commerce office, and Mayor Bob Carlson noted this would require relocation of the bus stop there.

Of major concern in that area is the closing of Red Lake Boulevard's access to Third Street. Although some opposition to the closing was expressed, primarily by Alderman Penning.

Hagen noted that MnDOT headquarters had considered and rejected several proposed alternatives to the closing due to the safety hazard presented by proximity to Davis Avenue. He noted that MnDOT would not approve the overall plan without the closing of the street. Traffic on Red Lake Boulevard will have to gain access to Third Street by utilizing either Fourth or Fifth Streets to go over to Davis Avenue. Increased use of Davis Avenue may qualify the street for installation of traffic signals at a later date, he said.

Another area of major concern is the closing of Pine Avenue accesses to Third Street. Residents of that street on the north side of the highway would be given access to the highway by constructing an access road across from Spruce Avenue. This would require purchase of property owned by Mark Skogerboe. He noted that while the state would purchase the property, cost of street construction would have to be shared with the city, although the state would assume a large portion of the expense since they were requiring the change. He noted that an alternative plan to utilize Birch Lane for access would require closing of Maple Avenue on the north side and redirecting the south side to meet Third Street across from Birch.

Although the divided area of the highway will be widened by extending the curb back about two feet on each side and in the median, he noted that most trees would be left in place, due to opposition to removal expressed at public hearings. Although the trees will be stressed by probable root damage, he said, "I think they're worth an attempt to save them." Actual traffic lanes will not change location under the plan, but curbs will be set back.

Concern was also expressed over problems caused by the closure of the Third Street bridge while it is resurfaced and widened to four lanes. Major problem is the obstruction of ambulances or fire department vehicles which would be unable to cross the river at any other location if a train had the tracks blocked. Hagen noted that the bridge project could be done half-at-a-time, but added that would probably require two years to complete. He noted that the state was willing to share expenses necessary to maintain emergency service, whether it involved temporary housing for emergency vehicles on the other side of the river or the two stage construction.

Possibility of constructing a railroad underpass at Greenwood Avenue was discussed. Hagen estimated that the state would be willing to pick up the share of construction costs which would be equivalent to extra costs of constructing the Third Street bridge in two stages. This was estimated to cost anywhere between 0 and $100,000.

Total estimated cost of the entire project was estimated at $1.6 million. City cost is estimated at $225,000 to $250,000, based on 100 per cent of costs for sidewalks, utilities and storm sewer work, except where state plans require changes, in which case the state will share expenses on a percentage basis.

Other business conducted by the council included:

— Approval of free ice time for a law enforcement hockey team to conduct a benefit game to fund extra curricular school activities;

— Denial of a request to cut wood at the New Solum dumpsite made by Vernon Rooker, Route 2;

— Acceptance of the assessment roll for the downtown alley improvement project, and setting of the assessment hearing for 8 p.m. November 8;

— Setting of a landing fee for Air Freight Express, at $5 per landing with a minimum of $10 per day;

— Approving membership in a newly formed Red River Valley Mayors and Reeves Association, intended to consider the quality of water in the Red River Valley;

— Approval of William Atwater as a new police officer, effective October 15, on a one year probationary basis.

— Granting permission for the Minnesota pollution control agency to drill test wells on the old dump site.

— Noted that Mark Dayton would be in town on Thursday to discuss the city's designation as an enterprise zone.

education, 84 of whom are on campus students. Many are taking only a course or two while others are carrying full credit loads. Full-time equivalency of the 292 students is 59 when the credits carried are totaled and divided by 15.

"The traditional students, those who graduated from high school the previous year, have always been in a school situation," Novellino said. "Those who have been out of school for awhile often have fears about how they will be accepted or how they can handle a course of study or that they will somehow be different from other students. We feel those fears are groundless, but we know they are common."

"There is no generation gap at Northland," Howe insists, "but it takes awhile to come to that realization yourself. The senior citizens taking credit courses are accepted and treated the same by instructors and other students as anyone else."

One of the areas expected to be explored by the group in cooperation with the college administration is short-term child care. There are a number of single parents who have a need for a place to leave a child for an hour or two while attending class several days a week. Availability of such care would increase the possibility of the parent returning to school. Thoughts are presently being discussed and alternatives explored to find the best way to meet such a need, Novellino said.

Howe emphasized that the program is intended to be separate from the Adults Continuing Education (ACE) program at the college. Some people can be associated with both, but the purposes are different.

"One of the biggest helps is just to find out that there are others who share your feelings and that you're not the only one," Howe said. "It's a relief when you comment on an emotion and someone says, 'You mean you feel that way, too?' You find out there really are people out there like you and you aren't alone. Believe me, that's a real help and comfort."

Congressman Airs Problems With Ontario

Congressman Arlan Stangeland discussed tourism problems on the Minnesota-Canadian border and his proposal for an extended shipping season on the Upper Great Lakes with 30 legislators from the Province of Ontario last Wednesday night.

"These are frank discussions about problems and jobs on both sides of the border," Congressman Stangeland said of his meeting with members of the legislative assembly.

"These are frank discussions about problems and jobs on both sides of the border," Congressman Stangeland said of his meeting with members of the legislative assembly.

Recent disputes over sports fishing and hunting in border areas were of immediate concern. During the past two years, Ontario has proposed several regulations that would restrict Minnesota resorters and vacationers.

"Ontario operates on a parliamentary system, so by talking with these legislators, I believe I made an impact on their executive branch," Stangeland said.

As a senior member of the U.S.-Canadian interparliamentary group, Stangeland has been working with Canadian federal parliament member John Reid of Kenora-Rainy River. Wednesday night, Stangeland spoke with Pat Reid, a member of Ontario's provincial parliament from Rainy River and brother of John Reid.

"We agreed that if vacationers frequently hear about problems on our borders, resorters on both sides will lose tourist dollars and jobs," Congressman Stangeland said. "Solutions to this continuing pattern of harassment can only come through dialogue between Ontario, Minnesota and the U.S. and Canadian federal governments."

Congressman Stangeland also spoke with various members of the Ontario parliament about his proposal for an extended shipping season on the Upper Great Lakes. Some members expressed concern while others were supportive of the plan, the congressman said.

"Although the waters from Duluth to Erie are mostly U.S. waters, I wanted to consult with them about the situation," Congressman Stangeland added. "Several locks and rivers connecting the Upper Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence Seaway are joint U.S.-Canadian waters."

Max Anderson Featured In UND Exhibit

Scene and costume designs of playwright Maxwell Anderson's premieres will be exhibited October 13 to November 23 at the North Dakota museum of art at the University of North Dakota (UND) in Grand Forks.

Exhibit opening at 7 p.m. Thursday coincides with a two-day conference about one of America's great playwrights, his plays, the designers and the exhibit, October 14 to 15 on the UND campus.

Anderson, who graduated from UND in 1911, completed 58 plays, 33 of which opened on Broadway, and between 1923 and 1958, premiere productions of 33 Maxwell Anderson plays were performed in theatres.

More than 200 designs and supplementary material, such as programs and photographs, from the leading costume and scenic designers for three decades of the American theatre will be on exhibit.

During the series of workshops and speakers, the topics will include Maxwell Anderson's role in American Theatre, the growth of Anderson as a playwright as reflected by the exhibit, the relationship of theme and design, and changes in American theatrical design.

Convention fee is $20 for members of the Northern boundary section of the United States Institute of theatre technology (USITT), which will hold its fall meeting in conjunction with the conference. Non-members will be charged $30.

Conference is partly funded by the USITT and the Mid-America Theatre Association of the American Theatre Association. Exhibit is sponsored by the North Dakota Humanities Council, the UND department of theatre arts, the North Dakota Museum of Art and the UND Centennial Committee.

Fetal Alcohol Syndrome To Get Attention

Calling immediate attention to one of the three leading causes of birth defects and accompanying mental retardation in the U.S., Senator Rudy Boschwitz has introduced a resolution which proclaims one week in 1983 as "National Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Awareness Week."

Fetal alcohol syndrome (FAS) is a birth defect caused by women who consume alcohol during pregnancy. According to the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism (NIAAA), FAS ranks third behind Down's syndrome and spina bifida as a cause of birth defects in newborn children.

"We have only found out in the last decade that the connection between a pregnant woman's drinking and the health of her newborn has been made," Boschwitz said. "In fact, until recently some physicians have even recommended an occasional drink to ease tension during pregnancy."

The NIAAA reports that some results of FAS include growth deficiency, poor motor development and mental retardation. Although FAS is associated with the children of mothers who are chronic alcoholics, infants still may experience "Fetal Alcohol Effects" when the mother drinks moderately. Moderate drinking has been linked with increased miscarriages and growth retardation of children.

"Because so much is unknown about FAS, the surgeon general of the United States has issued an advisory stating that pregnant women or women considering pregnancy should not drink," Boschwitz said. "This resolution will help focus attention on the problem of drinking during pregnancy."

KAWE Public TV Manager Plans To Leave Post

Lonell Vaughn, chairman of the board of trustees of Northern Minnesota Public Television, Inc. has announced the resignation of Don Checots, station manager of KAWE-TV, effective November 1.

Checots has been appointed executive director and general manager of WNIT-TV, the public television station serving South Bend, Indiana, and southern Michigan.

In making the announcement, Vaughn said, "we are deeply indebted to Don for his enthusiasm and dedication to this station. His direction has brought Channel 9 national recognition and awards in underwriting, graphics and design, and community awareness. He has played a key role in establishing the long-term vitality of KAWE."

Checots has KAWE-TV's first manager, accepting the position in July, 1979, while the station was still under construction. During his first year he secured major grant support to complete funding of the station's studio and production facilities, which led to the station sign-on, June 1, 1980.

Checots said that he felt his major accomplishment at the station has been to provide a sound operating environment which allowed Channel 9 to grow. Full time staff has increased from four to seventeen, in large part due to a membership increase from 300 charter members to 2,300 members currently.

Board of trustees is forming a committee to undertake a nationwide search for a successor.

DIRECTOR of the Glenn Miller orchestra which will appear in Thief River Falls Thursday evening is Larry O'Brien. He was playing trombone at the Dunes hotel "Casino de Paris" orchestra in Las Vegas when the Miller organization asked him to become the director. He succeeded such former directors as Ray McKinley, Buddy DeFranco, Peanuts Hucko, Buddy Morrow and Jimmy Henderson, and played in the band under McKinley in the 1960's. The concert at 8 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium is the first in the current Thief River Falls concert association series and admission is by season membership only.

O'Brien Directs The Miller Band

When the Glenn Miller orchestra opens the 1983-84 season for the Thief River Falls concert association Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium, it will be under the direction of Larry O'Brien. Admission to the concert is by season membership only.

O'Brien is the sixth director of the band since Glenn Miller himself was lost on a plane which took off from England for France on Dec. 15, 1944, and has never been found. The others were Ray McKinley — who directed the band when O'Brien was a member of its trombone section — Buddy DeFranco, Peanuts Hucko, Buddy Morrow and Jimmy Henderson.

Director of the band since June 1, 1981, O'Brien had previously played with Sammy Kaye, Buddy Morrow, Ralph Marterie, Tommy Dorsey (when Sam Donahue was the leader and O'Brien was the featured soloist, playing all the Tommy Dorsey solos) and as the leader of a group backing Frank Sinatra Jr. in live appearances, recordings and television shows.

"I'm only somewhat amazed about the Miller mystique," O'Brien says. "It's many-faceted. For one thing, Glenn gave up a lucrative band business when he was at his zenith to join the service — when he didn't have to. He was immensely popular when he went into service. The band had sold more records in a year than I think Elvis or the Beatles ever did in a year."

He said it is a combination of this with other factors and the Miller sound itself that keeps the Miller music and name alive. The band appearing here is the only band authorized to carry the Glenn Miller name and play Miller's original arrangements.

Regarding the Miller sound, O'Brien says: "It seems that good things just don't ever die. Rather, they age gracefully and mellow with the years. If anything, I honestly think the authentic Glenn Miller music today is more popular with more people than ever before."

Set Diabetes Month During November

November is National diabetes month and the Minnesota affiliate of the American diabetes association urges you to protect yourself against the toll of diabetes. More than 11 million Americans have diabetes and half of them are unaware they have this serious disease. If you are over 40, overweight and have blood relatives with diabetes, you are in the high risk group.

Warning signs of diabetes include frequent urination; unusual thirst; easy tiring; blurred vision; increased appetite; slow healing of cuts and tingling, numbness or pain in the legs, feet or fingers. Even if you do not have these symptoms, you may still have the disease.

Free blood tests are being offered throughout Minnesota to help detect those people with diabetes. Call the local chapter of the American diabetes association to find out where you can be tested. Call (612) 920-6796 for more information.

UND Develops New Aerospace Law Program

University of North Dakota has developed a new program of research and education in air transportation law. Symbolic of this new commitment is the establishment of the Aerospace law program at the University of North Dakota (UND school of law. Announcement was made recently by W. Jeremy Davis, dean of the law school and John D. Odegard, director of the center for aerospace sciences.

There has been a transportation law program at the UND school of law since 1974, sponsored by the Upper Great Plains transportation institute of North Dakota state university (UGPTI). This program has involved a UND faculty research associate in transportation law and a student who has completed special courses in transportation law and assisted in transportation research.

In 1982, the governor's task force recommended the scaling down of UGPTI and divesting it of its research programs other than transportation economics. Thus, the transportation institute ended its support of this program in June of 1983. Center for aerospace sciences and the UND school of law have agreed to support the program in order to continue the University of North Dakota's involvement with transportation law research, now with an emphasis on air and space law.

According to Odegard, the new program will allow students interested in aviation and airport management to have access to law related courses and special seminars dealing with the legal consequences of aircraft manufacturing, airline operations and international aviation. This is part of the center's effort to include under one roof courses which will touch and concern the field of aerospace sciences. It will also enable the center to engage in legal research on air and space law topics.

Professor William E. Thoma, who has directed the transportation law program at UND for nine years, was named director of the new aerospace law program. Paul Kerian of Grand Forks has been selected the first aerospace law fellow.

Senate Extends FSC Program For 18 Months

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has joined with his Senate colleagues in extending the federal supplemental compensation (FSC) program for an additional 18 months.

FSC is a program enacted in 1982 to meet the severe unemployment demands of a souring economy. Since then the program was extended in December of 1982 and again in March of 1983. Without reauthorization it would have stopped on September 30.

"We need to take a good long look at the overall unemployment compensation program," Boschwitz said. "However, until that occurs we need to do something to fill the gap. That's why I firmly believe that we should extend FSC.

"FSC has assisted over 41,000 Minnesotans in the past year alone, and without this extension, thousands of Minnesotans will face falling off the unemployment compensation rolls," he added.

Boschwitz said the economy is clearly in the midst of a recovery — unemployment is dropping. In fact, the unemployment rate in Minnesota has fallen over three full percentage points in the last nine months.

"Optimism about next year and employment opportunities is increasing," he said. "But because unemployment is a lag indicator, there still are many people — like those on Minnesota's Iron Range — who are not able to find work. And unfortunately for those on the Range, until the steel industry picks up, this problem will persist. It is people in this position that need FSC.

Boschwitz also co-sponsored as amendment to the FSC bill that wuld extend for 90 days the temporary law that permits people whose social security disability benefits have been cut to receive benefits while they are appealing the decision. Since 1981, more than 90,000 disabled people have had their benefits restored after hearings before administrative judges.

"The continuation of benefits pending appeal protects disabled people from the financial hardship that many of them otherwise would endure," Boschwtiz said.

"When this law was passed last year, we had anticipated that Congress would have finished action on comprehensive legislation by October 1. However, Congress unfortunately hasn't been able to pass long-term legislaton reforming the disability program by that date," Boschwitz said.

A 90-day extension of the temporary law is designed to ensure that claimants whose benefits are terminated after October 1 — but before new legislation is enacted — are protected from a disruption in their compensation pending appeal. The December 1 limit on the extension will prompt Congress to conclude action in November on comprehensive reform.

Youth Exchange Announced By U.S. Senators

Senators Rudy Boschwitz and Dave Durenberger have announced the start of the third year of the Japan-U.S. Senate scholarship program of Youth for Understanding, a intercultural exchange program which allows each U.S. Senator to annually appoint an outstanding high school junior to spend the summer in Japan with a host family.

Each high school principal in Minnesota has been invited through a letter from the two senators to submit the name of one outstanding junior from his or her school to be considered for the two scholarships to be awarded in Minnesota. Deadline for nominations is October 25.

Under the program, funded by the government of Japan, 100 American students representing every state have the opportunity to have an overseas family living experience in Japan.

The program is funded for five years and is administered by Youth for Understanding, one of the largest and most distinguished international exchange organizations in the world. During its 32-year history, YFU has enabled nearly 100,000 high school students to have an overseas family living experience in more than 24 countries. Annually, YFU arranges about 650 exchanges between Japan and America.

Nominees to the Japan-U.S. Senate scholarship program must have a minimum 3.2 grade average on a four-point scale, exhibit leadership in school and community activities and have the ability to adapt to a new or unusual environment.

From the nominees in each state, a team of volunteers at YFU selects the top 12 students as semifinalists. These semifinalists are then interviewed by a state selection committee which chooses the two scholarship recipients to be named by the Senators. The committee is composed of five persons: an appointee from each of the two Senate offices, a representative of the National Association of Secondary School Principals, a representative of the National Council for the Social Studies, and a representative of YFU.

Besides spending eight weeks in Japan with a host family, the scholarship recipients will come to Washington to meet with their Senators and the Japanese Ambassador. The predeparture orientation will include several days of training in Japanese language and culture. Upon their return, students are eligible to attend a "returnee weekend" during the fall of 1984.

For more information, contact Youth for Understanding, 3501 Newark Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20016, or call toll free 1-800-424-3091.

Roseau Man Is Named As Teacher Of The Year

Donald R. Miller, 40, who teaches children with learning disabilities in Roseau high school, was named Minnesota teacher of the year during a luncheon sponsored last week by the Minnesota Education association.

The 22 judges, who represent a wide variety of interests and pursuits, say they were impressed by Miller's recognized expertise in the fields of science and mechanics.

A 10-year-old student of Miller's stated: "Mr. Miller keeps his class interesting so it was fun to go there. He treats his students like persons. His rules were simple: You talk, he listens, but when he talks, you listen."

Miller, a Roseau native, did not stray far, obtaining his bachelor of science degree from Bemidji state college (now university) in 1966 and his mater's degree from the University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, in 1970. He also has studied learning disabled, special needs and computer science, all at Bemidji.

He began his teaching career in 1966 as a science teacher in the Warren public schools and in 1967 joined the Osseo public schools as a science teacher. During 1972-73 he also taught astronomy in North Hennepin junior college, Brooklyn Park. He joined the Roseau faculty in 1973 as a Title I teacher and in 1975-77 taught special needs at the North Star vocational school in Roseau. From 1977 to the present, he has taught learning disabled.

Miller has coached gymnastics, football and hockey and is active in community, professional and school affairs.

In community activities he has been a participant or member in public seminars on solar heat and astronomy, a member of the Roseau county energy fair board, a trustee and building committee member of the Roseau Evangelical Covenant church (where he also teaches Sunday school for secondary school students and adults), a photo contest judge (he also has won two photo contests) and secretary of the county DFL.

In professional activities he belongs to The Unified Teaching Profession, having been president of the Roseau Teachers association, and has headed the Roseau high school special services department and served on the high school faculty advisory committee and planning, evaluating and reporting committee.

He has been yearbook advisor and photographer, member of science curriculum committees, advisor to the junior and senior classes, teacher of gifted elementary students and a member of the Title I advisory council.

Miller's philosophy of teaching states:

"It is with awe and respect that I look upon a student who has just mastered a skill or totally assimilated a new idea, for we now have a new person. . . My responsibility as a teacher is to have 'new people' leave my classroom every day. These 'new people' are created through successful classroom experiences. I belive the key to this success is the instructional methods utilized by the teacher.

"A student's needs are not limited to academics and learning alone. It is essential that parents and community service people be actively involved in a student's education program. As a teacher, I find that the utilization of all resources available to me, whether they be those of my immediate colleagues or those provided through our professional association and its staff, aid in the development of a successful program.

"I believe that the desire to learn is an inherent and beautiful trait, but it is a very fragile one. As an educator, I attempt to keep this in mind at all times."

His minister, Rev. Richard Krasky, states that, "Don's concern for young people stands out. He is there to help and he understands, not in a placating way, but with real empathy, sympathy, and sometimes tough love. Don is honest and he is appreciated for that."

His colleague (and sister), Betty Johnson, says, "He really listens to kids, showing respect for them and for their thoughts and opinions."

His colleague, Carl J. Macioce, writes, "I often think of his family's great fortune to have Don as a father and teacher."

His school board chairman, Carson Hedlund, adds, "Don Miller is the most imaginative, innovative individual that I have ever met. I have served on the Roseau school board for the past eight years and have known Don for 23 years and his curiosity for finding more efficient ways for doing things coupled with a very 'down-to-earth' common sense approach has produced many exciting experiences not only for him and his friends, but also the administration and faculty that have had the privilege to work with him as he serves the students of School District 682."

Mrs. Roy Losse notes, ". . . . two of my children have been his pupils. I have a daughter in his classes at the present time. One of my sons had Don Miller as a teacher a few years ago, and with help and encouragement from Miller he became more interested in his studies and has gone on to college and he's doing well. As a parent, I feel that Roseau has had a better school system because Miller is a faculty member."

A former student, Ricky G. Kvien, said, "Don is a goal-oriented person and emphasizes this a lot in his teaching and in his students' learning. I feel Don's teaching techniques and demonstrations were the best learning tool I ever received when I was a student. His ways of teaching enable the students to get a better grasp on what he feels the students would benefit from the most. I truly believe, with or without an award, Don is teacher of the year and is very worthy of such a title."

CPAs Disclose Retirement Tax Breaks

Planning for a financially secure retirement is no easy task. But if you are covered by a pension plan and own a home, there are some once-in-a-lifetime tax breaks available, says the Minnesota Society of Certified Public Accountants (CPAs), that could have considerable impact on your future.

Some employer pension plans allow you to withdraw the entire amount of your pension in a lump sum rather than receive monthly allotment checks spanning your retirement years. If you want venture capital to set up a small business, or you want to invest the funds on your own for increased earnings, a lump payment may present a profitable opportunity.

What's the good of a sudden bonanza, you might ask, if half of it would be scooped up by the IRS? But you won't lose it! That's its biggest advantage. You can drastically reduce the tax with ten-year averaging that lets you pay taxes on the lump sum settlement as if you had received it over a ten-year period. This is a one time only tax benefit, but it has a substantial impact.

You'll need to consult your tax advisor, of course, but basically, this is how it works. Let's say you cash in your pension and receive a lump sum of $200,000. Divide that by ten, and you've got $20,000 a year for 10 years. That's how the money will be taxed. Tax under this kind of averaging is based on the single person's rate, even if married.

You have to weigh the advantages carefully against the disadvantages, CPAs warn. Check with your pension fund to find out what rights and benefits you trade off when you take your pension in a lump sum. Naturally, it's anybody's guess how long you'll live, so by taking a lump sum you could end up receiving less money than if the pension were paid out in monthly increments over the next twenty years. In addition, you will probably lose survivor benefits.

Another option with a lump sum pension payment is to roll it over into your individual retirement account (IRA) or certain other retirement arrangements if you think it would earn more that way. If you roll over your pension money within 60 days of receiving it, you won't owe any taxes until you actually withdraw the money from your retirement accounts, CPAs note.

Advantage of rolling over your pension money into a retirement account is that you'll have control over the money. You won't be tied to an established payment schedule set up by the pension plan. You can then withdraw as much from your account as you like, whenever you like, to use for investments or other financial needs.

If you're between 59 and a half and 70 and a half, you can make withdrawals from your IRA or Keogh retirement plan at any time while continuing to make contributions to these accounts. That option can be very useful in certain circumstances, CPAs say.

Second one-time tax break applies to homeowners over 55 and could provide you with another lump sum of capital to invest or to add to your cashed-in pension. If you sell the house which has been your primary residence for three of the last five years, you won't have to pay tax on the first $125,000 of your capital gain.

Don't forget to include the costs of improvements you put into the property when you compute the basis of the house. For instance, if you paid $40,000 for a house twenty years ago and spent another $30,000 on improvements such as a garage or central air conditioning, the basis of the house is now $70,000. You can sell the house for up to $195,000 (the $70,000 base plus $125,000 profit) without any tax liability.

There are many considerations in your tax planning during retirement years, CPAs say. Not the least of these is the tax on social security benefits beginning in 1984. Generally, you'll be taxed if your benefits bring your total income over $25,000 a year if you're single, and $32,000 if you're married and filing jointly. However, if your income will exceed these figures, you might lower that annual figure by making contributions to your IRA or Keogh account.

Estate Plans Also Apply To Middle Class

When congress eased the estate tax burden in 1981, middle-income people were lulled into a false sense of security about the need for estate planning. They presumed everything would ultimately go to their spouse, tax-free. And that's true. There is an unlimited marital deduction now, but that's only part of the picture says the Minnesota Society of certified public accountants (CPAs).

If your spouse dies with you, or even after you, your children could lose much of their inheritance because they might have to cash in your assets to pay the taxes. And if your spouse remarries, then somebody else, or somebody else's children, could inherit your estate. If you own a business, there's an even greater need to take estate planning seriously.

Add up your assets. A home, a car, life insurance, a few investments, a pension. This could add up to more than $550,000, the amount your heirs could have tax-free if you and your spouse died this year.

Unlimited "marital deduction" permits a spouse to inherit everything tax-free. In addition, you can leave a certain amount tax-free to other heirs, under a provision known as the "unified credit equivalent." Worth $275,000 this year, it rises to $325,000 next year, and to $600,000 in 1987.

Tax provisions are not so generous with the surviving spouse, however. If you were to die this year, and leave an estate of $700,000, your spouse would inherit it free of federal estate taxes. Then, when your spouse dies, he or she will not benefit from the unlimited marital deducation (unless there is a remarriage). That means that your spouse's estate will have to pay a hefty tax before your children and other heirs can collect. On a $700,000 estate, $375,000 would be taxed if your spouse dies next year.

There are ways to reduce that tax, CPAs say. First, take advantage of the unified credit equivalent and leave $275,000 of your estate to heirs other than your spouse. This will reduce your spouse's estate to $425,000 and he or she can claim the $275,000 estate tax credit, leaving only $150,000 to be taxed.

If you have a large estate, you may want to reduce its size by giving part of it away now to reduce the tax burden for your heirs when you die. Tax-free gifts are permitted up to $10,000 a year ($20,000 jointly with your spouse) per recipient. So, if you want three children to benefit immediately from your assets, you and your spouse can give them $60,000 a year.

Drawback, of course, is that you surrender control over the money.

Ownership of assets is another important consideration, CPAs point out, because everything in your estate is taxed at current market value. Let's say you and your spouse bought a house years ago for $40,000 and it's worth $80,000 when you die. Your spouse would have to pay a tax on a $20,000 capital gain if the house is sold after you die, but there would be no such tax if you owned the house alone.

Here's what happens: The house passes into your estate at its current value so your half is worth $40,000, while your spouse's half, for tax purposes, is still worth half the original cost, or $20,000. That means your spouse will inherit a house valued at $60,000. When he or she sells the house at current value of $80,000, there will be a captial gain of $20,000.

However, if your spouse had no ownership in the house, and inherited it from you at its current value of $80,000 — and then sold it at that price, there would be no capital gain.

If you own a business, you'll probably want to arrange for the business to remain with your heirs at its full value. You can avoid taxes by transferring control of portions of the business. In addition, heirs may be able to defer payment of estate taxes on your business for 14 years. Without proper planning, however, heirs may be forced to sell the business to cover the taxes.

Careful planning with your tax advisor and attorney is essential if you want to protect your heirs from financial burdens you haven't intended.

Farm Prices Index Rises From August

Mid-September index of prices received by Minnesota farmers increased two per cent from August and was 11 per cent above a year ago, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Prices were up from the previous month for all crops except potatoes.

Prices for most meat animals were down; calves, lambs, milk, turkeys, eggs and wool were up. The average price received by farmers for corn is the highest since December of 1974; soybeans since June of 1977; barley since June of 1981; dry edible beans since May of 1981; sunflowers since monthly prices began in October of 1979. The average price received for steers and heifers is the lowest since August of 1978.

Crops index rose five per cent to 151 during the month. This was 45 per cent above the index a year earlier. The mid-September prices and the changes from last month are; All wheat, $3.88 per bushel, was up five cents from the revised August estimate; corn, $3.18 per bushel, up four cents; oats, $1.56 per bushel, up 17 cents; barley, $2.42 per bushel, up 20 cents; soybeans, $8.28 per bushel, up 84 cents; flaxseed, $6.97 per bushel, up 57 cents.

Potatoes averaged $7 per hundredweight for all grades, down $1. All hay was up $1 per ton to $66; alfalfa hay at $70 per ton was up $1 and other hay at $49 per ton was up $5. All sunflowers at $14.40 per hundredweight were up $1.30 from the revised August price. Dry edible beans were up $1.10 to $26 per hundredweight.

Meat animal index at 128 was down four per cent from last month and 18 per cent below a year ago. All hogs at $44.50 per hundredweight were down $3 from a month earlier. Beef cattle averaged $45.20 per hundredweight, down $1.90. Calves were up $3 from $61.30 per hundredweight. Sheep brought $11.60 per hundredweight, down $2.40. Lambs were up $1.80 to $51.00.

Dairy index rose one per cent during the month to 145. This was one per cent below the index last year. The preliminary milk price at $12.80 per hundredweight was up 19 cents from the revised August price.

Poultry and egg index at 111 was 10 per cent above last month but four per cent below a year ago. Turkeys were 35 cents per pound liveweight, up four cents from a month earlier. Table markeet eggs brought 52 cents per dozen for all grades in mid-September, up three cents from mid-August and seven cents above a year earlier.

Hoyum Joins BSU Staff In Recruitment

Loren Hoyum has joined the staff of the Bemidji state university center for extended learning as programmer advisor, serving non-traditional students, making contacts with and recruiting these students, promoting various courses and assessing needs for further programs.

Non-traditional students are those who have had a break in their educational careers and wish to resume their education. The options available to these students include evening programs, regular daytime classes, television courses, teleconference classes, extension classes and home study programs.

A part of Hoyum's responsibilities is traveling throughout northern Minnesota making contacts with people at schools, businesses and organizations. He will help set up inservice education in these areas through BSU extension classes.

Educational opportunities are presented to students in other areas through television and teleconference courses. A television course is broadcast to students in their own homes through the use of public T.V. Teleconference classes are directed to another city over the telephone. The sites for BSU's teleconference network are Thief River Falls, International Falls, Ely, Virginia, Hibbing, Grand Rapids, Brainerd, and Wadena.

The Times — A Great Gift!

Two Planets Are Visible In Morning Skies

October sky features celestial objects both near and far, but two of the nearest ones — the planets Venus and Mercury — will only be visible to early bird stargazers.

Venus is a "morning star" this month. It reaches its greatest brightness on the first and will be easily visible all month as the brightest object in the eastern sky before dawn.

Also on the first, Mercury reaches its greatest angular distance from the sun, making the planet easier to spot than when its angular distance is less, as seen from Earth. It can be found by looking directly east about 43 minutes before sunrise. Mercury will be the bright object just a little above the horizon. By mid-month it will be difficult to see, as it rises later and later in the morning sky.

Almost directly east between 9 and 10 p.m. is the constellation Taurus, which contains the star clusters known as the Pleiades and the Hyades. Hyades is the V-shaped group of stars just above the bright yellow-orange star Aldebaran, the brightest star in Taurus. It is an example of a true star cluster — a physical grouping of stars in our galaxy.

Pleiades is the tight grouping of stars higher in the sky. On a dark night about half a dozen stars can be seen by the naked eye. Binoculars will reveal many dozen stars in this beautiful cluster.

Famous double-cluster in the constellation Perseus can be seen by looking just to the east of the W-shaped constellation Cassiopeia, which is almost directly overhead at 10 p.m. This pair of clusters is 7,000 light-years away, and requires binoculars or a small telescope to see well.

The brightest star in Perseus is surrounded by a large star cluster nearly as big as the Hyades. This cluster is visible to the naked eye and a real splendor through binoculars.

Our Milky Way galaxy is studded with thousands of these clusters. Study of star clusters helps astronomers gain an understanding of the internal structure of stars and the processes by which they age. The aging of stars is governed by physical laws, and includes predictable changes in luminosity, color, temperature and other physical characteristics.

Stars belonging to a cluster are all born together, but some are more massive than others. Larger stars tend to be brighter and bluer at first, and to age faster. Thus, a look at a cluster shows a family of stars of the same age but with each at a different stage in its life.

How much each star has changed or evolved tells us the age of each cluster. For example, the Hyades are about 600 million years old, but the Pleiades were born a mere 50 million years ago.

Seek To Halt Repeal Of Law On Contracts

Senator Rudy Boschwitz today joined Indiana Senator Richard Lugar in attempting to stop an effort to repeal contract sanctity law passed last year.

Contract sanctity is a law originally cosponsored by Boschwitz that prevents the President from restricting agricultural exports on already agreed-upon sales.

"There is a movement to get rid of it because it deals solely with agriculture," Boschwitz said. "Some Senators claim it has been replaced by the export administration bill, which has in it contract protection for all exports. But the case clearly isn't that simple."

In a letter to follow Senators, lobbying against the repeal of contract sanctity, Boschwitz and Lugar said.

+S. 979 (the export administration act) fails to protect valid export contracts during short supply situations, whereas the contract sanctity law does provide such protection. Given the current tight supply of many farm goods as a result of this summer's drought, a repeal of short supply protections would produce a lack of confidence throughout our international trading markets. Our foreign customers would be forced to seek alternative suppliers in order to assure delivery of vital food supplies.

+The Export administration act must be reauthorized frequently. Throughout each reauthorization process, our foreign customers will be reluctant to buy U.S. farm goods until they know whether or not contract sanctity provisions prevail in the new reauthorization legislation. The contract sanctity law, on the other hand, is part of a permanent agriculture law that does not require ongoing renewal.

+ While there is need for debate on contract protections for nonagricultural goods, it is unwise for the Senate to vote to repeal a successful contract sanctity law in exchange for proposed legislation that may or may not be enacted into law.

"American farmers are finally beginning to recover from the devastating effects of prior grain embargoes," the Senators said. "Senators undoubtedly are well aware of the lasting damage to the farm economy caused by the 1980 Russian grain embargo."

Following announcement of that embargo, the government prohibited delivery of 18.3 million metric tons of previously contracted grain shipments to the Soviet Union. A study by Schnittker Associates estimated the cost of this action as follows:

+ A loss of $11.4 billion in output of goods and services.

+ Reduced employment equivalent to 310,000 workers.

+ A reduction in personal income of $3.1 billion.

Foreign exporters gained a major new market in the Soviet Union, and Soviet troops still remain in Afghanistan, the Senators said.

"U.S. trade negotiators have just completed successful negotiation of a new long term grain agreement with the Soviet Union — an agreement that will help bring strength to our farms and reduce unemployment in our cities," they said. "U.S. Trade Ambassador William Brock indicated publicly that the contract sanctity law was a key factor in securing a new grain pact with the Soviet Union.

"Two in five crop acres in this country go for export. Without a healthy export economy, the American farm sector will continue to be in poor shape. We must pursue farm exports in a highly competitive world market, a market in which consistency and reliability are major factors in securing foreign business. Nations which import food simply cannot afford to take chances with uncertain supplies.

"We do not believe that the Senate should revoke the commitment to contract sanctity which it made less than one year ago. To do so would indicate a diminished commitment to reliable export supplies, a greater market share for other grain exporting nations, and fewer U.S. farm exports — with no foreign policy benefit.

"The motivation behind the export administration act is to enhance our competitive position in international markets. No action by the Senate could be more contrary to this goal than the repealing of our contract sanctity law for agricultural products. We hope you will join with us in strongly opposing this amendment."

Northland-Mesabi Match-Up

Maybe it wasn't the best football game in the world, and maybe there weren't a whole lot of paying customers on hand to watch it, but coaches John Helley of Northland and Pepper Lysaker of Mesabi emphasized the fact that Saturday's community college football game achieved its goal — allowing local kids a chance to play.

Mesabi had 28 players dressed for the game, with the roster of the Virginia-based school staffed by mostly Iron Range high school products. A couple were from out-of-state — Wisconsin and Ontario.

Northland was in a similar situation with 27 players in uniform, a good number of them from the Thief River Falls northwestern Minnesota area. Out-of-staters came from North Dakota and Michigan.

"This was a good community college football game with local kids," stressed Lysaker. "It was a fun game. It was a clean, well-played game."

Even in defeat, Helley echoed similar thoughts. "We lost, but the kids enjoyed playing the game. They use local kids and so do we. That's the way it should be."

TRF Players Watch USA-Japanese Match

Forty-nine Thief River Falls volleyball fans were in the Twin Cities Monday to watch the United States vs. Japan women's national volleyball team match at the Met Sports Center.

A crowd of 12,822 was on hand to see the USA squad win 15-9, 15-12, 15-9.

Most of the Lincoln high school volleyball players — 39 of them — plus 10 adults, led by Prowlers' volleyball coach Helen Anderson who spearheaded the trip, made the journey for the 7:30 p.m. match that ended the seven-game Friendship Cup series, won by the USA squad 6-1.

TRF Winning Formula

Winning formula for the Lincoln high school football team is obvious. The Prowlers have won twice in six starts this fall and in the 20-0 decision over Detroit Lakes and in the 14-6 decision over Bemidji it was Thief River Falls' ground game that produced the results.

Thief River Falls rushed for 298 yards against Detroit Lakes, finishing with 343 yards worth of total offense. Runningback Tim Bottem rushed for 167 yards.

Friday night the Prowlers rushed for 201 yards against Bemidji, finishing with an even 300 yards worth of offense for the night, and Bottem rushed for 129 yards.

Those kind of figures were never reached in the four losses. In the two wins, Thief River Falls rushed for 499 yards, with Bottem netting 296. But in the four losses, Thief River Falls totaled just 191 yards rushing, with Bottem held to 129.

To win, the Prowlers, like most teams, obviously must be able to run the football.

Another key Friday was the fact the Prowlers were never forced into a punting situation. Last time Thief River Falls went through a game without punting was in a 15-14 loss at Fridley on Oct. 28, 1973. The week before it was their punting game that got the Prowlers in trouble right from the start in a 28-6 loss to Moorhead. In fact the kicking game has been a problem area for a number of years.

When you're effective at moving the football like Thief River Falls was against Bemidji, the Prowlers don't find themselves backed against their goal line where pressure on the punting team creates the problems and results in poor field position.

Miscellaneous

+ University of Minnesota-Crookston is ranked No. 1 in the Region 13 coaches football poll with 28 points, just ahead of Anoka-Ramsey with 27. The Trojans didn't hurt their position much with 56-0 rout of Itasca Saturday. Northland community college ends its 1983 season with a Sat., Oct. 29, game at UMC. The Trojans have out-scored five opponents 171-3 this fall.

Lakers Beat Prowlers 5-0 In Tennis Finals

Top-seeded Detroit Lakes defeated second-seeded Thief River Falls 5-0 Tuesday afternoon in the finals of the 1983 North Sub-Region 8AA girls high school tennis tournament played at the Grand Forks Tennis Center.

Thief River Falls reached the finals of the five-team field by beating No. 3-seeded Bemidji 4-1 Monday at the Tennis Center. That same day at the Southgate Racquet Club in Fargo, No. 4-seeded Fergus Falls handled No. 5-seeded Moorhead 4-1, with Detroit Lakes then eliminating the Otters by the same 4-1 margin to reach Monday's finals.

"We played just extremely well," said Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson after the Prowlers' semifinal win over the Lumberjills. "We were very pleased with it."

Detroit Lakes was the only team to beat Thief River Falls in nine regular season dual meet outings, winning by a 4-1 score here Sept. 24, and the Lakers did it again yesterday.

However, the final score was deceiving, reported Olson. "We got beat 5-0, but it was close all the way," he said. "It was a good tennis match. We played hard and tough, but we weren't quite as sharp as we were against Bemidji. We just didn't get the point when we needed it."

Top encounter of the final match was at No. 1 singles where the top two rated players in North Sub-Region 8AA squared off, with Detroit Lakes' Lori Berenz outlasting Thief River Falls junior Michelle Olson 6-2, 6-7, 6-3. Olson took the second game on a 9-7 tie-breaker.

"It was a super tennis match," described Whitey Olson.

Elsewhere the Prowlers lost in straight sets. LeeAnn Johnson beat senior Lawrenz 6-3, 6-4 at No. 2 singles; Chris Holland beat freshman Christy Maidment 6-1, 6-3 at No. 3 singles; Kjersten Hanson and Jan Hepola edged junior Penni Johnston and sophomore Connie Grovum 7-6 (7-4 tie-breaker), 6-3 at No. 1 doubles; while Betsy Pettit and Michelle Leegard got by eighth graders Kelly Cornell and Vickie Grovum 6-4, 6-3 at No. 2 doubles.

"Detroit Lakes played very well," pointed out Olson. "We played well, too. We couldn't ask for anything more from them. We were just a day away."

Detroit Lakes will face the South Sub-Region 8AA champion — expected to be highly rated St. Cloud Tech — in the state tournament-qualifying Region 8AA finals Monday at 4 p.m. at St. Cloud.

North Sub-Region 8AA play was to continue today (Wednesday) with the individual portion of the tournament as the five teams each entered two singles players and two doubles teams. Top four finishers in both singles and doubles will move on to the Region 8AA individual tournament Tuesday at St. Cloud where they'll be joined by South Sub-Region 8AA qualifiers for the start of the 10 a.m. matches.

North Sub-Region 8AA singles players were seeded in the following order today: 1. Lori Berenz, Detroit Lakes; 2. Michelle Olson, TRF; 3. LeeAnn Johnson, Detroit Lakes; 4. Sana McKenzie, Bemidji; 5. Kari Larson, Fergus Falls; 6. Molly Knutson, Bemidji; 7. Jenny Rose, Fergus Falls; 8. Kim Lawrenz, TRF; 9. Vickie Gunhus, Moorhead; 10. Leiliet Laske, Moorhead.

Doubles seeding positions were: 1. Kjersten Hanson-Jan Hepola, Detroit Lakes; 2. Penni Johnston-Connie Grovum, TRF; 3. Kelly Downs-Jodi Solheim, Bemidji; 4. Jenny Hipole-Linda Lorandi, Fergus Falls; 5. Kelly Cornell-Vickie Grovum, TRF; 6. Betsy Pettit-Michelle Leegard, Detroit Lakes; 7. Kristy Hutchins-Deb Kolle, Fergus Falls; 8. BIG BULL MOOSE were among those registered this weekend during the opening of the Minnesota moose season. This party of Grand Rapids hunters collected the trophy with 43½-inch rack near Carpenter's corner west of Thief River Falls. Left to right are Phil Barr, Tom Krumrei, Tom Barr and Bill Krumrei. While this rack was massive, it was surpassed by 56, 53 and 49-inch spreads on bulls registered later. Tom Krumrei shot this bull about 7:15 a.m. Jon Cole of the Minnesota department of natural resources in Thief River Falls, said 125 moose were registered Saturday and Sunday with the ratio running nearly four-to-one of bulls to cows. Cole was assisted in the registration by Bill Berg of Grand Rapids, Kathie Hirsch of Bemidji and Arlene Johnson of Gatzke.

1:30 p.m. Northwest Division Football Game

Northland Will Be At Brainerd On Saturday

Having completed its assignments against Northeast Division foes Itasca, Vermilion, Hibbing and Mesabi over the past four weeks, the Northland community college football team will begin a string of three Northwest Division season-ending encounters with Brainerd, Fergus Falls and the University of Minnesota-Crookston Saturday at Brainerd. Kickoff for the Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) game is 1:30 p.m.

Northland coach John Helley was hoping to go into Northwest Division play with a split against the Northeast Division teams, but a 33-6 loss to Mesabi Saturday shattered those dreams. The Northmen beat Hibbing 27-6 the week before, but they lost earlier to Vermilion 35-7 and Itasca 32-15 for a 1-3 MCCC record.

Games against Northeast Division teams are worth one point in the Northwest Division standings, with the remaining three games all valued at two points. At 2-2, Helley figured the Northmen could retain some Northwest Division title hopes, although the upcoming schedule would make them a longshot at best. Now it appears they've been eliminated from the Northwest Division race even before they face a divisional foe.

Brainerd was figured to be able to offer the biggest challenge for Northwest Division power UMC. The Red Raiders opened with a 17-12 nonconference loss to highly-ranked Anoka-Ramsey, then beat Hibbing 38-0, Mesabi 23-0 and Itasca 26-15 before dropping a 16-15 decision to Northeast Division leader Vermilion last Saturday. Brainerd draws UMC next week.

UM-Crookston	4	0	4
Brainerd	3	1	3
Northland	1	3	1
Fergus Falls	1	3	1
Northeast Division	w	l	pts
Vermilion	3	1	3
Itasca	2	2	2
Mesabi	2	2	2
Hibbing	0	4	0

Results

Sat., Oct. 8 — Vermilion 16, Brainerd 15; University of Minnesota-Crookston 34, Itasca 0; Fergus Falls 45, Hibbing 0; Mesabi 33, Northland 6.

Schedule

Thurs., Oct. 13 — Itasca at Mesabi, 7:30 p.m.; Hibbing at Vermilion, 7:30 p.m.

Sat., Oct. 15 — Northland at Brainerd, 1:30 p.m.; University of Minnesota-Crookston at Fergus Falls, 1:30 p.m.

Northwest and Northeast Division champions will meet in the first round of the post-season MCCC four-team state playoffs Nov. 5. This is the first year of the four-division MCCC football alignment, replacing the two-division format in the past where the Northwest and Northeast teams, along with mis-placed Golden Valley Lutheran, were grouped into the Northern Division.

"We're out of contention, no doubt about it," admitted Helley, "but we're still looking forward to playing. Nobody is quitting. They don't have their tails between their legs. They're just going to go out and play the best they can. I haven't given up on these guys. They have a lot of athletic ability. We're going to have to go out and try to upset somebody, that's all."

Physically, Northland should be in much better shape this week. Illness and injuries took their toll on the Northmen last week, disrupting practice and forcing position changes throughout the game against Mesabi. But a neck injury suffered by center Jay Weiher and a leg injury suffered by guard Wade Hruby during the game weren't as serious as first thought, and both are expected to be back in the line-up at Brainerd.

Sophomore Bob Rockwood, the team's most versatile player, was named Northland's player of the week for his efforts against Mesabi. The Fargo product rushed for 32 yards, passed for 16, caught passes for 28, had an interception, made ten tackles on defense and punted for a 37.7-yard average.

Offensively, Rockwood shared the spotlight with another Fargo sophomore, wide receiver Todd Graalum, who totaled 131 yards in receiving and return yardage. Defensively, freshmen Steve Robinson, a linebacker from Westland, Mich., and Nathan Bukowski, a lineman from Middle River, were the leading tacklers. Robinson was credited with 16 stops, including eight solo tackles, while Bukowski had 12, five of them unassisted. Rockwood had seven solo tackles.

There was also a successful on-side kick by the Northmen that brought a smile to the face of Helley, who said the credit there was shared by freshmen Alan Melvie of Newfolden, who recovered the ball, and Brian Lundgren of New Ulm, who batted it to his teammate.

"Brainerd will be tough," warned Helley. "We're going to have to be ready to play."

Despite the record and the lost title dreams, the team's spirit remains high, according to Helley. "Brainerd's field runs from east-to-west, so we'll change our practices from north-to-south to east-to-west to get ready for them," he quipped.

Thief River Falls At Fergus Falls . . .

Prowlers' Homestand Ends On Friday Night

Five-week homestand for the Lincoln high school football team ends Friday when the Prowlers travel to Fergus Falls for a 7:30 p.m. game.

Thief River Falls has played six games this fall, and five of them have been at home. After opening the 1983 season at Grand Forks Red River, the Prowlers have hosted Detroit Lakes, Mahnomen, Breckenridge, Moorhead and Bemidji.

Following the trip to Fergus Falls, Thief River Falls closes out the schedule with games Wed., Oct. 19, at East Grand Forks, and Fri., Oct. 28, at home against Crookston.

Thief River Falls' season may or may not be completed at that point. The Prowlers are still clinging to post-season playoff hopes, but they have to sweep the Otters, Green Wave and Pirates to get there.

They faced the same situation a week ago, however, and came through in fine fashion with a surprisingly easy 14-6 homecoming win over Bemidji that put their record at 2-4. To make the playoffs, which get underway Tues., Nov. 1, the Prowlers must have a winning record and must beat both East Grand Forks and Crookston in the process.

At Fergus Falls those Thief River Falls playoff hopes will be severely challenged. The Otters were unbeaten and highly rated in the Associated Press Class AA ranking before getting blitzed by Moorhead 34-7 last Friday in a battle of area independents trying to earn post-season playoff berths much like Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston in Class A.

Fergus Falls went into that game with wins over Detroit Lakes 28-0, Alexandria 20-7, East East Grand Forks 43-6, Crookston 34-23 and Bemidji 24-8.

Thief River Falls played two of those teams, beating Detroit Lakes 20-0 and Bemidji 14-6 in a game that wasn't really as close as the score might indicate. The Prowlers lost the ball deep in Bemidji territory three times and gave Bemidji a second chance to get on the scoreboard with a defensive penalty as time expired. The Lumberjacks did score, avoiding their first shutout loss to the Prowlers since 1971.

Adding to the challenge Friday is the fact that Thief River Falls hasn't won a football game at Fergus Falls since 1973 when the current series was initiated with a 30-19 victory for the Prowlers, who also won the following year, 21-12. But the Otters have taken seven of the last eight meetings, including a 2-0 forfeit win two years ago because of a teacher's strike here.

Fergus Falls scored Friday on the opening kickoff even though Moorhead was the receiving team. The Otters' Myron Russell stripped the ball from the Spuds' Donnie Thompson and ran 20 yards for a touchdown, adding the conversion kick himself for a 7-0 lead just 10 seconds into the game.

But that was the only scoring for the Otters, who found themselves trailing 28-7 at halftime. Quarterback Steve Quenette and runningback Dave Hamlin both scored twice for the Spuds, with Hamlin rushing for 110 yards in the process. Moorhead finished with a 389-157 edge in total yards, holding the Otters' explosive Len Kretchman to just 49.

Still, Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz has plenty of respect for the Otters. "Fergus Falls has a fine football team," warned Schmitz. "They've got good size and they have a fine back in Kretchman. We can win the football game, but we can't make the mistakes and get away with them like we did against Bemidji. We stopped ourselves too many times."

There are no line-up changes anticipated this week for the Prowlers. Last week junior Roger Gonsorowski moved into the center spot when senior Todd Ortloff was nursing a leg injury suffered a week before against Moorhead, but Ortloff did retain his linebacker spot, while senior Rick Spong, finally rid of the back problems that plagued him earlier this fall, joined junior Mark Bondy as the team's cornerbacks, giving senior Mitch Semanko, the starting quarterback on offense, a rest.

Then on the first play of the fourth quarter, Fisher sprinted away from the Scots' Gerry Syverson in the bottom photo to score on a 54-yard run. Fisher ended up with 102 yards rushing in the homecoming triumph that left Plummer unbeaten at 5-0 for the year. (Photos for The Times by Alice Hofstad, Plummer).

Conference Title On Line Thursday

First place in the North Border Conference high school volleyball standings will be at stake Thursday when Marshall County Central plays Lake of the Woods at Baudette.

Both teams have lost once in conference play, and they meet each other just once this fall. It's the final North Border Conference match of the season for the Nordics, who can clinch the title with a win.

Grygla - LOW

Lake of the Woods moved into a first place North Border Conference tie with Marshall County Central Monday by virtue of an 16-8, 18-11 victory at Grygla.

Grygla, 7-5 for the year, regained the services of senior Kathy Foss, who missed the Eagles' previous start against Goodridge because of a back injury, but then turned around and lost senior Judy Verbout, the team's top setter, for the same reason.

Sophomore Kari Klamar, moved up from the junior varsity, filled in for Verbout and "played real well," reported Grygla coach Kurt Vandermeer.

Grygla will play Tri-County Thursday at Karlstad and will host Badger Monday.

Middle River — Roseau

Middle River reversed an earlier loss to Roseau Tuesday with an 18-13, 18-16 victory on the Rams' court.

Senior Jody Christofferson's strong all-round play led the Skippers, according to Middle River coach Julie Helgeson.

Middle River, 5-7, will host Warroad Thursday.

MCC - Badger

Marshall County Central overcame an upset bid by host Badger Tuesday to win 19-17, 18-6.

Badger jumped out to a 10-5 first-game lead and had a 17-13 advantage before Marshall County Central rallied for the win, with freshman Jodie Foss coming off the bench to serve the final six points for the winners.

"I guess we just weren't ready," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Julie Tunheim. "We played a little better volleyball the second game. I guess we just weren't up for it."

She admitted the Nordics were looking ahead to Thursday's North Border Conference-deciding match at Lake of the Woods.

Barb Garthus and Becky Knutson led the Nordics to their ninth win in 11 dual meet starts with five ace attacks each and combining on five blocks — three for Garthus and two for Knutson. The Nordics had a season-high seven blocks for the match.

After visiting Baudette Thursday the Nordics host Tri-County Monday.

SUCCESSFUL HUNTERS on the first morning of the Minnesota moose season were these four ladies from the Goodridge area. Left to right are Mrs. Doyle (Sue) Nelson, Mrs. Jerrold (Irene) Nelson, Mrs. David (Jan) Schwartz and Mrs. Dean (Joan) Kaushagen. Irene Nelson shot the large cow moose about 8 a.m. about a mile from the Nelson farm eight miles east and four north of Thief River Falls. The women had been encouraged by their husbands to apply for a moose permit and were among those successful in the draw. They were also among the early parties to bring in a moose for registry at the check station along highway 59 near Speed's Automotive service in Thief River Falls. About 125 moose were registered at the station Saturday and Sunday.

High School Activities Week Observed In TRF Oct. 16-23

Athletic department at Lincoln high school is asking the community of Thief River Falls to make an "extra special effort" to support the faculty and students who are involved in extra-curricular events during National Activities Week, being observed next week.

"Lincoln high school activities programs involve less than 2 per cent of the school district budget and serve as laboratory courses in physical and emotional development for the future leaders in our community," explains Thief River Falls athletic director Russ Smith.

National Activities Week is being observed in approximately 21,000 high schools across the nation Oct. 16-23.

There are three special days to be celebrated in conjunction with National Activities Week, including National Officials Day Oct. 17; National Speech and Music Day Oct. 18; and National Coaches Day Oct. 21.

United States Congress passed and President Reagan signed a resolution declaring Oct. 16-23 as National Activities Week. Governor Rudy Perpich has proclaimed those dates as High School Activities Week in Minnesota, and Mayor Bob Carlson also signed a proclamation to bring special attention to the activities in Thief River Falls:

"Whereas, the major purpose of high school activities should be an extension of the students' education and a wholesome vent for their energies and talents in other than a formal classroom setting;

Whereas, the school and community should be made aware of how students feel about the activity participation and what it has meant to them;

Whereas, the general public should be made aware of the cooperation, dedication, leadership and other personal values gained by the students involved in the school's activities;

Whereas, the men and women working in the school activities spend many hours guiding students in solving problems of school activities and everyday life;

Now, therefore, I, Bob Carlson, Mayor of the City of Thief River Falls, do hereby designate the week of Oct. 16-23, 1983 as National High School Activities Week, and do urge all citizens to reaffirm their support of school activities as a means to encourage the students involved and to show appreciation to the directors of those activities."

Lincoln high school has the following schedule of events during National Activities Week:

Mon., Oct. 17 — junior varsity football game vs. Grand Forks Red River, 7 p.m., Prowler Field.

Tues., Oct. 18 — freshman football game vs. Grand Forks Schroeder, 4:15 p.m., Prowler Field; 5 p.m. girls' swimming meet vs. Grand Forks Central, 5 p.m., Franklin pool; volleyball match vs. Moorhead, 5:15 (C squad), 6:15 (junior varsity) and 7:30 p.m. (varsity), Lincoln gymnasium.

Wed., Oct. 19 — football game at East Grand Forks, 7:30 p.m.

Dairy Supports Passed By Senate

A major reorganization of the dairy price support system, one that targets reducing the surplus, has been passed by the Senate.

The compromise seeks to cut the rising costs of the government removal program primarily through a major dairy setaside plan and aggressive marketing financing for dairy.

The dairy price support program has come under increasing fire in Congress over the past 18 months as record-setting market removals have been projected to cost the government $3 billion in fiscal year 1984.

"This can be considered a major victory for the dairy farmers," Boschwitz said. "This is not a perfect piece of legislation, but it is everything we could have reasonably expected to have gotten — and we almost didn't get this much."

He referred to two separate efforts to cut the support price across-the-board, first by Senator Daniel Moynihan (D-New York) and then by Senator Paul Hawkins (R-Florida).

"If kept small, across-the-board cuts would do nothing but increase the surplus as farmers produce more to keep their cash flow up," Boschwitz said. "And if the cuts were deep enough to have a real impact on the cost of the program, it would do it only by putting dairymen out of business.

"We aren't going to balance the CCC's checkbooks on the backs of small dairy operations and young farmers. The small operations don't have the economy-of-scale to absorb price cuts and the younger farmers often have a much higher debt load to service and similarly would be unable to absorb the cut."

Boschwitz said his plan gets at the long range surplus and thus cuts the CCC payments, but does it so it would affect everyone equally.

The plan will work like this:

(1) On Jan. 1, 1984 a paid diversion program ($10 per hundredweight) would be implemented. It would last for 15 months and be partially funded by a 50-cent "self-help" fee on all milk marketed. Farmers would contract to reduce their production by five to 30 per cent from their base. The base period would be either the 1982 marketing year (Oct. 1, 1981 to Sept. 30, 1982) or an average of 1981 and 1982 if that's more favorable to the producer. (The Secretary of Agriculture could proportionately adjust the amount of each farmer's contracted reduction if — due to too many farmers signing up — a milk shortage would result.)

(2) On Jan. 1, 1984 the price support level would be reduced from the present $13.10 to $12.60 per hundredweight. The farmer's check would be reduced by the 50-cent fee and so be $12.10.

(3) On Feb. 28, 1985 the paid diversion program and the 50-cent fee would end.

(4) On April 1, 1985 if the Secretary of Agriculture projects CCC dairy removals to be in excess of six billion pounds in 1985, the price would go to $12.10. Since the fee would end, the farmer's check would remain the same. If production is down and removals are projected to be under six billion pounds, then the price stays at $12.60 (with no fee) or higher if the Secretary chooses.

(5) On Oct. 1, 1985 if production still isn't down and CCC removals are still projected to be more than five billion pounds in the next 12 months, the Secretary would have the discretion to lower the price to $11.60 (with no fee). The Secretary could raise the price as well if conditions warranted it.

(6) There would be a mandatory 15 cents checkoff for promotion. If there is already a checkoff within a state, it would be credited against the 15 cents — but no matter how much the state promotion checkoff is, the federal checkoff for promotion would be at least a nickel.

(7) The USDA would state by separate letter (it would not be part of the law) that it is its intention to increase the "make allowance" if CCC purchases go down.

"The passage of this dairy bill is a reprieve for the dairy farmers," Boschwitz said. "It allows him to help the program get back in order before the 1985 farm bill begins its markup. If the program is in the same ill-repair it is now in at that time, I think this urban-oriented Congress will significantly cut back the program, in a way detrimental to the farmers."

Bid Rigging Is Target Of MN. DOT Computers

Sophisticated computer systems and newly established telephone hot line are among weapons being used by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) and the state attorney general's office to watch for bid rigging patterns in the highway construction industry in Minnesota.

Bid rigging is the practice of two or more contractors agreeing in advance who will be the winning bidder on a public construction project.

Although there have been no bid rigging indictments in Minnesota, the U.S. department of justice has conducted investigations in more than 20 states since the end of 1979. Nationwide this has resulted in more than 400 criminal convictions, about $50 million in fines and more than 140 jail sentences.

According to Transportation Commissioner Richard P. Braun, Mn-DOT supplies the attorney general's office with information used to develop a computer program to help track potential bid rigging patterns.

"In order not to jeopardize the program's effectiveness, we can't disclose too much about it," he said. "We can, however, safely say that it has been described as one of the most sophisticated, internally developed systems by a state and that it should prove to be a powerful deterrent against bid rigging in Minnesota."

Attorney General Hubert Humphrey III has commended Mn-DOT for its efforts to deter bid rigging and for its support of his office's computerized bid monitoring systems. He said the hotline phone number is another aid in detecting and preventing bid rigging in Minnesota. "Bid rigging is a serious crime and we want to know if anyone has information on its possible occurrance in our state." He asked that persons having information on this activity in Minnesota, call the bid rigging hotline at 612-296-2650.

Beyond the detection process, Mn-DOT has initiated several administrative procedures creating a strong, preventive program to protect the interests of the state from bid rigging in Minnesota, explained Deputy Commissioner Robert J. McDonald. Mn-DOT also complies with all federal procedures concerning bid rigging and will work with the state attorney general's office to help prosecute violators.

PROMOTIONS announced recently at Northern state bank include Delilah Schmidtgall to manager of the insurance agency and Tim Erickson as installment loan manager. How To Manage Your Money On A Fixed Income

Many older Americans, living on fixed incomes, face the problem of balancing a budget with living costs increasing. Minnesota society of certified public accountants (CPAs) has this money management advice to help ease that imbalance.

Because your financial needs change upon retirement, when you draw up a budget you must rethink your priorities. Perhaps you won't need as much life insurance, and perhaps you will need more medical insurance coverage. If your house is paid for, you are freed from monthly mortgage payments, but this may be the time when you want to spend more on travel and leisure activities.

Project your fixed expenses for a period of time, then compare that against your income for the same period. Difference is your discretionary income. With this money you can decide what your budget priorities are.

Older Americans are sometimes unaware of all the special discounts and services available. These programs could reduce your expenses considerably, CPAs say. Check with your local senior citizens center, office for the aging and other municipal organizations. Many localities offer special discounts on transportation, heating oil, property taxes, and provide such free services as household help or maintenance.

It's important to keep accurate financial records, CPAs say, because if you apply for some of these services you may be asked to prove your need or show an income tax return. But keep in mind, many municipal services are offered to older Americans, regardless of income.

Inquire about senior citizen discounts, even if they are not posted or advertised. Memberships and subscriptions are often discounted for older Americans, so are consumer goods, movies, plays and concerts.

If part of your income is interest on savings, be sure you get the best return possible no matter how modest the principal. Out of long habit, some people keep their savings in low-interest accounts, because they prefer the security of bank accounts and the easy access to cash. Ask your banker about other types of accounts to increase your earnings. Certificate of deposit or money market account could increase your earnings without tying up your money for long periods. For instance, you could earn $125 more a year if your $5,000 nest egg was earning eight per cent interest rather than five and a half. And such accounts are usually federally insured.

If you have stocks, bonds, or mutual funds, pay heed to the market. You may be able to buy or sell or transfer funds for a possible capital gain, or simply for a higher rate of return.

Many banks offer special accounts or customer services, such as financial seminars, for senior citizens with funds to invest but who are uncertain what to do.

During tax season the Minnesota accounting aid society (MAAS) offers free income tax preparation for low income people at various neighborhood centers in the Twin Cities. Volunteer preparers are professional accountants.

As a public service the Minnesota society of CPAs sponsors the public tax course, "You and Your Income Taxes," to help people fill out their own tax returns. Volunteer instructors are all CPAs experienced in preparing taxes. Two evening course is given through the community education departments of several school districts in the Twin Cities, Mankato and Rochester on January 31 and February 7. Watch your newspapers in early January and check your winter community education bulletin for further details. Only cost is a $5 materials fee.

CPAs can help you plan for a tax increase you may have to pay on social security benefits received after 1983 if your income is over $25,000 ($32,000 if you are married and file a joint return). Also, for the first time, taxes are being withheld from pension payments. If you don't want those taxes withheld, notify your pension plan administrator. You'll still have to make quarterly estimated tax payments to the government, but by avoiding the withholding you could hang onto your pension money for a little longer.

CPAs suggest that married couples share financial planning. It's important for both to be familiar with all financial details, should one spouse become incapacitated.

Check with your state CPA society for these and other services that help you with your taxes and financial planning.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Cato the older was a Roman Senator with a persistent and single-minded mission. He was convinced that the increasingly prosperous city of Carthage threatened Rome and her budding empire. To remind his fellow Romans of this danger, and to compel them to action, he ended every one of his speeches, on whatever topic, with the admonition, "Ceterum Censeo Delendam Esse Carthaginem," or "Besides, I believe, Carthage must be destroyed."

Cato's warning was eventually heeded. Carthage was razed to the ground, salt poured into its soil, and the Roman Empire secured.

The American Congress needs a modern Cato. For today we face a threat every bit as serious as the challenge Carthage posed to Rome.

That threat is the continued growth of federal spending. Unchecked, it threatens to derail the present recovery and destroy the economic future of our nation. It has already brought us deficits approaching $200 billion and it threatens worse in the future.

For despite all the noise generated by liberal politicians and bureaucrats intent on protecting their privileged status in the New Class, the bitter fact of the matter is that federal spending has not been "slashed to the bone." It has not been cut at all. Nor have we even begun to slow the rate of growth.

Federal spending now consumes 25 per cent of the Gross National Product (GNP). This is up from 21 per cent in 1979. And the annual growth rate in the constant dollars has jumped from 3.7 per cent under Jimmy Carter to 4.3 per cent in the last two years. Uncontrolled federal spending may soon be attacked by linguists as a redundancy.

Those who profit from such profligacy on the part of the federal government offer many excuses, but no action. They argue first that federal spending is up as a result of President Reagan's efforts to rebuild our nation's defenses — not because of runaway social spending. Well, two thoughts on that argument. First, Reagan's goal of increasing our commitment to defense to 7.9 per cent of GNP in 1988 is well below the nine per cent spent by Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy. Second, let's take a look at social welfare spending and see whether it has been "decimated" as some critics have charged.

The three big ticket items — Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid — have increased from $118 billion in 1980 to more than $244 billion in 1983. Almost doubled.

Housing programs have jumped from $5.3 billion to more than $9 billion. The food stamp program which cost American taxpayers $9 billion in 1980 now costs over $12 billion. Unemployment benefits have risen from $18 billion in 1980 to $36 billion today.

All told, the federal government now spends some $155 billion on welfare programs other than Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid. This is a great deal of money, and for those liberals who believe that compassion is counted out in 10s and 20s, it is a lot of compassion.

Can federal spending be controlled? You bet it can!

Michael Novak, writing in Commentary magazine, has calculated that if the $155 billion now handed out in various welfare programs were consolidated into cash grants and used to bring every non-farm poor family above the official poverty line of $9,287, it would cost between $45 billion and $75 billion. Thus, by simply insisting that welfare be directed efficiently to the poor, we could save between $80 billion and $115 billion each year.

The Grace Commission has presented Congress with some 2,236 recommendations that would save the taxpayers more than $270 billion in the next three years alone.

And billions more could be saved if the overly generous pay and pension packages now enjoyed by bureaucrats were brought into line with the private sector.

Enact the reforms stated in the above three paragraphs and the deficit disappears.

Congressmen and women can bring a halt to this madness. Their votes brought us runaway spending and their votes can end it. What is needed is congressmen with the determination of a Cato the Elder saying "no" to the special interests which clamor for every increasing funding, and reminding us of the disaster that awaits if we refuse to act.

Too Many Lawyers or Too Many Laws

First some numbers.

There are more than 612,000 lawyers in the United States — two-thirds of all the lawyers in the world.

Each year, more than 40,000 students graduate from law school.

The number of legal cases filed in District Courts has jumped 35 per cent in the last five years.

In 1981, Americans shelled out more than $30 billion in legal fees. This is more than the entire Gross National Product of Portugal. A greater sum than the entire GNP of oil-rich Kuwait.

Now, one last number. (The last, I promise.)

Japan has 10,000 lawyers.

That's right. The entire nation of Japan, with a population of over 100 million, has only 10,000 lawyers or one lawyer for every 10,000 Japanese. (You could go whole weeks and never meet one.) Yet the Japanese seem perfectly capable of running a trillion dollar economy, maintaining contract law, putting criminals in prison, writing wills and processing divorces and insurance claims. At the same time, they are running circles around us in productivity growth. (Hmmm.).

No one would argue that America could get by without the legal profession. Lawyers play a key role in defending out constitutional freedoms and preserving the rule of law. But even leaders in the legal profession are beginning to wonder whether we have gone too far. Are we too quick to sue? Are there too many lawyers, too many laws?

Derek Bok, the president of Harvard University and the former dean of Harvard Law School, suggests that the rapid growth of lawsuits creates a "massive diversion of exceptional talent into pursuits that often add little to the growth of the economy."

I would suggest three reasons for the increasing cost of litigation.

First, I don't believe the problem stems from too many lawyers, but rather, from too many laws. Over the past 20 years, Congress and the regulatory agencies have passed countless laws and regulations that create new "rights" or "entitlements" — all of which present golden opportunities for lawsuits. In addition, many of these laws are so purposely vague that their intent is hammered out in courtrooms, not in Congress. In sum, our nation is not plagued by bad or misdirected lawyers, but by countless thousands of laws and regulations that fit rather easily into one of those categories.

Second, Congress has presented a powerful incentive for lawyers to enter the courtroom, even with weak or nonexistent cases, by passing over 14 major environmental laws which allow the losers of the case to be awarded legal fees. These cases often delay economic growth and the cost of litigation is passed onto the taxpayers. It seems incredible, but these laws force the taxpayer to subsidize well paid lawyers who can make a handsome living suing to stop or slow down economic growth. Even when the case is found to be wrong, these self-appointed guardians of the "public interest" are not required to compensate the men and women their delaying tactics threw out of work but are actually paid to inflict such damage.

Third, the federal government is actually in the business of paying lawyers, through direct grants, to run around the nation starting lawsuits. The most flagrant example is the Legal Services Corporation which receives several hundred million dollars each year and admits that its lawsuits are aimed at forcing the federal, state and local governments to keep taxes and spending high.

The bottom line is that when you subsidize something you get more of it. Our government has been subsidizing lawsuits against itself and the business community, and predictably, we have seen the resulting explosion of legal costs and frivolous, time-consuming cases.

The hamburgers may not be up to snuff on the other side of the Pacific Ocean, but on this issue, I envy the Japanese.

Economic Dept. Operations Are Consolidated

Barbara Beerhalter, commissioner of the Minnesota department of economic security, recently announced a major reorganization of the department which will consolidate field office operations of job service, unemployment insurance, and job training offices throughout the state.

"This new structure will enable us to deliver services to the public in a more effective and efficient manner," Beerhalter said. "The reorganization is in response to a 1977 legislative mandate which sought to combine similar government services and simplify the public's access to them."

Department's job service division and greater Minnesota job training programs and portions of its unemployment insurance division have been reshaped into a new field operations division and employment programs division.

Department's vocational rehabilitation field offices are not included at this time, Beerhalter said. Current federal restrictions require the department's assistant commissioner from vocational rehabilitation to retain direct authority over client services in field offices.

Amos Haynes, president of Convergent Systems, Inc., St. Paul, has been appointed assistant commissioner of field operations, Beerhalter said.

Charles Routhe, currently assistant commissioner of the job service division, will be acting assistant commissioner of the employment programs division, Beerhalter said.

Staff support functions for job service and greater Minnesota job training programs will be formed into the employment programs division.

Beerhalter also named three acting regional directors for the field operations division and said they will report directly to Haynes. They are Don Murphy, who will supervise the Metropolitan field operations offices; Bob Mattson, who will direct activities of offices in northern Minnesota; and Rick Hokanson, who will be in charge of the offices in central and southern areas of the state.

All appointments are effective October 1, when the new divisions will be in place. Beerhalter said that there will be a transition period until April 1, 1983, during which the reorganization will be completed. Acting appointments are for the transitional period.

Murphy has been manager of metropolitan unemployment insurance offices and Mattson has been Minneapolis district operations director of job service. Hokanson is director of the greater Minnesota job training programs.

Eldon Kirgiss, currently central district manager for the greater Minnesota job training programs at St. Cloud, will become acting director of the federal job training staff activities.

County Board Proceedings

October 12, 1983
OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
Pennington County Board Of Commissioners
Tuesday, September 13, 1983

Pursuant to adjournment, the Pennington County Board of Commissioners met in the meeting room of the Courthouse in Thief River Falls on Tuesday, September 13, 1983, at 10:00 a.m. Members present were: Hoffman, Koop, Tasa, Stenberg and Grabanski.

Moved by Commissioner Stenberg, seconded by Commissioner Grabanski to accept the minutes of the August 9, 1983, meeting as mailed. Motion carried.

Robert Parnow, landowner in Section 21, Star Township, was in to ask that one mile of County Road 97 between Section 20 and 21 be reshaped. Also mentioned plugs in County Ditch 38 between Sections 16 and 21. Engineer Olson mentioned that South end of that mile was high enough but North ¼ of that mile did need rebuilding and that work was being scheduled.

Mrs. Gary Paquin was in to see if she could get homestead classification on her home for the 1984 taxes payable. The Board approved the homestead classification.

Palmer Bevoldin, Vernon Anderson, Vern Spengler and Leonard Rondorf were in to discuss cleaning of CD 1 Sanders - Black River between Sections 9 and 10 Sanders Township. Matter referred to County Engineer.

The following resolution was made by Commissioner Tasa, seconded by Commissioner Koop and moved for its adoption:

WHEREAS THE following Contract County Project 83-04 has in all things been completed and the County Board being fully advised in the premises;

NOW THEN BE IT RESOLVED that we do hereby accept said completed project for and in behalf of the County of Pennington and authorize final payment as specified herein.

The foregoing resolution was passed by unanimous vote.

The following resolution was introduced by Commissioner Koop, seconded by Commissioner Tasa and moved for its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, That the Pennington County Board of Commissioners authorize the Chairman, Sheriff and Auditor to enter into an annual County Boat and Water Safety Agreement with Minnesota Department of Natural Resources for the term July 1, 1983, through September 30, 1984, in accordance with the provisions of M.S. Sec. 361.01 to 361.29.

The foregoing resolution was passed by unanimous vote.

Terry Courneya, Al Gustafson and Gerry DeHaan were in to discuss digitizing the soil survey information. The total cost of this would be approximately $15-$16,000. There is a possibility of getting 50 per cent cost sharing on this through the Soil Conservation Service. There is also the possibility of hiring a person under the MEED Act (Minnesota Emergency Employment Development Act) to further cut the cost. Al Gustafson, S.C.S., said the federal government has allocated some money for digitizing the soil survey information to a computer system and if Pennington County fails to use this money it will be reallocated.

Commissioner Grabanski introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, That Pennington County authorize the digitizing of the soil survey information recently completed for Pennington County contingent on obtaining a grant from the Soil Conservation Service for 50 per cent of the cost.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Koop and upon vote, declared unanimously adopted.

Doug Barth was in to discuss drainage on the South side of Section 18, Silverton Township. He would like to deepen the West end of the road ditch between Sections 18 and 19. The Board sees no problem and instructed Engineer Olson to work with him and the Soil Conservation Service to accomplish this.

The Northwestern Ambulance Service staff and hospital administration were in to discuss ambulance subsidy. Bob Stevens asked the Commissioners to adjust ambulance subsidy from $16,000.00 to $56,000.00. This would allow the ambulance to operate on the same level as it presently is. Section option would be to reduce the staff to 3 full time employees and use volunteers for the additional help. The third option would be selling the service to a private individual or firm. Dr. George Martin, Chief of the Medical Staff at Northwestern Hospital, gave an overview of the ambulance service and described the training of the operators. Bob Stevens also commented that if the $56,000.00 was not appropriated they do not see Option 2 as a viable option and they will sell the ambulance service. No action taken by the Board at this time.

Edwin Helgeland was in to discuss putting a center-line culvert between Sections 5 & 6 Smiley Township to relieve a drainage problem in NW¼ Section 5. This was referred to Engineer Olson and Mr. Helgeland was asked to contact Soil Conservation Service for a survey and to give a recommendation.

Upon motion by Commissioner Tasa, seconded by Commissioner Stenberg, the Road, Bridge and Culvert Committee will meet on September 19 at 8:30 a.m. to inspect Road, Bridges and Culverts. Motion unanimously carried.

County Engineer mentioned that the Bridge at Harold Matzke would be going into place next week and also reviewed the ditch cleaning petitions and status of ditch cleaning.

Commissioner Koop introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, That the Pennington County Board of Commissioners, on behalf of the County of Pennington, hereby reaffirms the Joint Powers Agreement containing the Northwestern Minnesota Juvenile Training Center for a three year period ending December 31, 1984.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Stenberg and upon vote was unanimously adopted.

Commissioner Grabanski presented the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, the County of Pennington, Minnesota, has sustained catastrophic losses as a result of an unprecedented rainfall from May 15, 1983 to September 15, 1983, and

WHEREAS, the Pennington County USDA Emergency Board has filed their report and recommendation that the County of Pennington, Minnesota, should be designated as a Disaster Area to assure the availability of emergency loans to the farmers for seed, feed, fertilizer and other operating expenses;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Board of County Commissioners for and on behalf of the citizens of Pennington County, request that Governor Rudy Perpich petition the Secretary of Agriculture for Federal Agricultural Disaster designation.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Stenberg and upon vote declared unanimously adopted.

Pat Weber and LoAnne Trane, Representatives of Rudy Boschwitz, were in to discuss local control of programs, revenue sharing and other issues Rudy Boschwitz is concerned with.

Board discussed the County Fair appropriation. No action taken.

Board discussed the possibility of a City-County Planner. No action taken.

Ralph Rundell, soil conservation technician at the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district at Grygla, has begun his 29th year of employment with the district.

Ripley Shelter Celebrated Day Of Unity Oct. 1

Ripley shelter for battered women held an open house on October 1, for former residents and supporters so that they might celebrate the third national day of unity.

According to shelter director, Linda Wallerich, national day of unity is intended to "draw attention to the magnitute which domestic abuse has reached, and to recognize efforts to bring an end to violence against women in our society." Particular attention is focused on women who have died as a direct result of abuse.

Members of the shelter staff believe that many people are unaware that battering is going on right in this area. According to Susan Kelley, a women's advocate for the shelter, statistics indicate that 180 women and their 380 children from the surrounding seven county area have sought refuge at the shelter over the past three and one-half years. Countless others have made use of crisis phone lines, thus indicating the extent to which domestic abuse has become a problem in our area.

Approximately 20 men, women, and children took part in the two hour celebration. Among those attending was Minnesota State senator LeRoy Stumpf and Rev. Paul Bortnem, chaplain for Northwestern Hospital Services, who delivered a prayer and inspirational message for those who had gathered.

NW Juvenile Center Earns State Award

Northwestern Minnesota juvenile training center was the recipient of the 1983 president's award at the fall conference of the Minnesota corrections association held in Saint Paul recently.

According to center superintendent Joseph Vene, the award was given "in recognition of the center's unique and innovative program components."

The award states that "the NWJTC has consistently provided high quality services to youth residing primarily in the northwestern counties of Minnesota. The center is unique in that it utilizes satellite homes for status offenders and also as an intermediate step between home and treatment. The program is designed to be short-term, approximately three months in duration, but can be used for longer term placement as needed. It provides all the components necessary to enhance each individual's functioning upon return to the community."

The center, bearing the statutory designation of County Home School, serves Cass, Hubbard, Beltrami, Clearwater, Pennington, Kittson, Roseau and Lake of the Woods counties in joint powers agreement, and other counties within the Ninth Judicial district on a space-available basis. The primary center is located in Bemidji on the campus of Bemidji state university. Satellite homes are located in Bemidji, Thief River Falls and Roseau. All center entities are licensed by the state of Minnesota department of corrections.

Senator Comments On Excellence In Education Study

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has announced the first of a series of education hearings that he intends to hold throughout the year.

During the Columbus day recess, he will hold hearings in Forest Lake, White Bear Lake, Rochester, Hastings and Winona. At the first three sites he will visit high school to hear what students think. The final two will be town meetings on education, open to the public.

Major focus of the hearings will be the national commission on excellence in education's report entitled "A Nation at Risk."

"The findings of this report have been somewhat controversial," Boschwitz said. "But what's probably more important than those conclusions is the fact that they once again focused national attention on education. It seems to be an appropriate time to thoroughly examine the federal, state and local role in ensuring our nation's students receive a good education."

Appearing with Boschwitz will be Bob Brown, special assistant to the secretary of education. Brown and Boschwitz will make brief comments to open the meeting. But mostly, Boschwitz said, the session will be give-and-take.

"I hear a lot of 'big picture' information about education in Washington," Boschwitz said. "But nothing is more important than the local perspective. That's why I will be having many hearings similar to this in the ensuing year."

Boschwitz said the commission report should provide a solid base for conversation. The introduction alone is quite controversial. In part the commission concluded:

"If any unfriendly foreign power had attempted to impose on America the mediocre education performance that exists today, we might well have viewed it as an act of war.. . . . We have, in effect, been committing an act of unthinking, unilateral, educational disarmament."

The commission was created by Secretary of Education Terrel Bell who said he was concerned about "the widespread public conception that something is seriously remiss in our education system."

The report backs up its dismal conclusions with statistics, such as:

+ 23 million Americans are functionally illiterate;

+ Today's high school students score lower on standardized tests than students did when Sputnik was launched 26 years ago; and

+ SAT (College Board's Scholastic Achievement Tests) scores have declined steadily since 1963. The number and proportion of students with exceptionally high SAT scores has declined dramatically.

"I think we all agree that our educational system has not remained on the steady upward path we had come to expect and that some reappraisal has become imperative," Boschwitz said. "Certainly part of this problem is due to the evolving and conflicting demands on the schools to solve personal, social, and political problems."

Boschwitz considers "A Nation at Risk" — the title of the commission's report — an overstatement for the sake of argument, but believes the commission's report should serve to focus a general sense of discontent with our educational system.

"That is a useful purpose," he said. "The commission is quick to point out (and I would be too) that we should unify to find a solution to the problem and not search for scapegoats among the victims, espeicially teachers."

The commission discussed four major areas: curriculum, expectations, time and teaching.

To research curriculum, the commission compared course patterns of high school students in 1964-1969 to those in 1976-1981. It found that secondary school curricula have been "homogonized, diluted and diffused to the point that they no longer have a central purpose." This "cafeteria style curriculum," the commission reported, has led to students mistaking the appetizers and desserts for the main course.

Regarding expectations, the conclusion is that we are expecting less of students in school today, particularly high school, and consequently getting less, in terms of effort and hard work.

The commission defined "expectations" as the knowledge, abilities and skills students should possess along with the time, hard work, behavior, self-discipline and motivation that are essential for student achievement. The commission based its findings on the expectations being conveyed to students through grades, graduation requirements, mastery examinations, college admissions requirements and by the difficulty of subject material. The report indicates deficiencies were found in all these areas. As the amount of homework has decreased, grades have risen. College admission selectivity declined during the 1970s. Expenditures for textbooks and other instructional materials have dropped by 50 per cent in the last 17 years.

The use of time made by America schools and students received similar low marks from the commission. It found that U.S. students spend much less time on school work than students from other nations, and the time spent on homework and in the classroom is often used ineffectively. Moreover, schools are not doing enough to help students develop skills to help them study well, according to the commission.

The report indicated that the teaching profession is no longer attracting enough of the best students ("academically able"). According to the commission, too much of the curriculum for teachers is courses in "education methods" at the expense of courses on the subject matter to be taught. It found also that the professional working life of teachers is unacceptable: salaries are too low and teachers have little to say over important decisions like textbook selection. Also, a serious shortage of teachers was found in key subject areas, particularly math and science.

Boschwitz said anyone who would like to buy a copy of the report ($4.50), or would like to comment (other than attending the town meeting) should write to him c-o U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510.

Existing Cargo Preference Law Not Successful

Existing cargo preference laws have not succeeded in promoting a strong and viable U.S. maritime industry and expansion of current cargo preference laws could deter any aggressive of creative attempts at furthering agricultural exports, according to Senator Rudy Boschwitz.

Cargo preference is a law that first appeared in the 1950s that requires at least 50 per cent of certain cargoes to go on U.S. flagships. Currently that applied to P.L. 480, the so-called "Food for Peace" programs.

"I am thoroughly convinced that cargo preference is a crutch which prevents the U.S. maritime industry from becoming fully viable and competitive in international markets," Boschwitz said.

"I am equally convinced that giving the maritime industry an additional crutch — expanded cargo preference — will prepetuate the industry's inability to become competitive. More importantly, it would affect a broad spectrum of American society in ways which are detrimental to the U.S. economy and society as a whole."

Since the enactment in 1954 of P.L. 664, the Cargo preference act, and P.L. 480, the Food for Peace program, the senator said the following has occurred:

+ Ocean transportation costs of the P.L. 480 program increased from $9.6 million in fiscal 1955 to $314.4 million in fiscal 1982, a more than 30-fold increase;

+ Ocean transportation costs of P.L. 480 escalated from four per cent of total program costs in 1955 to nearly 25 per cent of total program costs in fiscal 1982; and

+ A rapid decline in the U.S. maritime industry, reflected by a decline in shipbuilding in U.S. shipyards (30 ships built on average during the late 1950s compared to 10 for the 1980s), a decline in U.S. oceanborne trade carried on U.S. flag vessels (from 23.5 per cent of total volume in 1955 to 3.5 per cent of total volume in 1982), and a decline in employment numbers for the U.S. merchant marine (from 57,500 in 1955 to 18,000 in 1982).

U.S. shipping rates have likewise become less competitive. In 1955, the first year following enactment of the cargo preference act, the average differential between U.S. flag shipping rates and foreign flag shipping rates under P.L. 480 was $2.35 a ton. By 1982, this differential had skyrocketed to $60.50 per ton, a nearly 30-fold increase.

Boschwitz said, "It is clear that the numbers support this very well, that cargo preference has not been and will never be the source of recovery and rejuvenation for the U.S. maritime industry."

Senator Objects To Canada Tax On Literature

Protesting the nine per cent sales tax which the Canadian government is levying on all travel literature entering Canada from the United States, Senator Rudy Boschwitz has urged Secretary of State George Shultz to discourage Canada from continuing this practice.

In a letter to Schultz, Boschwitz said this action by the Canadians "hinders the free flow of tourism between our two countries and jeopardizes Minnesota's tourism as well.

"Tourism is one of the leading industries in Minnesota, providing the livelihood of over 100,000 people. It includes such broad categories as business, airlines, hotels, auto rentals, eating and drinking establishments, buses, railroads, amusement and recreation," Boschwitz said.

He said that he has been told the U.S. embassy in Ottawa has begun conversation with the Canadian government on the issue.

"We are pleased that the matter has been engaged and we are hopeful that our ambassador will continue those discussions to their successful conclusion," the senator said.

"If this practice of taxing free travel literature continues, America's travel industry will be forced to greatly reduce the amount of travel information it makes available to Canadians. This could only hurt Minnesota's tourism industry. That is why reversing the Canadians' action is so important."

LONG AGO PEOPLE

It happened while I was hiking in the mountains . . . suddenly I came into a clearing and saw the crumbling foundations of what had once meant shelter and protection for a pioneer family. Rugged mountains surrounded the decayed dwelling on three sides. But in front there opened a panorama across a valley which in all its beauty held me spellbound.

I turned and noticed a small old-fashioned rose bush which seemed to reminisce with yesteryear beside the moldering stoop. I could feel the presence of those long-ago people. How they must have loved this place. The woman had tended flowers and vegetables here, had borne her babies and had helped her man carve a life from the wilderness.

What was their secret . . . these pioneer people? Where did they find the courage and confidence needed to face the privations and dangers of primitive living? God was their refuge and strength. Their love of Him illumined their lives, and goodness graced their days.

Just so today, God and His Church are the source of all bounty, greatness, and joy. They are yours for the asking.

Film Storage Problems Are Being Solved

by William G. Schulz
Smithsonian News Service

Remember that old picture of Aunt Minnie? You know, the one that shows her long blue hair and chipped teeth?

Wait a minute. Aunt Minnie was a blonde who prided herself on her pearly whites. What's happening here? Well, for once, it's not the camera but the picture that has lied — or, at least, distorted the truth.

Unfortunately, photographic negatives and prints, regardless of their original quality, are like people — they don't always age gracefully. They can undergo a variety of traumas, such as invasion by molds and insects that can permanently damage the image. Fortunately, however, most of these photographic ills can be largely prevented or delayed significantly.

"We have increased the life of our collection by at least ten times" says Lorie Aceto, chief of the photographic division, office of printing and photographic services at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. She is referring to the institution's method of storing its black-and-white and color negatives, many of them important records of vast national treasurers, in a special cold-storage vault where the film's aging is effectively halted. Temperature, a chilly 45 degrees Fahrenheit, also inhibits fungal growth and bugs that tend to prefer a balmier climate.

"Generally, the colder and drier the film, the longer it will last," says Jim Wallace, director of printing and photographic services at the Smithsonian.

Although archivists have known for some time that older films must be kept in stable conditions — away from extremes of heat and humidity — cold storage is a relatively new concept in the field of photo-preservation. In the 1970s, a number of institutions in this country began using cold storage as a method of achieving almost permanent preservation of photographic and other film collections. Allan Goodrich, audio-visual archivist at the John F. Kennedy Library in Dorchester, MA., says the library's extensive collection of motion picture film from the Kennedy administration was put in cold storage because, "there was no other way to preserve it inexpensively."

Today, photographic films are better and more chemically stable than ever before, but their principal construction leaves them vulnerable to certain kinds of deterioration. Essentially, film is composed of a strip of acetate or polyester plastic that supports a chemical gelatin called the emulsion, which holds the photographic image in light-sensitive silver compounds in the case of black-and-white film, and color dyes in the case of color film.

When film is developed, some of the chemicals used in processing are often left behind on the emulsion. If the film is stored under conditions of high heat, humidity or, worse yet, both, the chemicals speed deterioration of the emulsion layer. High humidity can create a gummy layer, causing the negative to stick to storage envelopes and result in a loss of detail in the image. Large holes in the image can be caused by growth of fungus or insects dining on the emulsion, or by the emulsion layer flaking off.

Older collections — especially those prior to 1950 — have an additional problem because many of these negatives are comprised of nitrate-based films. Under conditions of heat and humidity, this film base becomes very unstable and can actually begin to self-destruct through spontaneous combustion, presenting an extreme fire and-or explosion hazard. In this way, conservators at the National Archives and Records Service in 1978 lost some 12.3 million linear feet of old newsreel footage. Even if film is stored in such a way as to reduce this hazard, gases emitted while it decomposes can damage other negatives and things stored nearby.

After World War II, substitutes for nitrate-based films were found. These substitutes, acetate films, were the first safety or "slow-burning" films. Most notably, they replaced nitrate-based x-ray films, thereby removing a fire hazard from hospitals. Since the change over from one kind of film base to another was gradual, however, it is often difficult to determine visually whether older collections are on nitrate- or acetate-based film. Nitrate-based film, however, has a characteristic "acid" odor when deteriorating and will also stain the image a dull yellow.

Smithsonian photographers are preventing a tragedy similar to that which occurred at the National Archives from happening to a photographic collection acquired by the National Museum of American Art. Nitrate-based photos in the collection are being converted to the modern polyester safety film. Taken in New York City over an 60-year time span beginning in 1896, the photos are belived to comprise the largest single photographic collection of American art. Most of these are the only existing visual record of the original condition of many works of art that have been altered, damaged, lost or destroyed over the years. While conversion is underway, cold storage slows the dangerous decomposition.

Lower temperatures and a drier atmosphere also slow the fading of dyes in color film, which can occur in dark storage or with exposure to light. "It's one of the really unfortunate problems with color films," Wallace says.

Cold storage creates a problem, too. "Just lowering the temperatures," Wallace explains, "will create a higher relative humidity." Relative humidity is a measure of the amount of moisture air is able to hold at a specific temperature. (Peek inside the refrigerator and run your hand along the mayonnaise jar for evidence of this phenomenon.)

Wallace says relative humidity has somewhat taxed his facility, especially during Washington's notoriously muggy summers. Vault, though, is protected against humidity by two high-efficiency dehumidification units and two sets of sliding doors at the vault's entrance that create a buffer zone between inside and outside air.

According to Roberta Diemer, chief of the division's services branch and in charge of the cold storage vault's daily operation, "Every factor that you can imagine will contribute to deterioration of the film." For example, several air filtration systems being considered for the vault had to be eliminated because they could produce impurities as harmful to photographs as the pollutants they remove from the air.

Smithsonian's vault holds approximately 1 million negatives — a few still on unstable nitrate-based film awaiting conversion to safety film in the next year. Ultimately, Wallace says, the goal is to preserve one "archival-quality" negative of each specimen or artifact in the collections. An archival-quality negative will hold an image for a minimum of 100 years.

By then, Wallace believes, techniques to convert photographs to permanent computer memory will have been perfected. Hundreds of small T-shirt and poster vendors already reprint photographs, enlarged after computer scanning and conversion of the image to digits or "bits" of information. These first attempts, though, make the image look like "it was taken through a ventian blind," he says.

Computers just aren't powerful enough, yet, to store all the information contained on a photograph. Still, Wallace expects that in 50 to 100 years even color slides, a relatively recent development in photography, "will seem as antiquated as the tintype."

In the meantime, a Smithsonian-style cold storage vault for storing pictures of Aunt Minnie might be a bit too expensive for amateur photographers. Wallace suggests placing negative strips in self-sealing, rib-locked plastic bags; hundreds of the thin strips will fit in just one bag. The air should be pressed out to prevent condensation of moisture. Then, wrap the bags tightly in foil to provide an extra barrier against the varying humidity of home refrigerators, and store the whole package in the freezer or refrigerator.

If there is absolutely no room next to the TV dinners, Wallace says negative strips should be stored in a room where humidity is low and the temperature stable — never in your basement or attic. Cold storage will protect the film from heat and humidity and keep your relatives looking good for generations.

Make No Bones About It . . .

Calcium Is a Requirement You Never Outgrow

Nutritionists and health experts do not always agree. One area in which they are in agreement, however, is that the need for calcium is not just kid stuff; adults require it, too.

Most of us can recall how we were encouraged as children to drink plenty of milk because of its high nutritional value and the fact that the calcium contained in it helped build strong bones and healthy teeth.

The problem is that many of us grow away from this healthy advice as we become older. The general belief held by a vast number of adults is that because their bones and teeth are no longer growing, the need for calcium in their diets is greatly diminished. Researchers and medical experts are concerned about this trend.

Calcium is not only important to us as children, when we are in the growing, bone-making phase of our life cycle, but also as young adults, when our bone mass increases, and as older adults, when we begin to lose bone, said Robert Recker, M.D., chief of the endocrinology and metabolic research section at Creighton University in Omaha, in a recent article in Contemporary Nutrition, a national newsletter published for health professionals.

This is particularly true for women, who generally become more vulnerable, as they grow older, to the weakening of their bone structure. Recent published data indicate that one out of four white females over the age of 60 suffer from the crippling bone disease known as osteoporosis, a progressive disorder hastened by long-term calcium deficiency that often leaves its victims susceptible to painful fractures, chronic spinal problems, and gradual loss of height.

About 99% of the calcium in the body is found in the skeletal structure and the teeth. The remaining 1% is transported in body fluids to other parts of the anatomy. In addition to its importance to bone health, calcium is used by the body to control nerve impulses, muscle contraction and heart rhythm, and aid in blood clotting.

Contrary to what some believe, bone is not a static, unchanging material. Calcium comes and goes from bone continuously. The calcium that is lost must be replaced daily through ingestion of adequate amounts of dietary calcium. If it isn't replaced, serious problems can set in over time.

When the body does not take in enough calcium to replace what is lost, it will steal what it needs from the only natural reservoir it has — bone — medical experts warn.

The loss of bone mass is a natural process that begins as early as age 30, according to Morris B. Notelovitz, M.D., head of the University of Florida's Center for Climacteric Studies. While both sexes lose bone tissue as they age, women lose it more rapidly after menopause, he says, at a rate twice as fast as men of the same age, leaving them at greater risk for bone fracture — especially of the hip and wrist.

For the vast majority of individuals who do not ingest adequate amounts of calcium in diet alone, many physicians recommend a calcium supplement, such as Os-Cal® 500. Two Os-Cal 500 tablets provide the recommended daily allowance for calcium (1,000 mg).

If you suspect you suffer from a calcium deficiency, ask your doctor about calcium supplementation. ■

Value Of Foreign Competition

Following editorial is from the Detroit Lakes Tribune:

Two auto magazines, Car and Driver and Road and Track, which have consistently turned up their noses at American-made cars in the past, are giving enthusiastic reviews to Detroit products this year. According to these publications, American auto-makers are making a determined effort to design and manufacture innovative, economical, high quality and pleasurable automobiles. This year the results are proving it. David E. Davis, Jr., editor-publisher of Car and Driver, rates the 1984 model year as "vintage." This is a "year the likes of which we've not seen in a very long time," he writes in the October edition of his magazine.

Both magazines are pitched toward car "enthusiasts," and thus they are more excited by the new performance cars — the Corvette, Mustang and Laser — than by family sedans. Nevertheless, they are close observers of trends within the auto industry world-wide. In general, we think, their standards of what any car should be have been closer to what most people want than what Detroit has been delivering, up until now.

Raves from the critics don't necessarily add up to sales of the product, but they certainly can't hurt. Nationally, auto sales are up. The reviving economy is one reason. Car and Driver and Road and Track think that reviving consumer confidence in the American automobile is another.

And that brings to us our point. If the American consumer is being offered a better-built, more economical and also pleasurable car, then we can thank the Japanese, the Germans and the Swedes. Their cars forced Detroit to wake up and smell the coffee. The American perception of the imports have been that they are simply better products and better buys than the domestics. Not only has that fact hurt our economy, but it has wounded our pride. We do not want to feel that anything American-made is second-rate and shoddy. Thus Detroit's strong response to its competition is an invigorating morale booster. It says that we aren't about to roll over and play dead.

Response to competition is the larger point. Davis of Car and Driver believes that Detroit would never have developed its 1984 cars except as a response principally to the Japanese. Nevertheless, auto-makers want to be protected from foreign competition through import quotas and tariffs. Congress has had the good sense to refuse and to trust competition. We have better American cars because of it.

Phavorite Phobias

Publisher Bob Johnson of the Wadena Pioneer Journal points out that President Franklin Roosevelt was referring to phobophobia when he said that the nation has nothing to fear but fear itself. Then the witty columnist goes on to list a number of other phobias which could afflict mankind:

Dromedaryophobia — the fear of having a camel's hair sportcoat spit at you.

Bogeybogeyphobia — the fear of taking a 10 on a 535-yard hole.

Maotsetungophobia — the fear of eating off the good china.

Cosellophobia — the fear of not understanding what you just said.

Refriedphobia — the fear of touching a plate in a Mexican restaurant.

Spockophobia — the fear that there won't be another Star Trek movie.

Ooogahooogahphobia — the fear of being honked at by a 1927 Ford.

Blastfurnacephobia — the fear of eating homemade chili.

Shishkebabophobia — the fear of trying out for the fencing team.

Norespectophobia — the fear of being mistaken for Rodney Dangerfield.

Squishdophobia — the fear of having a hippopotamus sit on your lap.

Dahlinkophobia — the fear of being married to Zsa Zsa Gabor.

Stuckrecordophobia — the fear of repeating yourself over and over and over and over and over and over. . . .

Catsmusmayopickamatophobia — the fear of ordering a hamburger with everything.

Sendyourdollarsophobia — the fear of becoming a television evangelist.

Yawnphobia — the fear of delivering an after-dinner speech.

Heeeeeeeere'sophobia — the fear of watching late-night TV.

And, of course, the worst phobia of them all:

Nophobiaphobia — the fear of not having anything to fear

Job Exodus

Following editorial is from the St. Peter Herald:

Jackson, Minnesota, population 3,500 is losing 98 jobs this week.

The industry left our state for Nebraska with this message, "Your taxes were too high for us."

What do we do about it: Where do we go from here?

For the forseeable future, we're afriad, we've nowhere to go.

The DFL Party of Minnesota is not going to give in. We will not and cannot having realistic tax reform in Minnesota until there are some fundamental changes which will not come about for several years. The labor-DLF strength in St. Paul will not allow significant reform for business interests.

Governor Rudy Perpich is proving to be exactly the wrong kind of executive, who arrived back on the scene at the worst possible time.

His solutions do not involve going to the root of our problems, Instead of seeing legislation which cuts back spending and gives taxpayers a break, we find things like the gas tax. More spending, more taxes, exactly at the time when we need less of each.

There's been no action on the unemployment insurance reform. Our large and our small businesses are being bled. They're leaving in droves. An estimated 25,000 more jobs across the state are scheduled to leave in the near future. What is the response from our leadership in St. Paul? Do we have a meaningful reform; or any reform at all?

No, instead we raise taxes again. Then our governor promises petty revenge on those legislators with the integrity to vote against more taxes.

Foolish Legislation

Following editorial by Lowell Danielson appeared recently in the New Prague Times:

Our Minnesota legislators really outdid themselves during the last session when it came to passing foolish and potentially harmful laws. The two worst are the "Buy Minnesota" law and the "Good Samaritan" law.

The "Buy Minnesota" law requies state agencies and institutions to buy all goods and services from Minnesota firms and vendors unless their price is more than 10 per cent higher than that of out of state firms and vendors. This law invited retaliation from other states. It should never have been considered, let alone passed and signed.

The "Good Samaritan" law requires that all citizens offer help to another who may be in trouble or danger. Since the passing of this law, there have been several incidents which point out that things aren't always as they seem. In one incident an elderly man and his son wound up tied to some trees and minus their van and about $800 after they stopped to assist a younger man and woman who signaled for help. In another case, a minister got a knife between his ribs and lost his car and money for his efforts to aid a damsel in distress.

Our governor and legislators should have enough sense to know that they can't legislate competition out or goodness in. It is time that they stop trying to make names for themselves by passing laws which they think are novel or unique and get down to the business that they were elected to do. That, of course, is to make our state government efficient and economical, which it hasn't been for some time.

No Compassion

Following editorial is from the Eden Valley Journal:

I couldn't believe it! The carpenter trades in Duluth have been hurting for the last two years, but in the last couple of months they have gone back to work and their trade has been picking up as far as a demand for building has been increasing.

So what did they do? You guessed it, or you might have noticed it in the papers, they went on strike.

It is hard to understand the union leaders who will advocate actions like this. Here these people have an opportunity to go back and earn an honest living and they choose to go out on strike. Somehow it is hard to feel much compassion for them.

Borrowed Nonsense:

A busy county extension agent was on the telephone with a worried farmer when a woman starting a chicken farm poked her head in the door. "How long should I leave the rooster with the hens?" she demanded to know.

Cupping his hand over the phone, the agent replied, "Just a minute."

"Thanks very much," the lady responded and walked out.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

How often have circumstances in your American lifestyle dictated the necessity to step out in protest regardless of the seemingly insurmountable obstacles? Girded with Christian faith we need to trust the Lord completely even when "intangible things" around us tell us that the situation may be impossible.

It doesn't take much reflection to realize that the recent ludicrous spectacle of deployment of aircraft carriers off the coast of Central America; of destroyers with depth charges loaded off the coast of Africa; of the President openly discussing American firepower in these areas to drive his military threats home — and then classifying the whole sideshow as "covert" action!

In Washington, D.C., Republican and Democrat senators are jokingly referring to Reagan's Secret Wars. It is a cynical circumvention of Congress: Overt military actions must have the approval of Congress; but "covert" military actions may be undertaken by the administration without Congressional consent or democratic debate, and that is precisely their purpose.

It was just such covert actions, starting on a modest scale, that backed the United States into an undeclared war (crisis) in Vietnam in which more than 50,000 Americans and countless thousands of Vietnamese died.

Will one of our country's overt-covert actions in a new trouble-spot make history repeat itself?

Can we allow such life-and-death decisions to be made without public debate and without dissenting views being heard?

Can we allow such decisions to be made without the explicit consent of Congress?

I believe that it is the duty of the veterans of WWI, WWII, Korea and Vietnam to take whatever steps are required to inform all Americans of their right to know, to discuss and to decide American policy that affects all our lives and thus to restore the vigorous public debate on foreign policy, which the First Amendment guarantees.

I believe that it is incumbent upon all Americans to initiate a program to restore to Congress the effective power to control a President's military adventures, and thus revitalize the constitutional requirement of separation of powers that past administrations have eroded and that this administration is trying to destroy.

I further believe that this is one of the most crucial civil liberties challenges facing Americans today.

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Q: Are people who wear dentures more likely to get cancer of the mouth? I sometimes get sores around my dentures, and my dentist told me to have them checked if they don't heal normally.

A: People who wear dentures are no more likely to develop cancer of the mouth than they would be if they did not have dentures. People who are heavy users of alcohol or tobacco, however, are at higher risk for mouth cancer —whether or not they wear dentures.

Your dentist's advice is good for everyone. Persistent sores, unexplained white spots or areas speckled red and white, velvety-looking red spots or any lump or bump in the mouth could be a sign of mouth cancer. If you notice any of these signs, you should have them examined by your dentist.

Q: I had a Pap test a few days ago, and my doctor just called to tell me it was "positive" — there were some abnormal cells. She told me I don't have cancer, but she would like me to come back in three months for a repeat Pap test. Even though she said I don't have cancer, I'm worried. If the test is for cancer and it was positive, doesn't that mean I have cancer or I'm going to get it? Why is she waiting three months; shouldn't she do something now?

A: The Pap smear is a very effective test that can detect abnormal cells caused by conditions other than cancer, pre-cancerous conditions, and early cancers that are easily treatable as well as more serious cancers.

Any of these abnormalities are considered a "positive" test result. Pap test results are classified from I to IV or V. A class I smear is normal; a class II contains some abnormal cells which are not cancer; a class III results means cells are more abnormal but still not definitely cancer; and class IV and V Paps are those in which cancer cells were found.

In youg women ages 25-35 the most common abnormality of the cervix is called dysplasia. Dysplasia means there are changes in the cells which line the cervix. Dysplasias can be mild, moderate or severe. A class II Pap smear, for example, often indicates mild or moderate cervical dysplasia. Some dysplasias progress to early cancer. Others return to normal, and some remain unchanged for years.

If a women has dysplasia, her doctor can choose to observe it for a few months, or he or she may decide to treat it. Treatment depends on how severe it is and the women's age. In young women of childbearing age, the area of dysplasia often can be removed using cone biopsy or laser survery. The post-menopausal women, dysplasia may be treated with surgery. In either case, the cure rate is practically 100 per cent.

Carcinoma-in-situ is a very early type of cancer which can be detected by Pap test. Carcinoma-in-situ literally means cancer in place. These very early-non-invasive growths are treated much like dysplasias.

Only when a cancer becomes invasive, and can spread to the bloodstream and lymphatic system, is it a potentially life-threatening disease. These invasive cervical cancers are treated with surgery, radiation therapy and, when necessary, chemotherapy.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

Women on the Move

American women are on the move!

Today, 53 per cent of American women are working outside the home. This is up from 33 per cent and represents the greatest participation by women in the labor force of any nation in the free world.

Women now make up 43 per cent of all working Americans and 45 per cent of all professionals.

And by 1981, women composed 32 per cent of law school graduates and 25 per cent of those graduating from medical school. This is up from five per cent and eight per cent respectively in 1970.

Women are making gains in the American economy by leaps and bounds. Why then do we hear a constant chorus on the evening news about the 'plight' of working women?

It is a good question, because rarely have reality and perception been at such odds.

One number that has been repeatedly trotted out is that the average working woman earns 65 per cent as much as the average working man. This is an interesting figure and, to the best of my knowledge, an accurate one. But what does it tell us about the status of working women?

Well, despite the claims of some, it does not prove that men and women working side by side on the same job are receiving different salaries. Such discrimination based on sex has been a violation of federal law since the passage of the Equal Pay Act of 1963, 20 years ago.

There are two reasons for this seeming disparity. The first is that historically women at age 20 work for an average of 28 years during their lifetime. Twenty-year old men will, on average, work for 37 years. Men, on average, progress further in their careers because they stay in them longer.

Second, many women choose to leave the workforce during the early years of their careers to care for their children during infancy and, as a result, gravitate toward fields that allow them to enter and leave the workforce with relative ease. Occupations such as clerical work, nursing and teaching offer the flexibility of readily available part-time work and allow workers to take time off and reenter the workforce at a later date.

Because many women — and men — appreciate such flexibility, the supply of job applicants is large and wages are lower in these fields than others. It is intellectually dishonest to suggest that men and women who voluntarily trade off flexibility for higher income are the objects of sinister discrimination. Equal pay for equal work is still the law of the land and most Americans agree it should be.

But back to the main point. American women are making great strides in our economy. American women now own and run more than 2.5 million businesses. This is up sharply from 1.8 million as recently as 1977.

Progress for women in the federal government has been even more dramatic.

Indeed, I am a little astonished at the criticism this administration has received from those who purport to speak for all American women. The record, in fact, has been excellent — unsurpassed by any past administration in our history.

President Reagan has appointed three women to the Cabinet, the first woman Supreme Court Justice, has chosen four women to run major departments and agencies, and has appointed more than 1,200 women to senior executive positions throughout the government. No previous administration — Republican or Democrat — has done as well.

My bottom line in all this is that women are making significant progress in the workforce and in government. And that progress will continue.

This summer's fascination with the so-called "gender gap" will fade as the pollsters and politicians realize that working women have the same concerns as working men, whether as employees or employers. Women are not unaware that this administration has cut their taxes by 25 per cent, slashed inflation from over 12 per cent to below four per cent, and halved interest rates from the previous administration's levels.

Those politicians who belittle the progress and hard work of American women will not be rewarded at the polls next year. Neither will women stand for suggestions that their progress is dependent on the federal government passing yet another law or creating one more bureaucracy. That suggestion is demeaning and paternalistic and American women deserve better.

They have come too far on their own.

Union Leaders Don't Lead

There are several paths to political leadership.

A few individuals become leaders by bringing forward a new idea and actively seeking supporters. These men and women hold up a banner of bold colors and people who share their vision and idealism join in support. These rare leaders command respect and loyalty through a shared commitment to certain principles. Perhaps the most recent example of this leadership is to be found in Congressman Jack Kemp (R-NY) and his feisty little band of supply-siders who brought us the 1981 tax cut, and through it, the present recovery.

A second, more popular, route to political leadership is to see where the crowd is headed and run out in front shouting, "Follow me!" This is also known as governing by opinion poll. Such "leaders" are, in fact, followers, but that doesn't stop them from being elected to public office.

A third group consists of the "do-it-yearself" school of political leadership. One simply stands in front of the telvision camera and announces that he or she is representing or speaking for some group. This is how Ralph Nader became a consumer advocate — consumers didn't elect him. If you insist that you speak for the people, or consumers, or the average American, and you repeat this claim loud enough and long enough, eventually the evening news will begin to believe it. (And once it is on television or in the newspapers it becomes true, of course.)

Unfortunately, when speaking on political issues, too many labor union leaders have chosen the path of leadership through self-appointment. These union officials do not poll their members before speaking out on issues such as federal spending, taxes or the deficit. They simply presume to speak for their members, and then spend compulsory union dues to promote political ends their members may or may not support.

A recent Gallup Pool commissioned by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce shows that in doing so these union officials presume too much.

The AFL-CIO, America's largest union federation, has endorsed a proposal to increase federal taxes by $120 billion over the next three years. Funny, why would union members want to pay higher taxes? They don't. While 67 per cent of all Americans understand that an increase in income taxes would pose a great threat to economic recovery, union members were even stronger in opposing new taxes. Seventy-two per cent of union members agreed that higher taxes would damage the recovery.

When asked whether the deficit should be reduced through increasing taxes of reducing federal spending, 54 per cent of union members opted for reducing spending. Only three per cent wanted to see higher taxes. Now, does the AFL-CIO represent the views of its members: Well, yes, sort of. Here they represent three per cent of their members. (and collect dues from 100 per cent of their members.)

Should tax brackets be indexed to prevent inflation from pushing working Americans into paying higher and higher marginal tax rates? The AFL-CIO says yes, our taxes should increase with inflation. Union members disagree by more than a two-to-one margin.

Should President Reagan veto some of the spending bills that exceed his budget request? The AFL-CIO wishes to protect their own special interest spending programs. Almost three-quarters of union members want to see that veto pen unsheathed.

When Lane Kirkland, president of the AFL-CIO, appears on television demanding higher taxes and more government give-away programs, the administration and Congress should remember that the vast majority of the roughly 20 million union members in America disagree.

They should also remember that Lane Kirkland has only one vote.

Senior Citizens Inc.

We held our Oct. meeting at the Meal Site on Monday, Oct. 3, 1983. President Amy Lind called the meeting to order. The secretary's report was read by Ruth Martin. The treasurer's report was read by Helmer Lind and both reports were approved as read.

There was no old business and as Oct. is the month selected for election of officers we went into that. Those elected for officers are as follows: president, Ruth Martin; vice president, Bertha Ordahl; secretary, Amy Lind; treasurer, Helmer Lind.

We have five directors and the following were elected: Art Skadsem, Jennie Lokken, Ruth Martin, Mayme McLaughlen and Gaylord Magner.

We have five members on our advisory board which now consists of our Mayor Vernon Gunderson, Pastor Earl Eveland, attorney Brian Rokke and two of our local store managers Harvey Underdahl and Stan Holmaas.

For new business we discussed the assessment Tri-Valley made on our meal site for the home delivered meals. They were short of funds for that part of the program. We were told that we could go to different organizations in our town and ask for the money, but we didn't feel we could do that, because they had recently been so generous in paying for our new carry out meal container. Several questions were asked such as, do the sites pay those who deliver the meals to the shut-ins. At our site the meals are delivered by volunteers who are not paid and these meals are paid for by those who receive them. Another question how long a time is this money expected to cover our home delivered meals? The problem was tabled until later in the month.

Our president suggested that we clean house this fall and keep in mind our bingo prizes. See if there is something you can spare, books, knick-knacks, a bar of soap or whatever. Put in a suitable paper sack and bring it to the center and one of these days when the works all done this fall we'll play bingo again.

Mrs. Heler Lind

Cold Weather Rule Can Help Avoid Shut-off

If you are worried about paying this winter's utility bills, learn about the "Cold Weather Rule" established by the Minnesota Public Utilities commission (PUC). Although it allows wintertime shut-offs of residential gas and electric service, it does protect certain customers from shut-off who follow these PUC guidelines:

(1) If you can't pay your utility bills during the cold weather season, you will be protected from shut-off between October 15 and April 15 if you qualify for "Inability to Pay" (ITP) status. To qualify, you must have been reasonably current in your payments as of October 15 — whether you are on a regular billing, a payment schedule or a budget payment plan. (If you are not current, act quickly if you can, before October 15, to ask to set up and start paying on a plan designed to pay up your back bills.)

Also, for ITP status, you must fit the income guidelines; must complete and return (within 10 days of receiving a notice of proposed disconnection) an "Inability to Pay" form; and must be willing to enter into a "reasonable payment schedule" with the utility. It is important for you to contact the utility to provide the details needed to set up a payment plan!

(If you are behind in your bills, you may contact the utility at any time during the year to ask to start a payment plan to catch up. Also, utilities which offer a budget plan must also offer budget plans to customers with back bills. Under these plans, one has at least 10 months to pay off back bills.)

(2) If you cannot get ITP status because you don't fit the income guidelines or because your payments were not current on October 15, you still have the right to enter into a payment plan with the utility. Your service will continue as long as you keep to the terms of that plan. Be sure it is a plan you can afford, because if you don't make the payments, you may be shut-off, even in cold weather!

(3) If you and the utility cannot agree on a reasonable payment schedule, to avoid a shut-off you must appeal to the PUC within seven days of receiving notice of your appeal rights. If the PUC disagrees with the utility, it will decide what is "reasonable" for you. The utility cannot shut-off your service if you keep up with the payments ordered by the PUC. (The PUC decision should be made in 30 days; shut-off cannot occur during that time.)

(4) If you agree to a payment schedule but later your financial situation changes, (such as you lose your job), contact the utility immediately to negotiate to change your payments. If the utility does not agree to a change, you can appeal to the PUC but do so immediately to avoid a missed payment and the shut-off which will result if you don't have ITP status. Under the PUC guidelines special payments schedules for persons whose bills were past-due as of October 15 must be designed to pay up those past-due bills in six months. This is non-negotiable; the payments must be met or shut-off can occur. However a customer whose situation changes and who won't be able to meet the total monthly payments of a payment schedule may negotiate to change that part (and only that part) of the payments which pay for his or her current and future utility service.

By now you should have received information from the utility explaining your right to name a third person who would also receive advance notice if you are in danger of being shut-off. In such a case, both of you would also receive a statement of your rights, a list of possible sources of financial help for making heating payments, and a postage-paid ITP form.

The "Cold Weather Rule" is in effect between October 15 and April 15, and it applies only to regulated utilities — not to municipal utilities, fuel dealers, nor to most cooperatives. (If your utility is not regulated by the PUC and you are having difficulty paying your bills, contact the utility immediately to explain your situation and to ask if it has any policies protecting customers from cold weather shut-offs, or offering payment plans to customers who cannot pay their bills in full.) For more information write the Public Utilities Commission, 160 E. Kellogg Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55101; or call 612-296-7126.

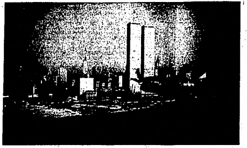
Hellcat's 40th Anniversary



Forty years ago the air war in the Pacific turned against the Japanese when the first Grumman F6F Hellcats took off from carriers into combat. The anniversary was commemorated recently when a vintage Hellcat flew by New York City landmarks like the World Trade Center. The plane came from the Kalamazoo (Mich.) Aviation History Museum and was flown by Preston S. (Pete) Parish of Kalamazoo.

The Grumman Hellcat is credited with almost 75 percent of the Navy's air-to-air victories during World War II. The fighter won a kill ratio of 19 to 1 by destroying more than 5,000 enemy aircraft.

In addition, it was the plane most often flown by American aces. (A pilot must down five enemy aircraft to become an ace.) In fact, it's estimated that about 300 American aces flew the Hellcat.

MCCL State Convention Is October 22-23

A nationally known legal expert involved in litigation over the starvation death of Indiana "Infant Doe" and the showing of a controversial television report on a number of similar deaths will be hightlights of the 12th annual convention of Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life (MCCL), set for October 22-23 at the St. Cloud Holiday Inn.

Banquet speaker will be James Bopp, principal trial counsel for intervenors in a suit involving Infant Doe, who died when he was refused necessary medical treatment, water and food. The baby's death prompted the department of health and human services to issue a rule based on a law prohibiting discrimination against the handicapped to prevent more deaths like Infant Doe's.

Conventioneers will view the report by Boston's WNEV-TV, documenting numerous cases of withholding medical care and nourishment from handicapped newborns. Called "Death in the Nursery," the report was produced by Pulitzer prize-winning journalist Carlton Sherwood, who along with colleagues probed the growing problem of infanticide in more than 20 states. MCCL recently purchased a vidio tape of the report, which was shown originally as a four-part series. Also speaking during the convention will be Rev. Edward Bryce, director of pro-life activities for the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, and Dr. Wanda Franz, a professor of family resources at West Virginia university, who is an expert on child development and the psychology of education.

The weekend also will include a showing of a British documentary on "brain death," which raises questions about the manner in which death is being diagnosed, especially in cases where the patient is considered a donor for organ transplantation.

The convention is open to all pro-life Minnesotans, and hundreds are expected to participate in a variety of seminars and workshops scheduled throughout the weekend. The convention will be kicked off with a free Friday night film festival at 7:30 p.m., including a number of the most popular films from MCCL's lending library.

Registration information can be obtained from MCCL, 4249 Nicollet Avenue, Minneapolis, MN 55409 (612) 825-6831.

Health Dep't. Has Hospital Price Report

Minnesota health department has released a new report on hospital prices in the Twin City metro area.

The report, which is based on data originally released by the Council of Community Hospitals (COCH) on August 10, compares the cost of services at 29 area hospitals. The COCH data was gathered as part of an effort to encourage "comparison shopping" for health care services on the part of insurers, employers, health maintenance organizations and other health care consumers.

The new report presents the COCH data in a different format, which should make it easier for consumers to make comparisons between hospitals, according to Marianne Miller, head of the department's health economics program.

Part of the program was the sheer amount of information collected by COCH, Miller said. In order to account for variations in the severity of cases handled at different hospitals, COCH looked at more than the 25 basic diagnostic categories for which price information was gathered — categories like "congestive heart failure," "tonsillitis," or "asthma."

COCH went further, and divided each diagnostic category into several "case mix groups," based on the kind of treatment required for each patient. COCH then calvulated the average cost, at each of the hospitals involved in the story, for patients in each of the resulting 101 case mix groups.

The new report presents this data in two sets of tables, one organized by hospital, the other by case mix group. There is a section for each hospital, which includes that facilitity's average price for each case mix group, as well as information on how each price compares with prices at other hospitals. There is also a section for each case mix group, which includes the average cost per patient at each hospital, along with information on the range of prices available at area hospitals.

Three area hospitals are not included in the report. Children's Health center, Minneapolis, and Children's hospital, St. Paul, do not treat many patients in the diagnostic categories used for the report. Hennepin county medical center includes physician fees when billing patients, so their prices are not directly comparable to those of the other hospitals.

COCH compiled the price information partly in response to a 1982 state law, which called for the creation of a voluntary price reporting system for hospitals and other health care providers. The purpose of the law was to keep health care costs down, by encouraging price competition among care providers.

Copies of the new report are available free of charge, in limited numbers, from the Minnesota Department of Health. Interested persons should contact Marianne Miller at (612) 623-5520.

Butter production in Minnesota during 1982 totaled an estimated 178,500,000 pounds, a two per cent gain from 1981. Minnesota butter accounted for 14.2 per cent of the U.S. total.

Dayton Affirms TRF As Enterprise Zone City

MARK DAYTON, Minnesota commissioner of energy and economic development, spoke Thursday noon to a luncheon arranged by the legislative committee of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce. He affirmed Thief River Falls as a designated city for enterprise zone funding.

Commissioner Mark Dayton of the Minnesota department of energy and economic development told Thief River Falls area people what they wanted to hear at a luncheon sponsored Thursday noon by the legislative committee of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce. The event was held in the general office building in the former Arctic Enterprises complex.

Commissioner Dayton told the approximately 200 people in attendance that he sees no reason there will be any changes in his initial designation of Thief River Falls as a participating city in the state's enterprise zone funding. Thief River Falls is scheduled to have $1.75 million available over a seven-year period ($466,666 in the first two years) to provide various incentives to local business.

Dayton prefaced his remarks by noting that "quality of life begins with a job" and commended the state administration and legislature for providing the state with a "solid foundation of budget surplus instead of deficits". He said the next step should be to cut taxes, with elimination of the 10 per cent surcharge on income taxes to be the first priority.

He said that one of the targeted financial incentives authorized by the 1983 session of the Minnesota legislature to assist business in the state was the creation of enterprise zones. These zones are along borders of the state to assist businesses in competing with other businesses in adjoining states.

"While I would like to take some credit for Thief River Falls receiving enterprise zone allocation," he said, the credit goes to those who prepared the excellent application through which selection was made."

He said the department of energy and economic development set up a numerical rating process, selected eight finalist cities and met with officials in each of them before announcing initial designations. Thief River Falls earned its designation, he said, and "you should be very proud of what you have accomplished. I admire your courage and your dedication to your city."

Dayton said the first year of implementing the plan will be a learning process for all concerned but that he is excited about the partnership with the cities and plans to make many more visits here in the future as the procedure evolves. He said the state and cities will be using the program to the greatest advantage.

In response to a question, he noted that the legislative advisory committee would be meeting the next day and would make its recommendations to him. He will then make the final designation as soon as he receives the report. By law he is required to make the designation by October 31. "I have heard nothing that would cause me to question the original designation," he assured the group.

The commissioner added that there would be $7 million available in the second year of the program to provide assistance to two to five cities.

Mayor Bob Carlson recognized those who had worked to prepare the city's application for competitive enterprise zone designation. They included Wayne Faust from the Northwest regional development commission; Jerry Wigness, city clerk; Jerry Sandstrom, executive director of Jobs Incorporated; Jack Quinlivan, city planner; and Dave Strong, chairman of the Mayor's advisory committee.

Mayor Carlson also said the city of Thief River Falls intends to be of assistance to Arctco, Inc., in selling buildings in the former Arctic.

Under the allocation of funding Thief River Falls is to have available, the following tax reductions which may be approved by the commissioner:

(1) An exemption from the general sales tax imposed by chapter 279A for purchases of construction materials or equipment for use in the zone;

(2) A credit against the income tax of an employer for workers employed in the zone, other than workers employed in construction, up to a maximum of $3,000 per employee;

(3) An income tax credit for a percentage of the cost of debt financing to construct new facilities in the zone; and

(4) A state paid property tax credit for a portion of the property taxes paid by the new commercial or industrial facility or the additional property taxes paid by an expansion of an existing commercial or industrial facility in the zone.

In its letter of designation from Commissioner Dayton on September 23, the city was informed that all applications were analyzed in two parts — first on the economic hardship of the area and second on its ability to perform the submitted investment activities.

Minor Injuries Result As Car, Train Collide

Danny Fredrick Basher, 27, Thief River Falls, luckily escaped serious injuries this morning when the car he was driving collided with a Soo Line train about one mile east of Viking.

Basher was alone in the car, a 1976 Chevrolet Monte Carlo, driving east on State Aid 2, when the accident occurred at approximately 7:40 a.m. The train was traveling in a northwesterly direction. Skid marks at the scene indicated that he saw the train and attempted to stop. Struck on the passenger side, the car was thrown in the ditch on the northeast side of the intersection and was considered a total loss.

Basher was transported by Pennington county sheriff Charles Richards to the Falls Clinic where he was treated for minor cuts and bruises and released.

NWRDC To Hold Conference In TRF Oct. 19

Northwest regional development commission (NWRDC) will hold an economic development conference on October 19, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Lon's supper club in Thief River Falls. State and federal tools for financing and assisting in business start-ups and expansions will be presented.

It is anticipated that officers of local financial institutions, members of public and private development groups, local elected and appointed officials, and businesses considering expansions would find the economic development conference quite useful.

Economic development administration state of Minnesota Representative, Jack Arnold, will address the conferees at the noon luncheon. Arnold will discuss economic development opportunities and useful local strategies. For reservations call 281-1390.

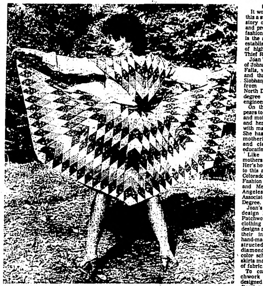
United Way To Celebrate Tues.

Thief River Falls United Way will wrap up its 1983-84 campaign with a celebration banquet Tuesday evening at the Thief River Falls Golf Club. Social hour will be from 6 to 7 p.m., with the meal served from 7 to 8 p.m.

Attendance is open to all United Way volunteers, contributors and friends, with a charge of $4 for the meal. All volunteers should turn in their contributions prior to the Tuesday night wrap-up.

An Experience In High Fashion . . .

TRF Homemaker Starts The "Joan Walker Line"



PATCHWORK can provide high fashion as illustrated by this outfit created by Joan Walker of Thief River Falls. The all diamond full circle skirt is in red, white and blue material. While unique in pattern and tasteful in design, it is also practical and action-oriented.

by Barbara Goer

It would be difficult to call this a success story, but it is a story of grim determination and probably even good old-fashioned bullheadedness. It is the story of a struggle to establish the Joan Walker line of high fashion clothing in Thief River Falls.

Joan Walker lives at the end of Johnson Drive, Thief River Falls, with her husband Jim and three-year-old daughter Siobhan. Jim will graduate from the University of North Dakota in May with a degree in law and is an engineer for Stewart & Walker.

On the surface, Joan appears to be a typical housewife and mother. She loves plants and her home is decorated with many handmade crafts. She has all the concerns of motherhood, from cooking and cleaning to properly educating her child.

Like many wives and mothers, Joan has a degree. Her's however, may be unique to this area. Originally from Colorado, she attended the Fashion Institute of Design and Merchandising of Los Angeles, obtaining an Associate of Fashion Design Degree.

Joan's interest in fashion design lies in patchwork. Patchwork is not new to the clothing industry, but Joan's designs are unique because of their intricate detail. The hand-made items are constructed from two-inch diamonds in coordinating color schemes. She also has skirts made from small strips of fabric.

To complement the patchwork line, Joan has designed a group of coordinating silk garments. Her goal is to meet the needs of the customer who is looking for clothing to wear both for work and an evening out, therefore the lines are conservative. She describes them as having good quality but simple lines.

In July of 1982 Joan decided to put her talent to work. She hired a woman to help her, and together they made an all-diamond skirt. It took them three days just to do the patchwork — a total of [illegible] hours. Then Joan made a second skirt, cutting the time to one-fourth or 22 hours. She set the wholesale price for the one at $220.

In the early days of her venture into merchandising, Joan had no representative to sell her skirts. She took them to Colorado in September to a class reunion. She marketed them herself in Vail and Fort Collins, but received no orders.

When she arrived home, she designed three more skirts, a star design with solid inserts and a full and half-circle stripe. She also made matching shawls and belts.

Joan packed her merchandise and made a trip to Minneapolis where she secured appointments at Dayton's and Anthony's. She was well received at both places, but she made her fi

Young Artists Solo Contest Set For May 19

Fourth annual young artists solo competition, co-sponsored by the Fargo-Moorhead symphony women's association and KCCM 91.1 FM, Minnesota public radio in Moorhead, will take place May 19 at Concordia college in the Hvidsten hall of music.

Students currently in high school grades 10 to 12, studying piano or orchestral instruments, and living within a 100 mile radius of Fargo-Moorhead are encouraged to enter.

Three cash awards will be given, as well as scholarship opportunities, and the top performer will have an opportunity to win the grand award, a solo performance with the Fargo-Moorhead symphony during their young people's concert.

Competition will consist of preliminaries in the morning and finals in the afternoon. Finals will be open to the public.

Repertoire lists and applications may be obtained from music teachers or by writing to Young Artists Solo Competition, KCCM-FM, Concordia College, Box 72, Moorhead, MN 56560.

Northland Set For Production Of "Godspell"

Northland theatre will open its 1983-84 season with performances of the musical "Godspell," at 8 p.m. on October 28, 29, 30, and November 4, 5 and 6 in the Northland community college theatre, Thief River Falls.

Show is based upon the gospel according to St. Matthew, and features various styles of music including folk, ballad, pop, rock, light musical comedy, and dramatic. Stories, sayings and parables of the gospel are enacted using many theatrical devices, including pantomime, puppetry, vaudeville antics, minstrel show techniques, and tap and soft shoe dancing.

Among parables included in the show are: the Pharisee and the tax collector, the unfaithful servant, the good Samaritan, the rich man and Lazarus, the sower and the seed, the prodigal son, and the sheep and the goats. Also included are numerous scriptural passages including the beatitudes and many quoted words of Christ.

Of special interest will be the appearance of Northland alumnus, Chris Kays, guest artist in the role of Christ. Chris is also working with Director Roger Vaughan, is stanging the production and assistant coaching.

Wendy Easton and Kays are choreographing the show. Easton teaches dance at Northland community college and has choregraphed numerous area musicals including "The Fantasticks" last winter. She has studied with the Royal Winnipeg ballet company and performed for one season with the North Dakota ballet company.

Cast consists of Chris Kays, Wendy Easton, Mindy Green, Patti Nelson, Ann Odegaard, and Margaret White, from Thief River Falls; Steve Dalager and Alan Lull from St. Hilaire; Cherie Perisian and Perry Moran from Red Lake Falls; Lisa Kriel from Goodridge, and Bud Fontes from Canton, OH.

Tickets will go on sale Tuesday, October 18, with all seats reserved. Tickets may be reserved by calling 681-2181, extension 61, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Admission will be $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for students.

Supt. Block Summarizes School Dist. Facilities

A MUSK OXEN, similar to the animal photographed above by Ron Broten of Thief River Falls, provided more excitement than bargained for during a canoe trip in Canada's Northwest Territories this summer. Broten, Hilary Stoltman and Omer Olson of Thief River Falls and Billy Wikert of Grygla spent three weeks canoeing 450 miles of the Thelon river. A story on the trip, plus a number of other photoes taken by Broten, will be featured in Wednesday's edition of the Times.

In a letter enclosed with the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce newsletter, Supt. Robert Block of School District 564 has summarized the situation regarding Thief River Falls facilities. Because the content is of general interest to the community, it is reprinted here in its entirety:

Joan Walker Makes Fashion Her Business

sale at Anthony's. That really thrilled her since it is considered one of the most exclusive toutiques in the Minneapolis area.

Joan's next sales effort was an art show at the Paul Bunyan Mall in Bemidji. All she sold was one purse! It was there that Joan met Arden Barnes, an anesthetist at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls. Arden was crazy about Joan's designs and has been a constant source of encouragement.

In November Joan went to the Minneapolis Merchandise Mart where she was awarded a courtesy booth for the purpose of finding a representative. By this time she had added silk samples to her line — skirts, camisoles and jackets in several colors. She spent four days talking to reps from all over the country. Many expressed interest, but in the end, none opted to handle her line.

Joan returned home somewhat disappointed, but she did have work to do. She filled the order from Anthony's and had other orders from friends. Some were for Christmas gifts; all were special orders. Fabric for each patchwork item was purchased separately so every one was different.

Joan continued to look for a representative, combing the ads in "Women's Wear Daily". She finally found one in January of 1983 who would sell her silk line. He asked her to expand it so she designed drawstring harem pants and a halter dress.

Having a representative did make a difference. Joan received several orders and even hired a seamstress parttime. However, many of the accounts turned out to be bad, and this was a major setback.

In February, with grim determination, Joan designed a new line of silk charmeuse, a pure silk crepe-back satin to send to her rep. She had side-button pants, a tunic, short and long-sleeved tuxedo blouses and dresses.

March and April were much brighter. She did receive several orders. Some were excellent accounts, but some were returned.

During the month of May, Joan concentrated on two projects. She had a style show at the Thief River golf club where six models showed 25 outfits to 91 area women. Secondly, she was determined to hire a representative to sell her patchwork designs. She finally achieved that by sending out photos to interested prospects.

Her new rep wanted to meet her and arrangements were made for a trip to Los Angeles. He asked Joan to bring him three sample sets of each item in the line. This meant sewing about a hundred pieces of clothing for display.

At the same time, Joan received her largest silk order ever. She hired nine seamstresses and even had to call on family members for help to finish by the deadline.

Joan was still doing hand stitching on the sample garments as she boarded the plan for Los Angeles with her family. She spent a week in Los Angeles using a borrowed sewing machine and even hired a woman to do buttonholes. Together they met the deadline.

Joan met her representative about three hours before her return to Thief River Falls. He asked her to lower her profit margin and accepted her clothing samples enthusiastically.

When Joan and Jim returned home, they wrote a business plan and pursued outside financing. They obtained a loan from North Country Ventures, a group from Detroit Lakes that invests in new businesses. Since then Joan has been waiting for more orders and filling orders for local people.

The day I arrived to interview Joan, she had just received all of her samples back in the mail. There were no orders, and there was no explanation.

I asked her if she had any plans now. "Not for the moment," she smiled. But Joan is not giving up. She wants to set up display windows in hotels and is considering other forms of advertising.

The most positive aspect about Joan's story is that she has stuck with her hopes and goals. She has been able to work in her home with low cost overhead and involve the entire family in her business. She is proud that she could get something like this started in a town the size of Thief River Falls. She is pleased with the financial backing she was able to secure.

Best of all, Joan is able to produce a garment that once took 88 hours in about eight hours. She has cut the original wholesale price in half and has still maintained superior quality.

Joan was recently appointed to the advisory board of Mainstay, a rural subsidiary of WEDCO — Women's Economic Development Corporation. It is an organization dedicated to getting women into business.

Joan recognizes that the fashion industry is a highly competitive and constantly changing field. She knows that failures far outnumber successes and that Thief River Falls is far from the country's fashion capitals. But she is fulfilling a desire to be creative and she possesses great spirit and energy. Determonation and perserverance have often led to success, and this Thief River Falls housewife hopes they will lead to a bright future for the Joan Walker Line.

Kindness is contagious . . . It generates all kinds of good by-products . . . such as big, wide smiles, warm hugs, friendly greetings and acts of courtesy. You may be muddling along, just barely making it thru your day when you meet someone who pays you a compliment or encourages you as a person. All of a sudden you feel so much better you treat the next person you meet kindly too. Kindness is indeed contagious.

PRESENTING TESTIMONY at the Minnesota House agriculture committee hearing in Thief River Falls Wednesday afternoon was Mrs. Richard (Karen) Mathson of Oklee. She said she and her husband have been farming for seven years and only in the first year were they able to harvest an average crop. Her testimony also included opinion on the entire economic picture as it relates to agriculture. "Farmers are the only businessmen who let somebody else set the price on their product," she said. "I hear the voice on the radio every day; 'Good afternoon, farmers; here are your markets for today.' Take it or leave it."

Cold Weather Rule Is Now Effective

Last Saturday, October 15, the Minnesota public utilities commission's cold weather rule went into effect for this winter heating season. The rule, although it does not prohibit disconnection of gas and electric service, does provide protection for low income customers who are unable to pay their utility bills and are willing to work out a payment schedule with the utility.

During the heating season, October 15 to April 15, customers who become delinquent and receive a notice of proposed disconnection, also receive an "inability to pay" (ITP) form which is included in the final notice. Form includes a list of agencies that provide funds for assistance in paying fuel bills as well as their rights. Those who are unable to pay should complete the form and return it to the respective utility indicating a willingness to enter a payment agreement.

"If the utility accepts your declaration," explained Commissioner Cynthia Kitlinski, "you may make smaller payments or defer your payments until April 15, if it becomes necessary. However, if the gas or electric company decides to challenge your statement of inability to pay, it will be appealed to the public utilities commission." Commission has 30 days in which to make a determination of the customer's inability to pay. During that period, service cannot be disconnected.

To qualify for ITP status, customers must provide documentation to the effect that their income does not exceed the income limits for their household. This means the size or number of household members and the amount of their annual income. For those who are unemployed on public assistance, social security, disability insurance or other qualifying factors, documentation is also required.

Regardless of income level, all customers are entitled to a payment schedule whether they qualify for ITP status or not. There are different types of payment schedules and if the customers and the utility are unable to agree upon a payment agreement, the customer may appeal to the commission to establish a payment schedule which the utility must honor.

Rule applies only to those customers served by a regulated utility. Unregulated cooperatives, municipal utilities, and propane dealers are not under the public utilities commission's jurisdiction.

Block Makes Summary Of School Assets

are held there). This means that a large number of students are now moving from the high school to the service center to attend classes that really should be in the very heart of the high school.

The problems with that are many. For the handicapped, it's impossible to travel the two or three blocks without providing a school bus and-or other type of transporation to make it available to them. For others, the conditions in northern Minnesota don't allow movement between buildings very well by walking. Consequently, we have a substantial amount of travel by car with very little parking in the area which has created difficulties for all involved. With that travel between the buildings comes a continual complaint of smoking, truancy, tardiness, etc., which we try to supervise and find it difficult to do.

Also very important is the fact that the facilities in Lincoln high school leave much to be desired. The science facilities in a technological age are seriously outdated and the rooms are quite small. It would be extremely difficult to renovate and make them into 1980 science facilities. The band room is down in the very basement which creates a substantial fire hazard. Quite often when it rains we find water running into that room. Our library is sorely inadequate with insufficient room to properly house enough volumes and the necessary audio visual equipment that should go along with the library.

To get handicapped students from the main floor to the upper floor, we have to haul them by wheelchair up the stairway. We need an elevator to provide for that kind of movement. If we remodel, we must make all areas program-accessible to the handicapped. The old parts of the building that are closed are still standing there, creating a fire hazard throughout.

The board has some major decisions to make about Lincoln high school:

(1) Whether to try and build a totally new high school at a different site;

(2) Should the building remain on the same site; or

(3) Should it be built on the same site away from the regular building so that we don't make decisions for people who want to add on to the building 20 years down the road?

If, in fact, any building is done within the courtyard and added to the present building, it predetermines what can be done 20 years from now.

These are extremely major decisions important to you as taxpayers and business persons, important to the board as leaders in education, and most of all important to students who so badly need a highly technical skilled education to meet the needs of the 80's. I have been told, as everyone else has been, that it's not a good time to run a bond issue. I believe that, because I've never found a time over the last 20 years that has been a good time to run a bond issue. But somehow, something must be done to preserve the integrity of an educational institution — integrity that is sorely questioned by many people who we might attract into the area in terms of new business, companies, practitioners, etc.

Old Lincoln needs substantial repairs and we will continue to maintain the building. We now need to put a new roof over the gymnasium as it is in poor condition. I've heard people say that we have not maintained Lincoln as well as we might have and I find that hard to believe by looking through the records and finding that we've expended over 65 per cent more for maintenance than the average of other districts in the state (per square foot). We have been unable at times to do the things that we knew were necessary because we've been a quarter-of-a-million dollars in the red in capital outlay monies to provide for these kinds of maintenance projects. This was due to having to add on to the annex parts of Lincoln were closed.

I feel in the last three years that we have accomplished a substantial amount of maintenance even under present financial conditions with new roofs, energy savings, economizing measures, and doing the maximum amount of maintenance jobs through the maintenance department of the school district.

The question of what to do with the high school still plagues us. We need your help and input and most of all your support. We want to maintain an educational system that is not suspect and one that you and the area can be proud of. The board has directed me to poll the community in terms of the major question of location. We are in the process of providing for this in an overall community education assessment which will happen in the next two or three months.

Once again, thank you. We appreciate your interest and concern.

ALMOST DAILY FISHING provided food for four Thief River Falls adventurers during a canoe trip in Canada's Northwest Territories this summer. Hilary Stoltman, Omer Olson and Ron Broten of Thief River Falls and Billy Wikert of Grygla spent three weeks negotiating 450 miles of the Thelon river between Yellowknife and Baker Lake settlements. Fish provided the staple diet for the trip and the men often ate two pounds of fish each at the evening meal, yet all lost weight on the journey. From 75 to 90 per cent of the fishing was done from shore with lake trout and northern pike being the principal fish caught. The view above is typical of the rocky shoreline of the river. A story and more photos of the trip will be published in Wednesday's edition of the Times.

A LITTLE RELAXATION during their three-week canoe trip on the Thelon river in Canda's Northwest Territories is enjoyed by (left to right) Hilary Stoltman, Thief River Falls; Billy Wikert, Grygla; Ron Broten and Omer Olson, Thief River Falls. When it was meal time on the 450-mile trip, the group would look for a flat rock along the river to use for a table. For a story on the trip, along with a number of photoes taken by Broten, watch for Wednesday's edition of the Times.

Students Jump Rope For Heart Program Funds

Students in Minnesota will be jumping for better health as well as benefiting the American Heart Association through the Minnesota affiliate in the jump rope for heart program November through March.

Sponsored by the Minnesota association of health, physical education, recreation and dance, jump rope for heart promotes the importance of cardiovascular fitness and also raises funds for the American Heart Association, Minnesota affiliate in its battle against heart disease.

Jump rope for heart program consists of teams of six students jumping rope for a maximum of three hours. When one person tires, the next team member beings. Funds are raised by students securing pledges based on the hours their team jumps.

Funds raised will continue the Minnesota affiliate's programs of research, public and professional education and community service. More than 150 schools participated in the jump rope for heart program last year raising over $250,000. Efforts by the Minnesota affiliate which benefit the schools include curriculum guides, CPR programs, educational supplies and seminars.

Students and their schools participating this year's jump rope for heart event are eligible for an extensive prize package.

Through the efforts of the American Heart Association, the percentage of all deaths due to cardiovascular disease in 1982 fell below 50 per cent for the first time since 1948. Despite these gains, cardiovascular disease continues as America's number one health problem.

American Heart Association, Minnesota affiliate is a statewide health agency dedicated to its mission of reducing premature death and disability caused from heart and blood vessel disease.

To find out how your school can participate in a jump rope for heart, contact the American Heart Association at 739-4700.

Is There An Answer?

We don't know what good, if any, will come out of the public hearings held by the Minnesota Senate and House agriculture committees in Thief River Falls October 7 and 12 — aside from the psychological value for some people who were able to unburden themselves of some things they wanted to tell somebody about.

There are farm families in dire straits in this part of the country — good farmers of long standing with well established operations and demonstrated managerial ability. They are guilty of only one thing — faith that weather the next year would be better than the last. Each year their faith has been shaken and their financial condition has worsened. Weather has dealt them a series of smashing, crushing blows.

The problem has been well established and suitably recognized. Farmers without income can't pay their debts or taxes, purchase equipment or adequately support their families. They can't maintain their equity in their investment and in many cases stand to lose in a few short years what it has taken them a lifetime to accumulate.

While the problem is clear, the answer is more elusive. Indeed, after listening to testimony at the two hearings, we wonder if there is an answer at all. In a single voice the stricken farmers plead, "We need help; something has to be done." But when the question of what must be done is asked, the voice falters and becomes a scattering of weak whispers.

One major problem is that individual situations are as diverse and independent as the individual farmers themselves. A plan that could help some farmers would be of little use to others. A loan to one farmer may save his farm; a loan to another may cause him to fail faster. Grants or forgiveness of loans invites corruption and cheating and misuse of funds.

There are those who insist that the right to enter into a business — any business — includes the right to fail in that business. There are those who sincerely believe that it is not the role of government to bail any business out of a financial bind. These people — at least to a degree — may be right.

But farming isn't like any other business. It is the only one that has the most vital product on earth — food — yet is content to let the buyer set the price to be paid for it. It is restricted and regulated from every angle, yet the people in it are too "independent" to organize effectively to combat being used.

If farming was organized like a union, it would have a fund of its own to provide relief in the scattered areas of the nation where disaster hits. It would not have to beg a seemingly reluctant government for the necessities to survive.

Long term loans, low interest rates, consolidation of debt, delays in repayment — all may be of some benefit to some people. But we believe that in many cases they will only add to the burden which is now being carried, resulting only in greater bondage to the lending agencies, public and private.

In the more than 20 years we have lived in Thief River Falls, it seems to us there have been fewer good harvests than poor ones. A few years after we came here, we overheard a coffee counter conversation between a couple of local farmers. "How was the crop out your way?" one asked. "About average," the other replied. "Oh," the first farmer grunts, "another disaster, huh?"

The point here is that even the most optimistic of farmers have no reason to expect that the next two or five or 10 or 20 crop years will provide them with good harvests, and certainly not with both good harvests and good prices. Somewhere along the line they should expect to encounter difficulty in paying anything other than modest annual operating loan payments and reasonable long-term mortgages.

Nor do we expect the suggestion by Rep. Kenneth J. McDonald of Watertown, a member of the House Agriculture committee, to be implemented. He told the hearing Wednesday that the solution would be to proclaim ourselves a foreign nation, declare war on the United States, surrender, and establish a dictatorship. This, he said, would assure us of a flood of grants and free assistance from the federal government as has been evidenced over the years.

Hard-nosed business attitude is simply that the devastated farmers of the area are out of luck and that's the way it goes sometimes. Nobody said life would be easy and you can't guarantee everyone to be a success in business.

But compassion dictates that people who are being unfairly punished by something over which they have absolutely no control are entitled to collective relief. Our welfare programs provide it in little bites to millions who will probably never have, nor probably ever want, gainful employment. Isn't it likely that failed farmers could become part of that group?

How much better it would be for federal government to grant a large lump of funds which would help restore the livelihood of an infinitely small segment of the population in which the work ethic is securely ingrained and for whom recurring give-aways would not be necessary.

There are risks in making such grants — risks that undeserving people would unfairly benefit or that the funds would not get to where they are needed most. There are risks in establishing a precedent for all disaster situations. Few would deny that the risks are there in any such endeavor. But we think our farmers are worth the risk, and we believe the risk well outweighs the alternative.

And in the long run we believe that meaningful assistance now could well avert huge financial costs and much human suffering down the road. The United States has been called a nation with a heart. Let's hope our government will see fit to act from it. As we see it from here, it's the only meaningful answer.

Detroit Must Learn To Compete Unaided

Following editorial is from the new national publication USA Today:

The confetti has barely settled in the boardroom's of the Big Three automakers, where they're still buzzing about stunning second-quarter profits and recovery at last.

But Detroit says it's too early to put away the crutch that helped it walk again. Two companies — Ford and Chrysler — want Japan to voluntarily limit the number of cars it exports to the USA for another year.

Japan currently has about 22 per cent of the U.S. automobile market. If the lid comes off the quota, some automakers fear that could rise to 40 per cent. That might be an exaggeration but at this point the industry's recovery remains fragile and competitive pressures will hurt.

Since 1981, Japan has voluntarily limited the number of cars it sends to the United States to 1.7 million per year. Later this month, U.S. officials will ask Japan to renew that quota through 1984. The Japanese are not unfriendly to the extension.

They know that our automakers have been suffering until recently and that unemployment in the industry has run more than 20 per cent. They also know that Congress is considering something called "local content" legislation that would require that all cars sold in this country be built with 90 per cent American parts and labor.

The bill would virtually outlaw cars made abroad. It also would punish American consumers by denying them the chance to buy cheaper Japanese cars.

Japan can build small models at least $1,500 per car less than Detroit. The reasons? Lower labor costs there, higher taxes here, government concessions to industry there and the current imbalance between the yen and the dollar.

All of that may seem unfair to American carmakers and auto workers. But in the final analysis the consumer who pays the higher price must be protected.

In truth, we cannot afford to allow "local content" laws to pass. And any long-term quota on foreign imports would be a grave mistake.

It would be bad for the world economy and for car buyers at home. We don't need unreasonable trade barriers against foreign countries. They will bring on retaliation and promote trade wars that we can ill afford.

The American auto industry must become competitive with foreign imports. It must continue to strive to make better cars with better technology at lower prices. This is the only way to ensure profits for industry, jobs for the workers and reasonable prices for consumers.

No "local content" law or "voluntary" quota will do any of that. True, the industry, until very recently, was limping badly. But unless Detroit puts down the quota crutch soon, it will never learn to walk alone.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Cavalry Instructor: "You'll never be a horseman unless you really love riding. Even the average horseman has an ache in his heart when he's away from his horse."

Rookie Rider: "Well, sir, considering where my ache is, sir, I must be way below average."

Farm Bureau Notes Rise In Membership

Minnesota farm bureau federation recently announced an increase in its membership over last year. The federation, consisting of 83 county farm bureaus, reports also that over 40 countries have indicated a growth in membership. No membership numbers were listed.

"It's exciting for us to be growing in these economic times," said Merlyn Lokensgard, president of the Minnesota farm bureau. "We look for growth every year, and it helps us in our efforts in St. Paul and in Washington."

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Panic in Washington

They have begun to panic. A frenzied desperation has engulfed the city of Washington, D.C. For the tax and spenders who have ruled the roost for two generations know that July 1 is rapidly approaching.

This year, July 1 is not just another day. It is the day that all Americans will receive a 10 per cent reduction in tax rates — the third installment of the 1981 tax cut. And this is bad news for big government.

The liberal politicians who have built their careers spending other people's money know that something must be done. But what is that something?

Oh, they've tried to stop the tax cut before. The summer of 1981 saw the special interests dragging out the big guns to defeat the people's tax cut. But Ronald Reagan had just been elected President, carrying 44 states on the promise that the confiscatory marginal tax rates would be brought down. For once, the American taxpayers rose up and drowned out the voices of Washington's special interests — the bureaucrats, the public employee unions and the recipients of federal giveaways.

Official Washington felt unloved and unappreciated for their long years of selflessly spending our money. They regrouped and laid down a heavy counterattack.

First, we were told that tax cuts would be wildly inflationary. This argument was dropped when inflation fell from double digits to below four per cent. The promised skyrocketing interest rates did not materialize. Rather, the prime interest rate fell from 21.5 per cent to 10.5 per cent.

This having failed, the second line of defense ran as follows: The tax cut won't work. Supply-side economics will not bring recovery. Oops. Recovery came. The stock market soared past the 1,200 mark; housing starts and auto sales rose; more than 800,000 new jobs were created in the first five months of the year; more than a million new small businesses incorporated in the past two years.

Next argument: Tax cuts are responsible for the deficit. The American people were asked to ignore the $200 billion plus increase in federal spending. Such ignorance, however, is not to be found outside Washington and the people were not fooled into believing that the federal government had been transformed into a bureaucratic Twiggy.

Now, with only a few short weeks until July 1, Tip O'Neill has come up with one last line of defense. The tax cut is unfair. Now a 25 per cent across-the-board cut in marginal tax rates may strike you and me as the arithmetic definition of fair, but the liberals in Congress have decided in their desperation to appeal to the basest of human emotions — envy.

They assure us that their latest brainstorm — a $700 cap on the July 1 tax cut — would only affect taxpayers earning $50,000 and up. Their understanding of the tax code, however, is no better than their understanding of economics. The "tax cap" is not aimed at playboys sitting on the decks of their summer yachts clipping coupons. Rather it is a declaration of war on the middle class. The cap would take its greatest toll on single taxpayers with taxable incomes between $30,125 and $55,300 and married couples with taxable incomes between $35,225 and $109,400. The biggest losers would be families where both the husband and wife worked — four out of five of all families earning over $35,000.

Also at the receiving end of this latest tax increase would be over 2.5 million small businesses (including 350,000 family farms) which are not incorporated and pay individual tax rates.

As for the rich — the supposed targets of this tax increase — only nine per cent of those hurt by the "tax cap" earn over $100,000.

The "tax cap" will fail. It is a last ditch attempt to keep more money in Washington and out of the hands of those who earned it. It is born of desperation.

Even Congressman should know better.

Soo Quarterly Grain Hauling Reaches High

Record amount of grain moved from country points served by the Soo Line railroad in the third quarter, topping a decade-old mark set during 1973 when large Soviet purchases moved for export.

Following a record month for grain originations in August, Soo moved its second highest monthly total, 650,000 tons, in September. Soo's total movements for the third quarter from country points totaled 1,679,000 tons, up 10 per cent from the prior record of 1,524,000 tons set in the third quarter of 1973.

Heavy grain movement this year began early in August. An early harvest in Soo territory and movements of PIK grain stocks coincided to produce heavy demand for loading during the quarter. New freight rate structures were established during the third quarter to facilitate North Dakota barley producer access to new feed markets in the Southwest, resulting in substantial volumes of new traffic. There were increases in 1983 of 25 and 50 car multiple units, but most grains moved in single car or three car multiples.

Demand for freight cars was heavy during August and September with Soo's 3,000 grain car fleet supplemented with 1,600 additional cars brought in from other rail lines and private owners.

Total grain tonnage handled by the Soo from the country points for the first nine months of 1983 is up 22 per cent from 1982.

Building Boom Hits Resorts In Minnesota

Nearly $37 million in construction is now under way in Minnesota resorts, according to the results of a survey conducted by the Minnesota resort association.

Resorts around the state are undertaking projects to add cabins, condominiums, health spas, meeting rooms, restaurants, jacuzzis, microwaves and a variety of other facilities to make the Minnesota resort experience more attractive. Some seasonal operations are gearing up for year-round business and the time share and condominuum concepts of vacationing are becoming a more important part of the Minnesota vacation scene.

Resort association study revealed six properties are involved in projects of over $1 million. Seven other resorts have projects under way costing between $150,000 and $1 million and a number of other resorts are investing thousands of dollars into more than the normal touch-up and maintenance of their existing properties. These investments are accompanied by increased employment and advertising expenditures as properties lengthen their season and increase their guest capacity.

Vocational Tape Is Made For Public Use

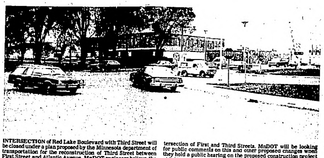
Vocational equity office, Minnesota department of education, has developed a 15-minute slide-tape presentation entitled, "Minnesota's vocational pioneers."

Goal of the presentation is to help people make an initial or transitory career choice based on their interests, abilities and goals, not on traditional stereotypes of "acceptable" sex-linked work roles. Assumption is that individuals who choose a career based on their personal abilities, needs, goals and preferences will be more satisfied and productive students and workers.

Slides, audio-tape and printed materials include interviews with people who chose training and occupations nontraditional for their sex. These vocational pioneers talk about the barriers, supports and rewards they encountered in their career decision-making process.

Presentation makes a special effort to emphasize today's realities. For example, people making a career decision should know that on the average, women spend 28 years and men 38 years in the paid work worce.

Copies of the presentation can be borrowed from the local area vocational-technical institute; school district's Educational Center Service Unit (ECSU); Minnesota Curriculum Service Center, 3554 White Bear Avenue, White Bear Lake, Minnesota 55110, telephone 612-770-3943 or 1-800-652-9024; Minnesota extension service 4-H youth program, telephone 612-373-1252; and the vocational equity office, telephone 612-296-1866.



INTERSECTION of Red Lake Boulevard with Third Street will be closed under a plan proposed by the Minnesota department of transportation for the reconstruction of Third Street between First Street and Atlantic Avenue. MnDOT engineers believe the intersection's proximity to the Davis Avenue intersection is confusing to drivers and contributes to the large number of accidents which occur there. Statistics show 27 accidents there during the past seven years, more than occurred at the intersection of First and Third Streets. MnDOT will be looking for public comments on this and other proposed changes when they hold a public hearing on the proposed construction project at 7:30 p.m. tonight at city auditorium. Other proposed changes include the loss of some boulevard trees, loss of on street parking near the Chamber of Commerce office, widening of the Third Street bridge to four lanes and closing of several other intersections.

Farmers Ask Release Of PIK Acreage

In an urgent wire to Secretary of Agriculture John Block, Minnesota Farmers Union president Cy Carpenter recently asked for immediate release of acreage set aside under USDA's payment-in-kind (PIK) program for use by farmers for pasture or harvest for hay. Shortage of hay in spots of Minnesota prompted his request. Joining Carpenter in this request is Congressman Tim Penny.

Carpenter and Penny requested that Block follow the precedent established by previous administrations when acreage set aside in government programs was released for livestock feed and bedding in emergency situations. Farmers around the state indicate an urgent need for hay now, and point out that need may intensify if the state experiences a harsh winter. Hay prices, which have averaged approximately $1 per bale over the last several years, have shot up to $3 per bale.

"With livestock market prices at bankruptcy levels and with dairy income reduced, farmers shouldn't be faced with paying higher prices for feed than necessary," Carpenter said.

As part of the PIK requirements, some farmers planted alfalfa on PIK acreage in order to reduce chances for soil erosion. Carpenter's request, if granted, would open up that land for either pasture or harvest for hay. Thirty-three other states have been granted either partial or full eligibility to harvest their PIK acreage, including parts of Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, and Iowa.

"Here in Minnesota, permission to use alfalfa planted on PIK acreage would have little effect on the government's program. However, it would be of major importance to those livestock producers who are in need of feed and bedding," Carpenter said.

"Release of PIK alfalfa would in some cases allow farmers to keep their livestock herds. Although Minnesota has not been hit as hard by the drought as some other states, we depend more on forage here. In addition, hay is prohibitively expensive to transport because of its bulk," he said.

New Hours In Effect For MN Travel Centers

Winter schedules and operating hours for the travel information centers (TICs) operated by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) have been set for this year, the department announced.

Centers are staffed to provide tourists and travelers with information about the state's cultural and recreational attractions as well as statewide road and weather conditions. They are located near major entry points to Minnesota.

Beginning Sunday, October 16, Fisher's Landing TIC will be closed until May. However, rest area facilities will remain open for travelers. Fisher's Landing is located on US 2, 10 miles east of the Minnesota-North Dakota border.

Winter hours are now in effect at all the travel information centers.

Centers are open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily. All centers will be closed on the Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day holidays.

Other Mn-DOT TICs and their locations are Albert Lea, on I-35 near the Minnesota-Iowa border; Beaver Creek, on I-90 at the Minnesota-South Dakota border; Dresbach, on I-90 at the Minnesota-Wisconsin border; Moorhead, on I-94 near the Minnesota-North Dakota border, and Thompson Hill, at the intersection of I-35 and US 2, south of Duluth.

Amtrak Gets Country-Wide 800 Number

Effective the beginning of October, anyone in any of the contiguous 48 states can telephone Amtrak by calling the same toll-free telephone number, 800-USA-RAIL.

National railway passenger service long has offered toll-free telephone service to its reservations and information offices, but different parts of the country had differing 800 numbers to call.

Adoption of the new easy-to-remember, single toll-free number is part of a continuing effort by Amtrak to make it as easy as possible for anyone in the country to get information about Amtrak services and fares and to make bookings for space on those of Amtrak's trains which are all-reserved.

Those who live in major cities where there is a local telephone number for Amtrak's reservations and information office may continue to use the local seven-digit number listed in telephone directories and in schedules, or may use the longer 800-USA-RAIL. Callers using Amtrak's former public 800 numbers, however, will get a recorded message telling them to use the new number.

A horse race with obstacles is called a "steeplechase" because a pack of horseback riders in the 18th century England would pick out some distant church steeple as a goal and race to get there, jumping over whatever natural hurdles were in their path.

National Coaches Day

As part of National High School Activities week being observed Oct. 16-23, Friday, October 21, has been designated as National Coaches Day.

Special recognition should be given to the coaches for the time and effort they give in trying to provide students an opportunity to compete in the various athletic programs.

Too often the coaches are taken for granted. They coach by choice and they get paid for it, figure the general public. They see the easy part — the one or two hours of actual competition. The long hours of practice and preparation time go unnoticed and more often than not are unappreciated.

It's easy to approach a coach after a win, shake hands, smile and offer congratulations. It may be more encouraging, though, if the coach were to receive that same positive response after a loss, or even after practice, with a personal thank-you for the time they've spent with the youth of the community.

Football Schedule Problems

Because of the uncertainties of conference affiliations due to the planned implementation of the new sectional football playoffs for the 1984 season, Lincoln high school athletic director Russ Smith says the Prowlers, at this point, have just five football games assured for next year's schedule.

Breckenridge and Mahnomen both completed the second of a two-year, home-and-home contract this fall and neither the Cowboys nor the Indians will be back on the Prowlers' schedule in 1984.

Crookston, East Grand Forks, Detroit Lakes, Grand Forks Red River and Bemidji will definitely be on next year's Thief River Falls' schedule, says Smith, with status of the Prowlers' series against both Fergus Falls and Moorhead uncertain at this time.

There will be a reduction from nine to eight regular season games state-wide next year to accommodate the new post-season format in which virtually every football team in the state will have a playoff game opportunity. But because of conflicting dates and new sectional alignments, scheduling has become difficult, explained Smith. Schedules, which often times would already be completed for next year, may not be finalized until December or January, he warned.

Thief River Falls will be grouped in Section 8A in the 1984 football playoff format, along with Staples, Wadena, Park Rapids, Detroit Lakes, Perham, Crookston, East Grand Forks and Fergus Falls. It may be difficult in the future for the Prowlers to maintain schedules with Moorhead and Bemidji, who will be playing in Section 7AA, along with Duluth Central, Duluth Denfeld-Morgan Park, Duluth East, Grand Rapids and Hibbing.

Miscellaneous

+ After watching his team absorb a recent 56-0 loss at the hands of the University of Minnesota-Crookston, Itasca community college football coach Dave Hrouda told the Grand Rapids Herald-Review, "They are awfully big, tough and talented," in describing the Trojans. Northland community college, a 32-15 loser to Itasca, visits UMC in the 1983 season finale Sat., Oct. 29. UMC is rated No. 7 in the latest national NJCAA football poll.

THIEF RIVER FALLS defensive end Gary Cornell closed in as Fergus Falls fullback Scott Grohn tried to sweep the left side in the third quarter of Friday's high school football game played in Fergus Falls. Grohn finished the night with 101 yards, including a 54-yard touchdown run, as the Otters defeated the Prowlers 41-8.

Five Prowlers Qualify For Region 8AA Tennis

Five of the six Thief River Falls entries in the individual portion of the North Sub-Region 8AA girls high school tennis tournament played Wednesday at the Grand Forks Tennis Center qualified for the 1983 Region 8AA tournament, scheduled to be held Tuesday starting at 8 a.m. in St. Cloud.

Advancing for the Prowlers will be junior Michelle Olson in singles, plus two doubles combinations: junior Penni Johnston and sophomore Connie Grovum; along with eighth graders Kelly Cornell and Vickie Grovum.

No. 2-seeded Johnston and Connie Grovum emerged as North Sub-Region 8AA doubles champions by beating No. 1-seeded Kjersten Hanson and Jan Hepola of Detroit Lakes 2-6, 6-2, 6-4 in the finals.

No. 2-seeded Olson also reached the finals in singles, but No. 1-seeded Lori Berenz of Detroit Lakes won the title 6-4, 6-4.

Cornell and Vickie Grovum advanced with a fourth place finish in doubles. Top two singles and top two doubles finishers earned Region 8AA berths.

Senior Kim Lawrenz, seeded No. 8, had a tough tournament draw and lost to Berenz in the quarterfinals 6-1, 6-0, and failed to join her Thief River Falls teammates in the Region 8AA field.

"They played well, all of them," reported Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. Michelle had an outstanding match again with Berenz; first doubles really played well together; and second doubles, although they're young, did a good job and I'm sure the experience will help them. Kim, I think, could just as easily be one of the top four going to region, but she had a bad draw."

Day before Detroit Lakes defeated Thief River Falls 5-0 in the North Sub-Region 8AA team tournament finals at Grand Forks.

Detroit Lakes will face South Sub-Region 8AA champion St. Cloud Tech in the Region 8AA finals today (Monday) at St. Cloud at 4 p.m. The individual matches get underway the following day. Championship team, plus the top two singles and top two doubles finishers will advance to the 1983 Class AA state tennis tournament beginning Wed., Oct. 26, in Minneapolis.

Olson figures if the Prowlers match their North Sub-Region 8AA performances they have a legitimate shot at qualifying for state meet positions. "I think if we put an effort that at St. Cloud we have an excellent chance of advancing people into the state tournament," he said.

Area Volleyball . . .

Nordics Win League Title

Marshall County Central clinched the 1983 North Border Conference high school volleyball title Thursday with a surprisingly easy 18-11, 18-1 win over Lake of the Woods in a title-deciding match-up of league leaders at Baudette.

"We did wonderful," said an obviously elated first-year Marshall County Central coach Julie Tunheim. "We played the best match we ever played. We were ready to play. It was our best team effort of the year."

Tunheim said all six Marshall County Central starters played well. There wasn't much of a chance to substitute, she explained, because things went so fast. The Nordics went through only four servers in the second game of the 35-minute rout.

"It was really balanced," she mentioned. "We just didn't make any mistakes. They were really psyched up for it."

A Lake of the Woods victory would have given the Bears the title, but they were never in it.

Stacey Gonshorowski had nine set-ups for the winners, Nancy Nelson had seven-ace serves and Barb Garthus had five ace attacks.

Marshall County Central, 10-2 in dual meet competition for the year, will be at Tri-County tonight (Monday) for the Nordics' only outing this week.

Goodridge - Stephen

Goodridge lost a close Thursday night match at home against Stephen, dropping both games in overtime at the Tigers won 20-18, 19-17.

Only match for the 2-10 Huskies this week will be played tonight (Monday) at Oslo.

Grygla - Tri-County

Grygla suffered its third straight loss Thursday at Karlstad as Tri-County triumphed 18-13, 18-13.

Now 7-6 for the year, Grygla hosts Badger tonight (Monday) and visits Middle River Wednesday.

Fergus Falls Wins One-Sided 41-8 Game . . .

Otters' Offense Rolls Up Yards, Points Vs. TRF

Fergus Falls' offense stole the show Friday as the Otters rolled up an even 500 yards and scored a half-dozen touchdowns en route to a decisive 41-8 high school football win over visiting Thief River Falls.

It was an impressive show by the Otters, who bounced back from their first loss of the 1983 season — a 34-7 drubbing by Moorhead the week before — in fine fashion with a two-pronged attack featuring the running of Len Kretchman and the passing of Joe Gervais.

While the Prowlers might not have been surprised by Kretchman, the one-time Edina product who has gained a measure of fame with his speed and elusive running ability in northern Minnesota football circles, they had to take back a bit by Gervais, who before Friday spent most of his time simply handed the ball off the Kretchman and watching him gain his yards.

Kretchman was impressive with 149 yards on 22 carries, but Gervais up-staged him with a 7-for-9 passing night for 162 yards and two touchdowns.

"We thought we could throw the ball, but we just haven't had the opportunity," explained Fergus Falls coach Don Stueve, meaning the Otters never really had too since their ground game has been tearing people up.

Fergus Falls' offensive fireworks started right away. After recovering a Thief River Falls fumble near midfield on the third play of the game, the Otters capitalized on the field position and scored with a little razzle-dazzle on their first snap. Gervais handed off to Kretchman on a sweep to the left, but Kretchman instead turned, and tossed the ball back to his quarterback, who in turn threw it long downfield to flanker Chris Wasberg, behind the Thief River Falls secondary on the right side for a 47-yard touchdown strike. Mryron Peterson made the first of his five converson kicks for a quick 7-0 lead with just 1:52 elapsed.

Gervais' second touchdown pass, a 13-yarder to Kretchman, capped a seven-play, 70-yard drive for a 14-0 lead 2:34 into the second quarter. It was a straight drop-back as Gervais lofted the ball into Kretchman's hands in the left corner of the end zone, just over Thief River Falls defender Mark Bondy.

Another long drive resulted in a 21-0 halftime edge, with Gervais finishing a 13-play, 84-yard march with a 4-yard run on the option to the right side with just 53 seconds left in the first half. Gervais had pass completions of 16 yards to tight and Blaine Rude, 18 yards to Wasberg and 21 yards to Kretchman during the drive.

Scoring again on their first offensive series of the second half, the Otters went up 28-0 on an 11-yard touchdown run by Kretchman, who ran out of the arms of a couple would-be tacklers on the left side to complete an eight-play, 66-yard drive on which he carried five times for all of the yards.

Thief River Falls countered with its only offensive thrust of the night to get on the scoreboard as quarterback Mitch Semanko went 3-for-4 in the air on a 68-yard blitz in six plays, including a 15-yarder to wide receiver Steve Wiskow, plus 26-and-12 yarders to Tim Bottem out of the flanker position. Bottem went to runningback to score on a 3-yard run up the middle with 6:27 left in the third quarter. Semanko passed to Wiskow for the two-point conversion.

Thief River Falls went with the on-side kick after the touchdown and failed, with Fergus Falls promptly scoring when fullback Scott Grohn went through a huge hole in the right side on first down for a 54-yard touchdown run that hiked his night's work to 101 yards on 13 carries. That came just 28 seconds after the Thief River Falls touchdown.

Reserves on both sides played the fourth quarter, with Fergus Falls' Craig Hebert capping a 13-play, 63-yard drive on an eight-yard run up the middle with 2:33 left to finish the scoring.

"I was very happy with our performance," mentioned Stueve. "I was worried about how the kids would react after last week's loss, and with it being homecoming here. But they played well. Thief River has a good ball club. We're happy with the win."

"We just got beat," was Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz' short, but to-the-point post-game remark.

Thief River Falls, thus eliminated from playoff contention with a 2-5 record, will be right back in action Wednesday with an MEA mid-week game at East Grand Forks. Fergus Falls, 6-1, plays at Litchfield that night.

Brainerd Running Game Beats Northland Passing Attack 31-7

When you live by the sword, you die by the sword. In the case of the 1983 Northland community college football team, that's the passing game. The Northmen tried to live by the pass Saturday, but didn't make it as Brainerd came up with three interceptions and seven quarterback sacks enroute to a 31-7 Northwest Division homecoming game win.

Throw in eight fumbles and four penalties and you can understand why the Northland offense had trouble getting started. Often times those mistakes put the Northmen in poor field position. They tried to pass their way out of trouble, but with minimal success.

"We got into a position where we had to pass," explained Northland coach John Helley. "We made some mistakes that cost us points."

He was referring to Brainerd points. The Red Raiders scored on a pass interception and a punt return, then used a fumble recovery and a poor punt to put their other two touchdowns on the board.

Take away a handful of plays, noted Helley, and it wasn't actually all that bad of a ball game for the Northmen.

"The final score was no indication of the type of game it really was," pointed out Helley. "I thought we played well. They have a strong team, and I thought we did a good job staying with them, especially in the first half. We played a real good first half of football."

Northland's new spread offense, designed for a wide-open passing game, featured passing plays on 42 of Northland's 77 offensive snaps. Steve Blanc, a 6-3, 194-pound freshman from Columbia Heights, was 12-for-34 passing for 109 yards. But he was intercepted three times and was sacked seven times for 65 yards in losses. The Northmen netted just 47 yards on 35 running plays, including the seven sacks, leaving them with only 28 "real" running plays.

Brainerd, meanwhile, ran the ball 60 times for 259 yards and complemented that with a 6-for-12 passing game for 81 yards. Brian Winters, a 6-1, 175-pound sophomore runningback from Glencoe, carried the ball 34 times for the Red Raiders, gaining 121 yards. His backfield mate, 5-10, 175-pound freshman Tim Veith of Brainerd, carried 18 times for 112 yards.

Northland trailed 14-7 at intermission. A scoreless struggle was shattered when defensive back Joel Gullickson stepped in front of Blanc's pass in the left flat at the Northland 30-yard line and had an open path to the end zone with 4:20 remaining in the first quarter.

Midway through the second quarter, after regular Northland punter Bob Rockwood was shaken up in the hard-hitting game, Kevin Roehl got off just an 18-yard punt for the Northmen, giving Brainerd the ball at the Northland 41. Nine plays later Winters scored on a one-yard dive with 3:06 left in the first half.

Northland gained new life and renewed enthusiasm when Rockwood, playing in the defensive secondary, intercepted Brainerd quarterback Steve Engen at the Red Raiders' 47 and returned the ball all the way to the Brainerd 4-yard line before being brought down.

It took the Northmen three plays to get into the end zone, but Rockwood did it by going off the left side from the 1-yard line. Kent Kainz' kick pulled the Northmen to within 14-7 with just 33 seconds to play in the half.

It didn't take long for the Northland mistakes to surface again after intermission, though, when Blanc lost the ball as he tried to run an option pitch to the right side. Brainerd recovered the fumble at the Northland 39 and Veith broke off a 32-yard touchdown run with a quick opener through the middle on third down to quickly make it 21-7 with just 1:52 gone in the third quarter.

Clincher came midway through the fourth quarter when Rob Veith took Rockwood's low line-drive 27-yard punt at his own 37 and raced down the left side 63 yards for a touchdown.

Final points came when Northland lost its fourth fumble of the afternoon at the 28-yard line of the Northmen late in the final period, setting up a 43-yard field goal by John Zbacnik, a sophomore from Ishpeming, Mich., who was also 4-for-4 with the conversion kicks.

Northland fell to 1-4 in the Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) with the loss. Brainerd climbed to 4-1.

"I thought we played extremly well in the second half," said Brainerd coach Al Kilgore. "In the first half we had too many mistakes."

Kilgore said he wasn't surprised by Northland's penchant for the pass, and wasn't surprised, either, with the Red Raider's effectiveness in defending against it.

"Our defense has been very good all year," he explained. "We've averaged four pass interceptions per game. We've got some good athletes playing back there."

Kilgore did give Northland its just due. "I thought Northland played very, very well. They have a hard-hitting ball club. We were in trouble, but they (Northland) made a couple of mistakes."

Northland hosts Fergus Falls Saturday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. Brainerd draws the University of Minnesota-Crookston that day.

Northland sophomore wide receiver Todd Graalum, one of the top ends in the division, was double-teamed all day by the Red Raiders. Seven Northmen caught passes, but Graalum was held to just one catch for 19 yards.

Marshall County Central Beats Tri-County 36-12

Marshall County Central capitalized on Tri-County turnovers Friday night to collect a surprisingly easy 36-12 Top of the State Conference Nine-Man high school football win at Newfolden.

In the first of two meetings between the two teams earlier this fall Tri-County won 29-14.

"We were definitely more fired up than they were to play the football game," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart. "We took advantage of their mistakes."

A fumble recovery by Daren Stokke set up a 12-yard Kevin Boe touchdown run in the second quarter to start the scoring. It was the first of three touchdowns scored by Boe, a 5-11, 145-pound junior who had an outstanding all-around game. He rushed for 109 yards on 21 carries, including the three touchdowns, had three pass interceptions, seven unassisted tackles and one assisted tackle.

An 11-yard touchdown run by Boe made it 14-0 at halftime.

Things really fell apart for Tri-County in the third quarter when two Randy Dahl fumble recoveries, plus a Boe interception set up three short yardage touchdown runs by Bret Hanson, Boe and Jay Nelson as the score mounted to 36-0.

A Top of the State Conference title contender until last week, the Rabbits finally managed to put two fourth quarter touchdowns on the board.

"Our defense looked real good," mentioned Gebhart. "We didn't give them much on offense."

In addition to Boe's play on defense, Gebhart also cited Brian Ried, who had 12 tackles, seven of them unassisted; Ross Olson, with nine tackles, seven unassisted, plus a fumble recovery; Stokke, with seven tackles and a fumble recovery; Dahl, with seven tackles, a quarterback sack and two fumble recoveries; plus Hanson and Ken Krosh, who also had fumble recoveries.

Offensively, Marshall County Central rushed for 240 yards and added 45 more on a 6-for-17 passing night. Danni Halvorson had 68 yards on 12 carries and Hanson had 65 on nine tries.

Marshall County Central will be at Argyle Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. for an early MEA-week encounter.

1. Please explain in both management and public availability between state forests, state parks, and wildlife management areas.

State forests: Land-ownership within a state forest can be quite variable, with both private and publically owned lands included. Boundary of each forest is established by statute. These forests are established for the purpose of growing, managing and harvesting timber and other forest crops and for the establishment and development of recreational areas, protection of the watershed and preservation and development of rare and distinctive species of flora and fauna native to the area. Public lands within a state forest are open to hunting during the open seasons, except areas within designated refuges. There is no permit or charge assessed to enter a state forest.

State parks: Boundary of each state park is also established by statute. Within this statutory boundary, most of the land has been purchased by the state although in some parks, scattered private tracts do remain. Primary purpose of a state park consists of two major objectives: the first is the protection of natural resources within the recreation system; the second objective is to maximize the recreational opportunities available to the user in terms of both quality and variety. No hunting is allowed within a state park unless specifically allowed by commissioner order. A vehicle permit is required to enter all state parks.

Wildlife management areas: Wildlife management areas are purchased in the interest of wildlife, recreation and for public hunting areas. These lands generally include marhes, wetlands, and margins, thereof, including ponds, small lakes and stream bottom lands. These lands are purchased from willing sellers after approval by the county board. Boundaries are not established by statute. Other public lands such as tax forfeited, may be included within a project boundary. Wildlife management areas are generally open to public hunting except where refuges have been established. NORTHLAND FLAKER Kent Kainz took the handoff from quarterback Steve Blanc and headed around the right side on a reverse that picked up 12 yards in the first quarter on Saturday's community college football game played at Brainerd. The Northmen went mostly with the passing game, though, and wound up losing a 31-7 Northwest Division decision.

Plummer Defense Shines In Win Over Skippers

Plummer defense not only shut out Middle River Friday afternoon, but also scored three times as the Cardinals beat the host Skippers 34-0 in North Tri-County Conference high school football action.

"Defensively we looked really good," confirmed Plummer coach Gary Brantl, whose team remained unbeaten with a 6-0 record. "We played a good football game defensively. Offensively we had 80 to 100 yards in penalties; I wasn't too happy with that aspect of it."

Plummer defense, in addition to the shutout, recovered three fumbles, had three interceptions, recorded a safety and had two quarterback sacks.

It started with an interception by Tim Gagner that set his 1-yard touchdown run with 6:46 remaining in the first quarter.

Two minutes later defensive tackle Gary Torkelson grabbed the ball when a hard rush knocked the ball out of the grasp of Middle River quarterback Kevin McKeever's hands and ran 19 yards for a touchdown.

Karl Mattison and Troy Gustafson combined on a safety when they tackled McKeever in the end zone to start the second quarter, and on the ensuing free kick by Middle River, Plummer's Troy Gustafson came up with a 56-yard return for a touchdown, getting a key block from Russ Fisher to open it. That made it 20-0 at halftime, and Russ Fisher scored both second half touchdowns — one on offense (23-yard fourth quarter pass from Gagner) and one on defense (20-yard third quarter interception return).

Torkelson led the Cardinals with 10 unassisted tackles.

"They have a real good team," acknowledged Middle River assistant coach Steve Holmes. "They're the best team we've faced. We seem to get ourselves in a hole early, and then they forced us to do things we didn't want to do."

Offensively, Plummer netted 204 yards, 181 of them on the ground as Gustafson gained 60 yards on 10 carries and Brian Fisher, moved from an end to a runningback, gained 51 yards on 11 carries. The Cardinals played without two injured starters — fullback Mike Konickson and end Gene Fisher.

Both teams play Tuesday in this week's early MEA-week schedule. Plummer will be at Oklee for a 7:30 p.m. game while Middle River, 1-6, hosts Erskine-Mentor in a 4 p.m. game.

Blue Devils 12
Bobcats 6

Oklee put in an upset bid Friday, but came up just short in a 12-6 North Tri-County Conference loss to favored Grygla-Goodridge.

"I was really happy with our defense," reported Oklee coach Dale Svaren. "I thought we played well. We shut them down offensively. I was really pleased with our play defensively."

Doug Schulz scored both touchdowns for the Blue Devils, and was credited by Svaren as being the deciding factor in the ball game. The 180-pound senior scored on a 5-yard first quarter run and won the game with a 38-yard third quarter run when he broke away from would-be tacklers in the backfield and turned what appeared to be a loss into a touchdown.

Oklee missed a scoring chance in the third quarter when an open receiver was missed in the end zone, but did score early in the final period when Duane Baker went in from one yard out.

"We had two scoring chances and scored on one of them," mentioned Svaren, who cited the defensive play of Baker, Tom Dulka and Chad Christianson.

Tuesday games this week will find 6-1 Grygla-Goodridge playing at Clearbrook and 2-4 Oklee remaining at home to play Plummer. Both games start at 7:30 p.m. The Blue Devils vs. Hornets match-up could figure into the north Tri-County Conference race. Both once-beaten teams have a title shot if unbeaten Plummer stumbles in one of its remaining two starts, the last one against Clearbrook on Oct. 25.

Grygla-Goodridge coach Rick Nelson gave the Oklee defense the credit it was due after the underdog Bobcats challenged the heavily-favored Blue Devils, but was quick to praise his team's performance in key situations. "Our kids hung in there and got the first downs at the end when we needed them," he explained.

Schulz finished the game with 164 yards rushing on 25 carries. Grygla-Goodridge used 55 running plays and threw only seven passes, gaining 274 yards on the ground in the process.

Defensively the Blue Devils shut down the Bobcats, with linemen Dale Verbout and Ron Kiesow credited with 11 and 10 tackles, respectively, while Jeff Kline came up with two interceptions. Linebackers Wayne Byklum and Rick Mosher were also defensive standouts, said Nelson.

Grygla-Goodridge was playing without three injured starters — Scott Groven, Rick Carlson and Tim Schulz.

Pheasant Numbers

Department of Natural Resources has announced that Minnesota's pheasant population this fall remains essentially unchanged from a year ago.

A roadside census conducted in August has revealed that pheasant numbers are lower this year than last in the southwest, south central and east central parts of the state. However, increases were shown in the west central, central and southeast portions of the pheasant range.

For this reason, DNR Wildlife officials are predicting a wide variation in hunting success when the season opens Saturday, Oct. 22.

"Intensive agriculture throughout most of the pheasant range over the past 20 years has eliminated a great deal of pheasant habitat," said Roger Holmes, acting director of the division of fish and wildlife. "Cover required for safe nesting and protection from winter weather has been particularly affected."

As for the hunting season, Holmes said hunters using trained dogs who are willing to get their feet wet should find satisfactory hunting.

"Today", he said, "A pheasant hunter should be a specialist who has a trained dog, knowledge of pheasant requirements and behavior, and is willing to seek permission to hunt private land."

He also reminded hunters that a $5 pheasant stamp is required for those individuals between the ages of 18 and 65 and not hunting their own land. Funds from the stamp sales are dedicated to long-term efforts benefitting pheasant habitat through roadside nesting cover improvement, promoting USDA farm program changes, woody cover, nesting cover and food plot cost share practices.

Wildlife officials and sportsmen had high hopes that the diversion of 4.9 million acres of Minnesota cropland from production under the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Payment in Kind Program (PIK) would have benefitted pheasants, waterfowl, Hungarian partridge and other wildlife species.

"However," said Holmes, "because of the high percentage of PIK fields with little or no cover, wildlife nesting habitat was not improved. Only 3.4 per cent of the 1983 set aside lands possessed quality stands of grass, legumes or a grass-legume mixture by late June.

"This is a significant decline from other federal set aside years such as 1972, 1973 and 1978. Of total PIK lands, only 5.9 per cent possessed good to excellent nesting cover this spring."

He said most PIK lands will probably be prepared for next year's corn, wheat or sorghum crop by the start of the pheasant season, since provisions for a 1984 land diversion program have not been announced and field preparation was permissable after September 1.

Lake Superior Trout

Fisheries crews of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources stocked more than 35 tons of trout and salmon into Lake Superior this year.

Planting of the 2,800,000 young fish "represents a major effort to revitalize this important resource," said Richard Hassinger, DNR fisheries chief.

He said the stocking program included 392,000 lake trout, 1.6 million rainbow trout and steelhead, 783,000 Chinook salmon and 12,000 Atlantic salmon.

This fall, eggs will be taken by fisheries crews, supported by anglers and commercial fishermen, to continue the expanded lake trout rearing program. The eggs will be taken on Isle Royale from the native "redfin strain" of lake trout and be hatched at the DNR's French river hatchery.

Department fisheries workers aided by commercial fishermen will also be obtaining herring eggs from lakes in the Gunflint Trail area. The eggs will be hatched at French river and stocked in Lake Superior.

Hassinger said the herring is important in the commercial fish market and also a forage fish for trout and salmon.

Since 1975, Minnesota has stocked 181 million herring in Lake Superior, he said.

Copper-Nickel Leases

Department of Natural Resources has announced another sale of leases to prospect for, mine, and remove copper, nickel and associated minerals.

Sale will be held in conference room A of the Veterans Service Building, St. Paul, located at the south end of the State Capitol Mall, at 9 a.m. on November 15.

Leases are on trust fund lands, lands forfeited for non-payment of taxes, lands otherwise acquired and other state-owned land under the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Natural Resources. The lands are located in portions of the counties of Beltrami, Cook, Itasca, Koochiching, Lake, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Roseau and St. Louis.

No land or water areas within the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness are included in the lease sale.

Each application and bid, together with a certified check, cashier's check, or bank money order, payable to the State Treasurer in the sum of $50 must be submitted in a bid envelope obtained from the Commissioner of Natural Resources.

Application and bid forms, bid envelopes, instructions on how bids are to be submitted, copies of the rules (6 MCAR Section 1,0094), and copies of the Copper-Nickel Unit Books, listing the land areas designated by the commissioner as mining units, may be obtained from Elwood F. Rafn, DNR director of minerals, Box 45 Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Application for each copy of the Copper-Nickel Unit Book must be accompanied by a certified check, cashier's check, or bank money order, payable to the State Treasurer in the sum of $25 plus $1.50 sales tax. Unit Books will also be available for inspection at the Hibbing office of the DNR Division of Minerals and the DNR Division of Minerals, Third Floor Centennial Building, 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul.

Repair Funds

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has made $125,000 available to the city of Rochester for repair of the Lake Zumbro dam.

Funds, which are to be matched by the city, were authorized by the 1983 session of the Minnesota legislature. The dam is located on the Zumbro river.

Needed repairs to the dam were identified during a safety inspection by the DNR and include the concrete, enbankment, and gate sections.

Funds for the project are administered under the dam safety grant-in-aid program of the DNR Division of Waters. The city will control the engineering and construction activities and will be reimbursed by the DNR for 50 per cent of project cost or $125,000, whichever is less.

ONE OF FIVE passes intercepted by Fergus Falls defenders belonged to Kevin Boe, who stepped in front of the intended Thief River Falls receiver at the Prowlers' 42-yard line and returned the Bill Desrocher pass to the Thief River Falls 26 in the final minutes of Friday's high school football game played at Fergus Falls. The Otters won their 1983 homecoming game 41-8.

SENIOR CO-CAPTAIN Kathy Reuter of the Lincoln high school girls swimming team checked to see where the wall was as she neared the turn in the 100-yard backstroke during the Prowlers' Thursday dual meet vs. Detroit Lakes in the Franklin middle school pool. Thief River Falls won the meet 91-81 for a 5-1 dual meet season record.

LHS Swimmers Rally To Top Detroit Lakes 91-81

Sparked by a 1-2-3 finish in the diving competition, the Lincoln high school girls swimming team rallied for a come-from-behind 91-81 dual meet win over Detroit Lakes Thursday before a Parent's Day crowd in the Franklin middle school pool.

"That was fun," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney. "The divers did it for us. They did a real nice job."

Trailing 37-25 after three events, Thief River Falls cut the gap to 40-38 when junior Teri Klopp, sophomore Rochelle Sandstrom and eighth grader Jenny Nelson finished 1-2-3 in the diving competition. In the process, Nelson joined Klopp and Sandstrom as a post-season Section 3 meet qualifier.

Things were still close, with Thief River Falls ahead 64-62, going into the final three events, but the Prowlers' depth won out. Trailing 81-77 at the start of the 400-yard freestyle relay, Detroit Lakes needed a 1-3 finish in the meet-ending race to overtake Thief River Falls. Those spots, though, went to the Prowlers, who improved their dual meet season record to 5-1.

"Detroit Lakes ran out of depth," noted Forney, who expected the Prowlers to have a difficult time beating the Lakers. "We just had a little more depth than they did and that's what won it for us."

Joining Klopp in the winner's circle for the Prowlers were junior Shelley McGann with a 1:12.49 in the 100-yard butterfly; sophomore Michelle Puetz with a 1:06.11 in the 100-yard backstroke; and the 400-yard freestyle relay team of sophomore Tammy Gunderson, eighth grader Pete Kuyath, sophomore Janelle Smidt and freshman Brenda Russell in 4:12.69.

"Even in the races we lost, the girls were still swimming good times," explained Forney. "We're satisfied with their progress at this point. Their times continue to drop. But we have two tough meets ahead of us now (vs. Grand Forks Central Tuesday, 5 p.m., Franklin pool; and at Fergus Falls the following Tuesday, 7:30 p.m.). We've got a lot of hard work ahead of us if we want to do well against Grand Forks and Fergus Falls."

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Q: I saw a message about smoking on television this week. Dr. Koop, the Surgeon General, said that people can become addicted to cigarette smoke like they can to alcohol and drugs. I've never heard smoking called an addiction before. Is it really?

A: Addiction really means chemical dependence. When the cigarette smoking habit is examined according to general characteristics of other addictive substances, the answer to your question is year.

All drugs that produce dependence have at least these four characteristics in common.

— All of them, cigarettes included, are psychoactive. They affect the chemistry of the brain and nervous system.

— Repeated use of them creates dependence and leads to compulsive use. This is at least as true of cigarettes as of other drudgs and alcohol.

— When users give up the drug abruptly, they may experience psyiological and psychological distress. The severity will vary from one drug to another and from one person to another.

— Finally, there is a strong tendency among former users to relapse, sometimes months or even years after quitting. Cigarette smokers experience this to perhaps a greater degree than do users of other drugs and substances.

Q: My doctor tells me I have an enlarged prostate gland. He wants me to come back for more tests because it might be cancer. Does an enlarged prostate always mean cancer? Can you tell me more about this type of cancer and how it's treated?

A: Half of all men over 50 in this country have some enlargement of the prostate not caused by cancer. However prostate cancer is the second most common type of cancer in men.

The prostate is a male genital gland located just below the bladder. A physician can check the prostate for enlargement or irregular shape during each routine digital rectal examination.

Most men who get prostate cancer are 55 or older, and the risk increases with age. It is more common among married men than single men, and more black men than white men get prostate cancer.

Any enlargement of the prostate can cause urinary problems such as difficulty in urinating or in controlling urination, the need to urinate more often, painful or burning orination or blood in the urine. Any of these signs should be checked bs a physician.

If a doctor finds an enlarged prostate during examination, he or she is likely to order more tests. Special x-rays and an analysis of blood and urine will be necessary. A final diagnosis is likely to require a biopsy — the removal of a small piece of tissue from the prostate for examination with a microscope.

Prostate cancer is treated with surgery, hormone treatments, radiation and-or chemotherapy. These treatment methods may be used indivually or combined depending upon how advanced the cancer is and the patient's age and general health.

According to the American Cancer society, nearly 70 per cent of men whose prostate cancer is found early can be cured. Radiation therapy, hormone treatment and chemotherapy also control this cancer for long periods of time by shrinking the tumor and relieving pain.

Pain Is Hard To Understand, And To Treat

by Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

Pain, physicians agree, is one of the most difficult and complex medical conditions to understand and treat.

"It is a curious thing," Dr. Bruce Smoller and Dr. Brian Schulman write in "Pain Control: The Bethesda Program" (Zebra Paperbacks, 1983). "Pain is a universal feeling but each of us feels it differently."

Therein lies the dilemma for the medical practitioner — and the patient, sayd Dr. Ronald Dubner, chief of the neurobiology and anesthesiology branch of the national institute of dental research in Bethesda, Md. "How a patient reports pain depends on a person's emotional and psychological makeup, previous experience with pain, cultural background, the environment in which the pain is occurring and even the physician's attitude toward the patient and the treatment."

Research under Dubner's direction is aimed at understanding how this complex pain message is coded in the brain — and how that message can be modified.

In simplest terms, Dubner explains, the pain message begins with a stimulus, for example, a hammer blow that hits your thumb instead of a nail. This sets in motion a complex sequence of events leading to inflammation and to the formation and release of chemicals known as prostaglandins.

Among the body's most transitory yet powerful chemicals, prostaglandins sensitize nerve fibers to tissue damage. As a result, the sensitized nerve fibers increase the number of electrical impulses they "fire off." These impulses make their way to the central nervous system, the spinal cord and brain. (Aspirin, incidentally, is an effective pain killer because it inhibits the production of prostaglandins.) Other chemicals, known as neurotransmitters, help the signals cross over the many gaps, or synapses, in the nerve fibers running between peripheral nerves and the central nervous system.

Signals reach the brain via the spinal cord, where specialized nerve cells carry pain messages directly into the thalamus, the brain's main receptor of signals from the senses.

Thalamus receives information about the location, character, quality and duration of the pain stimulus. These messages also pass to other areas of the brain: to the limbic system, which generates an immediate emotional response; to the somato-sensory and parietal cortices, which allow a conscious location and assessment of the pain, and to the frontal cortex, where responses to sensory information are further processed.

Information from the spinal cord also goes to a part of the brain known as the reticular formation, which is involved in reacting to the pain signal in ways that, Dubner says, are far from fully understood. Some of the signals reaching the reticular formation may be involved in facilitating our involuntary reflex response to painful stimuli. Or, the reticular formation may communicate "up" to the thalamus or "down" to the spinal cord, in some way altering the coding of the pain messages.

In fact, it is this "descending pathway" to the spinal cord that researchers believe may be involved in stimulating the body's own natural pain-killing systems to alter thresholds and perception of pain, Dubner says.

In the mid-1970s, researchers discovered that under certain stressful or painful conditions our body releases chemicals — enkephalins from the brain and endorphins (a term meaning "morphine within") from the pituitary gland and hypothalamus. These chemicals may block or muffle the transmission of pain signals by acting along pathways descending from the brain to the spinal cord.

Scientists now think that the production of endorphins may be responsible for the heroic acts of gravely wounded soldiers who appear to be oblivious to pain until they leave the battlefield, as well as for the incredible tolerance to pain experienced by some marathon runners.

These internal pain-killing systems are also closely linked to hormonal systems, such as the adrenal glands which prepare the body for danger and pain and affect mood.

"Good health really does begin in the mind," Pain Congrol co-author and psychiatrist Brian Schulman emphasizes. "The messages we send our body regulate every conscious, unconscious and involuntary action of our body."

This close linkage between mind and body may explain why the attitudes of patients and doctors can make a difference in the perception and treatment of pain. "Cures work, in large measure, because the patient and practitioner expect them to do so," emphasize historians of science Deborah Warner and Nancy Knight, who have put together a new Smithsonian institution exhibition on "pain and its relief."

Clinical studies at the National institutes of health (NIH) and elsewhere confirm that a patient's expectation has a major role in pain mediation. Patients receiving placebos who believe they are getting a pain killer report significantly less pain than patients receiving no treatment.

"If you believe a treatment will work and your doctor believes it will work," Dubner concurs, "it has a better chance of success.

"Clearly, we have the capability of controlling pain ourselves," he continues. "What we don't know today is how to go about activating our own pain-killing systems under so-called normal conditions." For instance, Dubner asks, what if we could stimulate these systems to block the pain of tooth extractions or the debilitating chronic pain of lower back ailments and arthritis without using drugs?

Current basic research and clinical studies at NIH, medical centers and universities ultimately may provide the answers. "Our knowledge about pain has increased rapidly in the past 15 years, and we now have a unique opportunity to apply this knowledge to the clinical situation," Dubner says.

At NIH, this application is taking place at the first multidisciplinary pain clinic in the United States devoted exclusively to research. In collaboration with other NIH institutes, NIDR researchers are conducting studies of pain associated with the extraction of wisdom teeth; myofascial pain, in which muscles often go into spasm or cramp, leading to tissue damage, pain and tenderness; pain associated with nerve damage due to diabetes or to shingles; Parkinson's disease, and pain in young children with cancer.

Patients who have pain problems coinciding with these research interests should have their physicians or dentists call or address letters of referral to Dr. Mitchell Max, c-o Clinical Pain Section NIDR, NIH, Building 10, Room 1B-15, 9000 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, Md. 20205; (301) 496-5483.

Special Board Meeting
Ind. School Dist. No. 564
September 27, 1983

A Special Board Meeting of Independent School District No. 564 was held at 7:00 a.m. on Tuesday, September 27, 1983 in the Board Room of the School District Service Center.

The following Board members were present: Arnt Aune, Paul Bortnem, Archie Cameron, Hank Hallstrom, Greg Pribula, and Harry Sjulson. Also present was Robert Block, Superintendent.

Chairman Harry Sjulson called the meeting to order and Clerk Arnt Aune established that a quorum was present.

The first item on the agenda was to give a general review of all building facilities within the district. Needs were discussed and explained with the major need being at the Lincoln High School. The major question concerning Lincoln is should it be added on to provide necessary instructional spaces or should a new facility be built on a different site? The pros and cons of this were discussed with a direction to the administration that a poll of the community should be taken to get some insight as to people's feeling concerning this matter.

The Board, in the meantime, directed the administration to continue to maintain the Lincoln facility. It's obvious that a new roof is necessary on the Lincoln Gymnasium.

A motion was made by P. Bortnem and seconded by M. Carlson to hire an architect to plan for a new roof and installation of insulation on the Lincoln Gymnasium. Motion carried unanimously.

Discussion was held and indication made that the Superintendent should contact the administration at Arctic to determine if they had some interest in the old Arctic building which now houses the School District Service Center in terms of space in part of the Service Center. This should be studied along with the possibilities of more intense use of the Knox School for some of the activities that we now have at the Service Center.

The Board suggested that before we can consider whether to stay on the same site or move to a new site, we should have some population projections for the next four to five years and also how many dollars are in the budget to improve present facilities in present locations. The answers to these questions would help give direction to kinds of remodeling and repair that should occur at the present time in the present facility at Lincoln.

The Board determined to initiate a Citizens Advisory Committee consisting of one member being selected by each Board member and contracted to insure their willingness to serve on the committee. To the original seven, a probable additional seven will be added by appointment to get a broad base of interest from the community and knowledge from the committee. That committee should be made up of people who are in favor of and against the bond issue that was run some three years ago.

Administration was directed to develop a charge for members of the committee to be in writing prepared for them so they know what it is expected of each individual. The administration was also directed to pursue obtaining land belonging to Burlington Northern Railroad south of the High School and to continue pursuing the purchase of property south of that railroad and the High School.

One other item of business was the request to consider a 20-50 year lease on the softball fields presently located on the AVTI property. The problem of a long-term lease was discussed since it is not sure how that property might be used in the near future.

A motion was made by A. Aune and seconded by M. Carlson to deny a request from the Softball Association for a long-term lease on the land east of the AVTI for development of a softball complex. Motion carried unanimously.

Further discussion was held concerning the Lincoln High school.

Meeting adjourned at 8:35 a.m.

Nearly 400 leaders from the 12 north central states are expected to participate in the forum, designed around the theme of "4-H changes and challenges." Representatives are chosen by their active role in 4-H.

Forum's purpose is to improve skills and working relationships, create an understanding of the emerging roles of 4-H volunteer leaders, and encourage leader growth. Workshop sessions will focus on computers, middle management roles, family involvement in 4-H, meeting special needs of youth, television and 4-H, and mainstreaming the handicapped in 4-H.

Highlights of the forum include over 30 skills sessions and an idea exchange session, in which participants will share program ideas that work. At the conclusion of the forum, participants will prepare plans of action for use in their home communities.

Forum is being arranged by the cooperative extension service of state land-grant universities and the U.S. department of agriculture. Financial assistance is being provided by J.C. Memorials To Heart Fund Are Received

Research and programs for the prevention and control of heart disease have been aided by the gifts in memory of: Adeline Langseth; John Lang, John Tanem, Ells Sisler, Sam Haugen, Allen Iverson, Ben Bendickson, John Simsdahl, Betty Moen, Fred Priebe and Sidney H. Stortroen.

In reporting the contributions, the Heart fund memorial county representative stated, "A memorial gift to the American heart association, Minnesota Affiliate is a thoughtful way to express sympathy while also doing something positive to aid the fight against heart disease. It not only comforts those in grief, it also helps reduce the toll of heart disease — the killer of more Americans than all other causes combined." In Minnesota, over 52 per cent of all deaths are from heart disease. Even in the 45 to 64 age group heart disease is the leading cause of death.

Representative explained, "Memorial gifts to the heart fund are promptly acknowledged by the heart association with a dignified card naming the person making the memorial and person being honored. Amount of the gift is not stated unless otherwise requested. Receipt is sent to the donor. All gifts to the heart fund are 100 per cent tax deductible.

Memorial gifts are also being used more and more as get-well wishes for victims of a heart attack or stroke or as a thoughtful remembrance on a birthday, anniversary or other special occasion.

Memorial gifts including the name and address of the person making the gift, the person being honored, the occasion, and the name and address of the person who should receive the acknowledgement should be made to either: memorial chairperson, Pennington county: Mrs. David Drotts, 106 Parkview drive, Thief River Falls, MN 56701 or American heart association, 1007 Westside Drive, Fergus Falls, MN 56537.

New Christmas Seals Feature Santa Claus

This holiday season, in addition to bestowing his usual largesse of presents on children around the world, Santa Claus will be giving the gift of lung health through Christmas Seals from the American lung association of Minnesota. Official 1983 Christmas seals and their matching gift tags feature a classic Santa: rosy-faced, bearded, jolly and wise.

Though it may seem a bit early to be thinking of Christmas and Christmas seals, the Christmas seal campaign is in high gear for volunteers at the American lung association of Minnesota, who have been preparing the Christmas seal mailings for weeks. The 1983 Christmas seals and matching gift tags have already been mailed, and Gladys Goecke, fund raising director for the American lung association of Minnesota, is urging people to respond quickly. "The sooner someone sends their contribution for Christmas seals in, the less fund raising expense we have," Goecke stated. This means more dollars available for Christmas seal services.

Mylo Carlson Herd Tops In County DHIA

Jerry Hamre, supervisor of the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association, lists the following herds as top in the association for July.

In first place is Mylo Carlson, whose herd produced an average of 57.1 pounds of milk and 2.06 pounds of butterfat; followed by Lyle Swanson, 55.1 and 2.02; Pearson Brothers, 51.6 and 1.81; Merle Lundeen, 50.6 and 1.66; Hamrick Brothers, 50.3 and 1.78; Duane Krohn, 46.2 and 1.76; Darrow Lundeen and Sons, 45.6 and 1.70; Arden Lundeen, 44.7 and 1.50; Roy Nelson 44.5 and 1.59; and Clyde Swenson, 44.1 and 1.57.

Herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. Amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month. If too many dry cows are included in the herd, the average for the month may be low, even though the cows which are milking are high producers.

There were 32 DHIA herds and two owner-sampler herds on July test for a total of 34 herds on test. There were 16 cows that completed records with over 625 pounds of fat in 305 days or less.

Panels Meet To Review MN Highway Needs

Statewide county and municipal engineers screening committees will hold their annual fall meetings to review highway needs and make funding apportionment recommendations in late October at Cragun's conference center, north of Brainerd, according to Gordon Fay, state aid engineer, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Municipal engineers screening committee meeting will begin at 1 p.m., Wednesday, October 26, and conclude about noon the following day. County engineers screening committee meeting will begin at 1 p.m., Thursday, October 27 and end about noon on October 28, he said.

City engineer from each of the nine Mn-DOT construction districts and an engineer each from Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Paul serve on the municipal screening committee. County engineer from each of the nine Mn-DOT districts serves on the county engineers screening committee. These committees review data that is to be used as a basis for recommending municipal state-aide streets (MSAS) and county state-aid highway (CSAH) apportioning.

Committees will make recommendations to the commissioner of transportation for the 1984 MSAS and CSAH apportionments which will made in January.

Total apportionment to the MSAS system is nine per cent of the highway user tax distribution fund which accrues from the state motor fuel tax and vehicle license fees. Total apportionment to the CSAH system is 29 per cent.

"Everybody is Somebody in Thief River Falls"
Published Twice A Week
THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES 20¢
Volume 72 (USPS 627-360) Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota Wednesday, October 19, 1983 Number 82

FORCED BY WEATHER conditions beyond his control, Goodridge area farmer Kenneth Coan has resorted to pushing his combine through the muddy fields with a four-wheel-drive tractor in order to get his crop off. Although the method is expensive, he says it seems to be working pretty good, and the sunflowers are giving him a good yield. "It's awfully hard on equipment," he allows, "but I've got to pay my bills somehow." Like most people in the area, he is hoping that the government will come through with some sort of emergency assistance for the area which is going into its fifth year of crop failure, but he notes that a lot of farmers can't afford to wait for the bureaucracy to act.

Among Minnesota's 87 Counties . . .

Pennington Has Fastest Decline In Population

Pennington county had the most rapid percentage of population loss in Minnesota during the period from April 1, 1980 to April 1, 1982, according to the office of state demographer, Minnesota state planning agency. The county dropped from 15,258 population at the 1980 census to 14,420 in 1982 for a 5.49 per cent of loss figure.

The report also points out Thief River Falls as having a population loss of eight per cent. The city and county population losses are attributed to the closing of the Arctic Enterprises manufacturing operation.

The state demographer's statistics also show losses in Marshall (0.39 per cent), Polk (0.51 per cent) and Red Lake (0.22 per cent). Area counties showing gains were Beltrami (6.90 per cent), Kittson (0.39 per cent) and Roseau (1.25 per cent).

Marshall county population went from 13,027 to 13,039 from 1980 to 1981, then fell to 12,796 in 1982. Pennington county dropped from 15,258 in 1980 to 14,797 in 1981 and 14,420 for 1982. Polk county had a decline from 34,844 in 1980 to 34,666 in 1982 despite an increase to 34,901 in 1981. Red Lake county population dropped from 5,471 to 5,426 in 1981, then climbed back to 5,459 in 1982.

Beltrami increased from 30,982 in 1980 to 32,616 in 1981 and 33,119 in 1982 while Kittson county went from 6,672 in 1980 to 6,641 in 1981 and 6,698 in 1982. Roseau county grew from 12,574 in 1980 to 12,917 in 1981 and dropped to 12,731 in 1982.

Minnesota's total population grew by an estimated 57,364 people during the two-year period. The 1982 population of 4,133,334 represents an increase of 1.4 per cent from the 4,075,970 reported in the 1980 census — a growth rate identical to the one experienced by the state in the 1970's.

Figures used in the report were derived from the 1980 census and estimates of the 1982 population of Minnesota counties, cities and townships, now available from the office of state demographer.

While Minnesota's growth in population lags behind many of the rapidly growing states of the southern sunbelt, it is one of the more rapidly growing states in the northern and eastern parts of the county. Population growth is most rapid in rural areas, particularly in the lake region of north central Minnesota, and in the Twin Cities suburbs.

Minnesota's 1.4 per cent growth rate during the two-year period was slower than the national growth rate of 2.2 per cent over the same period. This makes the state 25th among the most rapidly increasing of the 50 states but exceeded only by Connecticut, Kansas, New Hampshire and North Dakota among the frostbelt states.

Minnesota growth rate exceeded Wisconsin by a small amount and South Dakota, Iowa and Michigan by larger amounts. In terms of

Farmer Pushing Way Through Harvest Season

Necessity has been called the mother of invention, and nobody finds inventiveness more necessary than farmers in the area, many of whom are being forced to watch their crops rot in soggy fields while bills pile up for the fifth year in a row.

While nearly all are hoping that some form of disaster assistance will be forthcoming from the government, not all are standing around waiting for it. "I can't afford to wait," says Kenneth Coan, who farms about 1,700 acres in the Goodridge-Highlanding area. "I've got bills to pay, and not all of my creditors are willing to wait."

Coan is one of a number of area farmers who are resorting to extraordinary means in order to harvest crops so that they can meet financial obligations. By modifying his combine and four-wheel-drive tractor, he is harvesting sunflowers in fields so wet that the combine bogs down, even though it has been equipped with duals. By constructing a bumper for the rear of the combine, with a matching push plate for the front of the tractor, he is able to operate by pushing the combine through the fields. "Believe me," he says, "We've had to push it just about every foot of the way, too!"

Deep, water-filled ruts in the stubble attest to the conditions the machines are being forced to run in. "It's awfully hard on the equipment," he allows. "Without the tractor pushing, the variable speed belts on the combine just bog down and start slipping." It is also expensive. Coan notes that he has the expense of paying a man to run the tractor in addition to the cost of running two machines under less than ideal conditions. He isn't sure how much extra the fuel is running, but notes that at least he is making use of equipment which he already had.

He estimated that a four-wheel-drive unit for his combine would have cost approximately $9,000. Cost of building the special interlocking bumpers in his workshop was estimated at POLLY PRUNUSKE is the new 4-H youth development instructor for the Pennington county extension service, based in Thief River Falls at the county courthouse. In assuming her duties on a part-time basis, she frees home economics extension agent Deborah Matero to spend more time working in her speciality. Originally from Beaver Dam, WI., Polly has a degree in elementary education, and is also substitute teaching in area schools.

Polly Prunuske Is New County 4-H Instructor

Pennington county's agricultural extension office, and the 4-H program in particular, have received a much welcomed boost with the addition of Polly Prunuske to the staff as part-time county extension agent and 4-H youth development instructor.

Enthusiastic about her position, Polly says she hopes to increase enrollment in 4-H and encourage career development for members through greater involvement in planning and carrying out of 4-H programs in the county. She also hopes to increase involvement by people of varied backgrounds, in sharing their experience with youth.

Born and raised in Beaver Dam, WI., a farming and industrial community in the south-central part of the state, she has been involved in 4-H since she was in high school, and first visited Minnesota on a junior leaders trip. She attended the University of Wisconsin, Stevens Point, which she notes is the geographic center of the state. Although she started college majoring in wildlife, she later decided to switch her major and graduated with a bachelor's degree in elementary education. While attending school, she worked summers as a surveyor's aide, and counseled at a Lions camp for the handicapped and at a Youth Conservation Corps camp.

After graduation she taught for three years at a small parochial school in Wisconsin Rapids, WI., handling all classes in grade 5 through 8. She is presently utilizing her degree by substitute teaching in the Thief River Falls area.

Her hobbies include all types of outdoor activities, with camping and canoing as particular favorites.

Polly says she appreciates the hospitality which has been extended to her.

Training for men or women volunteers wishing to participate in the local Hospice program will be conducted at six sessions over a two-week period from October 24 through November 5, according to Darla Twomey, director. There is no charge for the training program.

"We realize that it may be impossible for many volunteers to attend all six sessions," she notes, "so we are making tapes of each session available so all volunteers can complete the training. Certificates will be issued when the training is completed and those receiving certificates will be eligible to work as Hospice volunteers."

Schedule for the training includes the following:

Monday, October 24, 7 to 10 p.m. — Director Darla Twomey and inter-county nursing service director Susan Olson will speak at the session in the chapel of the CNC unit. History and background of Hospice will be given and a film entitled "Day by Day" will be shown. Olin will discuss ethics and confidentiality, legal aspects for volunteers, patient rights, legal liability, wills, organ donations and the general right to refuse treatment. Rev. Bortnem will discuss spiritual concerns of the dying.

Saturday, October 29, 9 a.m. to noon — Dr. Stephen Olson, psychologist and Linda Hoff of East Grand Forks, Hospice volunteer, will be speakers in the CNC chapel. Dr. Olson will cover talking with dying patients, listening skills, answering difficult questions and handling emotions of the dying. Dr. Thorsgard will explain what happens during the dying process and the funeral directors will cover tasks and decisions in making funeral arrangements, what funeral directors do, the embalming process, bereavement and the grief process.

Persons interested in becoming Hospice volunteers may contact Mrs. Twomey at the hospital.

Red Lake county health planning council is serving as a co-sponsor and providing partial funding for the volunteer training, Mrs. Twomey added. That participation is a result of the high interest in the program from the Red Lake Falls community.

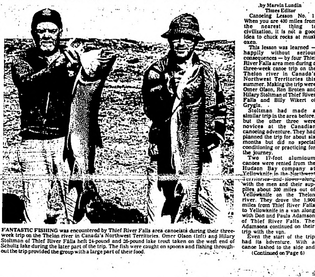
Canoeists Find Adventure On Canada's Thelon River

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor



FANTASTIC FISHING was encountered by Thief River Falls area canoeists during their three-week trip on the Thelon river in Canada's Northwest Territories. Omer Olson (left) and Hilary Stoltman of Thief River Falls heft 24-pound and 26-pound lake trout taken on the west end of Schultz lake during the later part of the trip. The fish were caught on spoons and fishing throughout the trip provided the group with a large part of their food.

Canoeing Lesson No. 1: When you are 400 miles from the nearest thing to civilization, it is not a good idea to chuck rocks at musk oxen.

This lesson was learned — happily without serious consequences — by four Thief River Falls area men during a three-week canoe trip on the Thelon river in Canada's Northwest Territories this summer. Making the trip were Omer Olson, Ron Broten and Hilary Stoltman of Thief River Falls and Billy Wikert of Grygla.

Stoltman had made a similar trip in the area before, but the other three were novices at the Canadian canoeing adventure. They had planned the trip for about six months but did no special conditioning or practicing for the journey.

Two 17-foot aluminum canoes were rented from the Hudson Bay company at Yellowknife in the Northwest Territories and flown along with the men and their supplies about 300 miles out of Yellowknife on the Thelon river. They drove the 1,900 miles from Thief River Falls to Yellowknife in a van along with Don and Paula Adamson of Thief River Falls. The Adamsons continued on their trip with the van.

Even the start of the trip had its adventure. With a canoe lashed to the side and

by Vi Barr

Congratulations to a great group of talented young men, working under a new director, for putting on a very exciting concert for the concert series last Thursday night in Thief River Falls.

The Glenn Miller Orchestra, under Dick Gerhardt, put people's toes to tapping and heads to swaying to songs that hadn't been heard in a long time and were performed with such youthful exuberance and vitality that it made one proud and certain that the Glenn Miller "Sound" will be with us forever.

New melodies such as "Evergreen", "Up Where We Belong" and "I'll Write the Songs" were given the Miller treatment which added a great new dimension that could only be attained by Miller's incomparable style. Add to them the Miller standards "Moonlight Serenade", "Don't Sit Under The Apple Tree", "In The Mood", "String Of Pearls" and many more, and one can understand why they were greeted with "ooh's" and "aah's" from the very receptive audience.

The concert closed to a standing ovation and we were treated to "Charity", as an encore.

Where did these young men develop so much expertise at such an early age? This is a well-integrated group, knowledgeable in shading, dynamics, dramatic flair and showing a feeling of "oneness" that is unique. The mellow voice of Joe Francis added a great deal to the evening, bringing back memories of Don Cornell, Bob Eberle, Frank Sinatra and so many other great male vocalists of the big band era.

It was a wonderful evening and I want to say, "Thank you, concert series directors, for a real treat"! Bring them back again, soon!

UMC To Offer Fall Fashion Show Tuesday

"A Touch of New York" is the theme for the fall quarter fashion show to be presented at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Kiehle auditorium at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC).

Main coordinator for the show is Kari Cartier of Grand Forks. Other coordinators include: Karin Morgan, Crookston; Gene DeLaHunt, Park Rapids; Linda Becker, Grand Forks; and Sandi Mistic, Blackduck.

The show, which is open to the public, will feature contemporary fashions, according to Ella Strand, fashion merchandising assistant professor.

Although all students in the fashion merchandising department are involved with the show, the planning and coordinating are handled by second-year students as a class project for the fashion coordinating class. Besides coordinating the show, students are involved in publicity, stage arrangements, script writing, selection of music, and plans for the reception following the show.

Fashion merchandising at UMC is designed to provide students with a knowledge of the fashion field as well as a business background in marketing, sales, merchandising, and management. Study includes design, production and distribution of apparel, and accessorizing.

Graduating with a business major, UMC students in the fashion merchandising program are prepared for careers as salespersons, managers, buyers, fashion coordinators, store managers, and bridal consultants, according to Strand.

Tickets for the fashion show are $2 and may be purchased at the door or from any fashion merchandising student. Admission includes a door prize and refreshments.

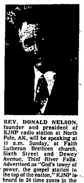
STRIP TEASE was performed by the 1983 "Mystery Celebrity" for the entertainment of United Way volunteers who attended an appreciation banquet held last night at the golf club. An article of clothing was removed each time one of the area coordinators revealed the total amount of contributions collected by their volunteers. Coming up short of the $60,124 goal at which the mystery person had promised to remove his mask, the volunteers searched their pockets, bringing the total to $50,000, a figure considerably higher than last year's total, and the mask was removed to reveal Dr. William Ramsay. With a number of contributions not in yet, Chairman David Odette expressed confidence that the goal would still be reached. Mayor Bob Carlson expressed pride in being able to represent a community which had been able to "dig so deeply to help others, in spite of such difficult times."



REV. DONALD NELSON, founder and president of KJNP radio station at North Pole, AK, will be speaking at 11 a.m. Sunday, at Faith Lutheran Brethren church, Sixth Street and Dewey Avenue, Thief River Falls. Advertised as "God's tower of power, the gospel station to the top of the nation," KJNP is heard in 24 time zones in the Scandinavian countries, England, Japan and the Pacific area, plus the Canadian provinces and Greenland. It broadcasts in four languages; Athabascan Indian, Inupiat Eskimo, Russian and English.

Television To Be Discussed At Footsteps

Theme of the "footsteps" program for the week of October 24 is "Who Is Sylvia?". Topic for discussion will be how television shapes children's ideas of what the world is like, as well as how it affects their attitudes toward themselves and others.

Footsteps is a parenting program sponsored by community education which involves video tape presentations followed by group discussion. Tapes are broadcast over KTRF cable channel three at 8:30 p.m. each Monday and are shown again at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in room 114 at the AVTI. Group discussion is held from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesday after the video presentation.

Parents may attend any of the sessions at no charge. Preregistration is required and can be done by calling adult education at 681-5424 before 2 p.m. each Tuesday.

CETA Replaced By New Act To Add Flexibility

Comprehensive employment and training act (CETA) has been replaced by a new program called the job training partnership act (JTPA), which is intended to allow maximum flexibility in deciding types of program assistance to be provided with federal funds.

Services provided for the economically disadvantaged include vocational counseling, classroom instruction, work experience and on-the-job-training. Unlike CETA, the new law has no provision for subsidized public service jobs.

Federally funded private industry councils (PICs), made up of business, education and community leaders, are given equal authority with local elected officials in determinng how local programs will be administered and delivered. PICs have responsibility for overseeing the program to ensure that local needs are met under predetermined guidelines. To meet these goals, the PIC has authority to hire staff, solicit and accept contributions and grant funds under other programs.

PIC members are appointed by local elected officials, with the majority of members representing area businesses. Business members should be owners or in key administrative positions of their businesses. Members are appointed for fixed and staggered terms, and serve until their successors are appointed. Chairman of the PIC is chosen from among the members.

Through membership on the PIC or by contacting members, interested citizens may take part in determining what is best for their community, in terms of developing available economic resources. Present members of the Northwest PIC are listed below, along with their telephone numbers:

Maryel Anderson — 681-1423, Robert Block — 681-2700, Gary Erickson — 681-4011, Bill Huggett — 681-1100, John Johnson — 681-2519, Jack Quinlivan — 681-6780, Roger Shaffer — 681-4303, and Betty Walton — 681-1946, all of Thief River Falls; Marcella Gonsorowski — 874-3393, Joyce Magner — 874-7265, and Elworth Maki — 874-7152, all of Newfolden; Anne Jaeger — 681-7350, Plummer; Alvin Jensen — 796-5133, Oklee; Gary Theibert — 253-2171, Red Lake Falls; Robert Novotny — 782-2983, Greenbush; Tom Papin — 463-1282, Roseau; Stanley Roadfeldt — 528-3524, Badger; Dawn Newton — 281-6363, Robert Smith — 281-6510, and Robert O. Lutheran Women's Missionary League (LWML) fall rally of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod will be held Tuesday at the First Lutheran church in East Grand Forks. Registration will begin at 9:00 a.m. A meal will be served at noon.

Guest speakers will be Rev. Robert Jastram and his wife Phyllis of Parkers Prairie, who served as missionaries to Japan from 1953 to 1976. After nine months of language study, the Jastrams worked for 15 years in Shibata, in western Japan, and later in Niigata, a seacoast city, where Jastram was missionary-at-large. Since returning to The States, they have served in South Dakota at the Gettysburg-Lebanon parish, and are now at Parkers Prairie.

Those planning to attend the rally are asked to be at St. John Lutheran church by 8:00 a.m., to share rides, according to Rev. John E. Beck, pastor of the local congregation.

Canoeists On Thelon River Find Adventure

gear and two men plus the pilot aboard, the float plane was unable to get airborne. It returned to the dock and 10 gallons of gas from the plane's tanks were drawn off, lightening the load by about 90 pounds. With the weight gone, the plane lumbered into the air and began the three-hour flight to the drop-off spot.

The 500 pounds of gear which the four men divided between the two canoes included 120 pounds of freeze-dried food in four-meal packs, fat for frying fish (a staple in the daily diet on the trip), salt, pepper, grill and cooking and eating utensils; three small one-burner gas stoves, three gallons of white gas for the stoves, two horsepower outboard motor and six gallons of gas for the motor, two nylon tarpaulins, two two-man tents, four sleeping bags and pads, extra clothing, rain gear, bug jackets, minimal tools and first aid supplies, extra spark plug and shear pins for the motor, cameras and lenses, fishing gear and other assorted necessities.

It was only several days out of their starting point when the men saw and photographed a musk ox at quite close range. One of the photoes taken by Broten was printed in Monday's edition of the Times. Discussion around the camp in the evening was that the musk ox seemed to be a rather stupid animal and not too wary a creature.

A couple of days later the men noticed another musk ox across the river from their evening camp. "If he's still there in the morning," Broten told his campanions, "I think I'll sneak up on him and grab a handful of hair out of his backside." The suggestion was met with some derision by his companions.

The next morning the ox was still across the river and the moment of truth was at hand. The men canoed across the river and stalked upwind through the brush toward the placidly feeding ox which was facing upwind as well. Their approach was successful and Broten did indeed reach out, grab a fistful of the shaggy hair on the beast's rump and gave a sharp yank.

Rather than bolt for the brush as had been expected, the ox pivoted on the spot to face his attackers, revealing at much too close proximity the heavy and wickedly hooked horns. "He snorted and you could see the steam shoot out of both nostrils," Broten recalls. That's about all they saw, for in a split second they were all in headlong flight for the spot where they had beached their canoes.

Despite the affront to his dignity, the musk ox did not pursue and went back to his grazing. Spared possible serious injury as a result of their prank, the men weren't content to leave well enough alone. Hilary suggested that some action shots of the musk ox would be good, and that if Ron and the others would hide with the camera, he would chase the ox past them for some action photos.

The men hid behind the brush and Hilary circled the animal to come up on the other side. When he came into view on the top of the river bank, the ox immediately saw him but did not run away. Hilary picked up a convenient rock (the river bank was covered with them) and chucked it toward the animal in an attempt to spook it past the men with the camera.

Apparently the ox decided the latter action was going a little too far. He pawed the earth a couple of times and charged. Hilary scrambled up the rocky river bank to escape, and glancing back saw that he was rapidly losing ground.

"It didn't take too long to figure out I was doing something wrong," he says in retrospect. "He was gaining pretty fast so I changed direction and headed downhill for the river. I figured if I could get to the water he might not follow me there." A final glance back before jumping in the frigid water revealed that the animal had given up the chase, however, and the dunking was averted.

Meanwhile, back in the bushes, Ron, Billy and Omer were waiting with camera ready for the ox to come running past. When it didn't arrive on schedule, Ron peered over the bushes to see the ox disappear over the top of the river bank. About that time Hilary arrived on the scene, out of both breath and more ideas for herding musk oxen.

A little further down the river the men observed another musk ox demolish a bush with its sharply hooked horns. "Just think," Hilary mused, "that could have been me!"

The men saw many caribou along the river and even had a wolf chase one of them into the lake near their camp. They saw the wolf, as well as another wolf earlier, and also other wildlife including ducks, geese, ptarmigan, rabbits and other smaller birds and animals. They saw tracks of grizzly bears but none of the bears themselves.

Fishing provided the main course for their evening meal almost every day with both northerns and lake trout caught from shore on spoons. Lake trout ranged up to 26 pounds and one bay produced 60 northern pike from six to 16 pounds. Frequently the men ate two pounds of fish each at the evening meal.

Life did have its discomforts on the river as well as its pleasantries and adventures. "There are millions of mosquitoes and 100 times as many blackflies," Olson said. "Our bug jackets worked quite well, however, and the insects were not an insurmountable obstacle."

In addition to fishing forays, side trips were made to Eskimo burial sites, the gravesite of Arctic explorer John Hornby and his two companions who starved to death in 1929, to a huge 200-foot-high frost boil called a "pingo" and to other interesting attractions in the area.

Portage was made around one rapids about a mile and a quarter in length with about half a mile of extremely rough water. Other rapids were shot with the canoes without incident. On bigger water which had to be crossed — at one time five or six miles from shore — the outboard motor was used to push the two canoes which had been lashed together. The six gallons of gas were used down to the last cupful. Twice the motor was swamped so that it stalled, but each time they were able to get it running again. In all, they crossed 140 miles of three lakes, including Aberdeen Lake, about 90x18 miles in size.

At the destination of Baker Lake after 24 days on the river and about 450 miles covered, the men visited with an Eskimo family through an interpreter. They carried a tape recorder to keep an oral record of their daily activities and also recorded the Eskimo visit.

Because weather delayed their return flight, they had to take a round about route home. They flew from Baker Lake northeast to Repulse Bay, southeast to Coral Harbor, then on to Rankin Inlet, Eskimo Point and Churchill, all on the west side of Hudson Bay. From Churchill they took the train to Winnipeg where Ron and Hilary's wives met them for the return trip to Thief River Falls.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Why can't one or all of the grocery stores in Thief River Falls have double coupons? I have been going to Crookston the last few months to get my groceries because they do have double coupons there; not just once a week, but every day.

I went to two different grocery stores and spent a total of $91.28 and my coupons came up to $51.07, so I got $142.35 worth of groceries for a little over $90. If a store in Thief River Falls started doing that I'm sure that I and lots of other people would go to that store. I don't know how Crookston stores can afford to do it but if they can, why can't Thief River Falls?

I will continue to do the majority of my grocery shopping in Crookston until Thief River stores start doubling coupons.

(Name Withheld on Request)

To the Editor:

It was with a great deal of interest and mixed emotion that I read the article in last week's Times regarding the proclamation of this week, October 16-23, as National High School Activities Week. It was reassuring to earlier read Russ Smith's statement that "school activities programs are developing this community's future leaders" and to see further elaboration of the value of the activity program in Mayor Bob Carlson's proclamation.

As a former physical education teacher and as a parent whose children have participated in an entire scope of school activities including theater-speech, music, art and sports, I am an ardent supporter of the activity programs and believe them to be of equal value to the academic program in the development of well-rounded, well-educated citizens who will become the leaders of this, or any other, community, the state and the country.

It was also ironic that while I was reading this very article, I was interrupted by a telephone call from another parent to continue discussion of ways to earn the $10,000 which parents and students involved in the girls' and boys' swim teams must contribute to the school district in order to maintain this activity. The swim team has been only one victim of the recent school board axe. Also to be completely cut out unless funded from outside sources are the boys' and girls' golf teams and the baseball teams both for last year and this. Nor were athletic activities the only ones affected. One of the district's music teachers was to be laid off until the Band Boosters organization came forward and were informed that if they contributed toward his salary, he would be reinstated. This they did to the tune of $7,500 in an effort to keep that program intact.

Mr. Smith was also quoted as saying that "the total activities program of Lincoln high school involves almost 50 per cent of the student body while using less than two per cent of the high school budget. That's a tremendous bargain!" Of course it's a bargain for the school district — it's the students and parents who are footing the bill. Some bargain!

And, Mr. Smith, the community does know it. How many readers of this letter have not been hit up during the past year for raffle tickets, coupons, sales, benefit dinners, discounts, contributions, goods, tournaments and one and on and on! And in every single case they have come through with flying colors! It is through the efforts of the people in this community who do recognize the values of the activities programs, who have dug deep into their already strained pockets (double taxation! It is their tax money which is supposed to be supporting these programs in the first place!) to maintain the integrity of a well-rounded activity program. And if this letter accomplishes nothing else, these outstanding community members should know that their contributions have been greatly appreciated.

Our education system has been designed to develop talents, skills and abilities in our students which will enable them to lead full, productive adult lives. Yet it is an interesting aside to note that every activity for which funding was cut this year belonged to the "lifetime activity" category — music, swimming, golf, etc. — while the team "spectator" sports remained unscathed.

And in the final analysis, it was not a financial decision at all. The cuts were proposed in anticipation of a relatively low legislative allocation to the local school districts. What actually transpired was that the amount allocated by the legislature was the maximum requested — $1,475 per pupil!

So the money was there — at least for partial reinstatement. It would seem to this writer that the school board's actual priorities are not what they would like us to believe.

It is to be hoped that, in light of statement made during this week of honoring high school activities, these activities will be funded in the future, that the district administration will see the light and, for the benefit of the students, the community and the future, put their money where their mouth is.

Rock & Myhre To Attend MAC Annual Event

Productinon credit association (PCA) will be represented this year at the 38th annual meeting of the Minnesota association of cooperatives (MAC) October 24 and 25 in St. Paul.

Dona Rock, Mentor, will attend the MAC meeting as a representative of the PCA, along with some 400 other co-op people from across the state.

The 28th cooperative conference for youth will be held in conjunction with the MAC annual meeting. Youth are sponsored to the conference by their local cooperatives and more than 300 Minnesota youth are expected to attend. Robin Myhre of Brooks will attend the two-day cooperative conference, which teaches basic cooperative principles, sponsored by PCA.

MN Sunflower Crop Is Down 56 Per Cent

The first sunflower estimate of the season calls for a crop of over 298 million pounds, down a sharp 56 per cent from last year. Yields should average about 1,250 pounds per acre, down 79 pounds from last year. The U.S. crop (North and South Dakota, Texas and Minnesota) should total 3.17 billion pounds, 41 per cent less than last year, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

Projections for spring wheat held firm at last month's estimate in both Minnesota and the U.S.

Prospects for dry beans improved over the past month. Minnesota now expects a crop of 637,500 hundredweight while a U.S. crop of 15.45 million hundredweight is in the works.

The first forecast for 1983 fall potatoes puts state production at 11.4 million pounds, down one per cent from last year. U.S. output is headed for a six per cent drop to 329.8 million hundredweight.

The flax crop has suffered in Minnesota, evidenced by a seven per cent downward revision from last month's expected output. Minnesota producers now expect this year's crop to total 910,000 bushels; the U.S. crop (Minnesota, North and South Dakota) should total 7.4 million bushels.

Minnesota sugarbeets remain in good shape and yields have been revised up one-half ton from last month to 18 tons per acre, paving the way for a 4.64 million-ton beet crop. The U.S. forecast was down just slightly from last month to 21.2 million tons.

Minnesota's soybean crop is doing much better than the other major producing states. Of the top 10 soybean states, all but Minnesota posted drops in expected yields from September to October.

With expected yields of 31 bushels per acre, state output of 142.6 million bushels would move Minnesota from fifth to third place in U.S. soybean production. The U.S. soybean crop should total 1.52 billion bushels versus 2.23 billion last year.

Senior Meals and Activity Program is sponsored by Tri-Valley Opportunity Council, Inc. and is made possible in part by the State of Minnesota, by Title III of the Older Americans Act through a grant from the Minnesota Board on Aging and the support of local communities.

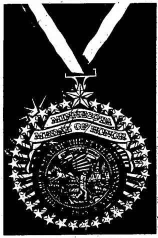
ABOUT FIFTY people attended a hearing held by the Minnesota department of transportation on Monday, to express their concern over certain aspects of a proposed project to rebuild Third Street between First Street and Atlantic Avenue. Among areas of the project which were of major concern were the construction of an access road to Pine Avenue, which would result in loss of parking space at Evangelical Covenant Church; increase in traffic on Davis and Atlantic Avenues caused by closing of Red Lake Boulevard (which presently carries approximately 1500 cars per day between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m.); and the cost of the project, estimated at $1,625,000 total, of which the city's share is expected to be approximately $250,000.



MEDAL OF HONOR for Minnesota was placed at Arlington national cemetery recently, by Governor Rudy Perpich, in honor of the 13,000 soldiers from this state who have died in the nation's wars. Ceremonies were conducted at the tomb of the unknown soldier after placing the medal in the display room of the cemetery's amphitheater. Authorized by the state legislature and specially struck for the occasion, the medal contains the state seal surrounded by 32 stars, which symbolize that Minnesota was the 32nd state to enter the union. Ribbon is light blue and white, the same colors as the congressional medal of honor, the nation's highest decoration of heroism. A duplicate medal will be placed on display in the state capitol rotunda. In recognizing the sacrifice made by the state's war dead, Governor Perpich issued a reminder that "the pursuit of freedom remains unfinished business, requiring this generation and each one in the future to renew the pledge and sacrifice whatever is necessary to maintain it."

MHA Recruits Volunteers For Advocate Work

Advocates can make a difference in the lives of mental health consumers who need help protecting their rights. Mental health association of Minnesota is now recruiting volunteers to work as advocates for former and current psychiatric and chemically dependent patients in the Thief River Falls area.

Association will hold a free two-day training session in Crookston on November 11 and 12. Training covers basic advocacy techniques and a variety of rights issues including rights within the various public benefits systems, treatment rights and commitment law. Trained volunteers become part of the lay advocates network and work with clients from their community under the guidance of Marilyn Spensley, a network advocate from Bemidji.

Volunteer advocates work with individual clients to determine how to resolve complaints and problems with their rights. Using skills from training, the volunteer advocate either speaks in behalf of the client or shows the client how to help him or herself. Volunteers work an average of two to three hours a week, and receive a stipend equal to the hourly minimum wage.

People who are interested in taking the advocacy training can call the network's tollfree number at the mental health association of Minnesota: 1-800-802-1799.

Farm Share Of Food Dollar Is Down From '82

Minnesota crop prices continued making giant strides as the PIK program and the drought pumped up grain markets, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

Despite higher prices, the farmer's share of the food dollar in 1983 is expected to be lower than last year and the lowest since 1933. This is because farm prices for the last year have been poor, supplies large and demand weak, the statistics service reports.

As measured by the Minnesota crops price index, prices were running about 45 per cent above last year. Minnesota's September 30 price report showed that state corn prices for September were the highest since December of 1974; soybeans rose to the highest level since June of 1977; and sunflowers were the highest since monthly estimates began in October of 1979.

Meanwhile, prices for steers and heifers dropped to the lowest level in over five years and hog prices fell $3 per hundredweight from last month, reflecting larger supplies and sell-off of inventories following significant hikes in feed costs in the last few months.

Local Chemical People Group To Meet Mon.

Further preparations for the November 1, 2 and 3 showing of the chemical awareness program on public television locally will take place at a meeting of the Thief River Falls group of The Chemical People Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Redeemer Lutheran church.

Purpose of the town meeting series being planned for Franklin middle school at 7 p.m. the evenings of November 1, 2 and 3 is for the public to watch the public television series and talk about the problems of drug and alcohol abuse in this community. Attending the meetings will be elected officials, parents, teachers, clergymen, young people and business people from throughout the community.

Chemical People is comprised of parents worried about a son or daughter getting hurt, teachers concerned about students not realizing their potential because of drug or alcohol abuse, people who see the role of the religious community in the issues or is concerned for others in the workplace. Goal of the organization is to help young people live healthy lives and learn to make responsible and educated decisions.

The public television programs on November 1, 2 and 3 will include information taken from a survey of students in Minnesota as well as informational material on a national basis. The programs may be watched at home, but the town meetings are being arranged to permit a more active discussion following the showings.

Any persons interested in the program and wishing to provide assistance are invited to participate in the Monday evening meeting.

Pennington Has Fastest Drop In Population

absolute numbers, Minnesota's addition of 57,000 people was exceeded by 18 other states and in the frost belt by New York, New Jersey and Wisconsin.

As was the case throughout the 1970s, the outer suburbs of the Twin Cities and the lake counties of north central Minnesota had the state's most rapid population growth during the early 1980s. Since 1980, growth has been experienced throughout the "dairy belt" of central Minnesota and is most of the forested area of northern Minnesota. Population losses continue, however, along the Iowa, North Dakota and South Dakota borders.

While one-third of Minnesota's population lives in rural areas, these areas account for more than half the state's population growth since 1980. The rural portion of non-farm counties grew by 3.1 per cent between 1980 and 1982.

Despite the high unemployment on the iron range in northeastern Minnesota, the populations of cities in that region showed little if any decline. The demographer's office notes that "it remains to be seen if these trends will continue in the face of continued high unemployment.

Much of the growth in Minnesota's population can be attributed to a growing number of births, with 68,651 babies born to Minnesota residents in 1981, the highest number since 1965. The demographer attributes the increase to an increase in the number of women of childbearing age rather than a return to larger families.

Population change results from the natural increase (births minus deaths) and migration. In no Minnesota county did deaths outnumber births between 1980 and 1982. In all but 11 of the state's 87 counties, the rate of natural increase is greater now than during the 1970's.

Of the 12 stages in the north central United States, only North Dakota showed a net inmigration, and only in Kansas was the rate of out-migration smaller than in Minnesota. Among Minnesota's immediate neighbors, Wisconsin's loss rate was slightly greater, Iowa's six times as great, South Dakota seven times as great and Michigan's 11 times as great. Minnesota's rate of outmigration corresponds to a loss of 13 people out of every 10,000 per year.

Despite a loss of over 6,000 people since 1980, Minneapolis remains the state's largest city with 364,710 people. St. Paul is second with 267,290 and Duluth, Bloomington and Rochester complete the top five. Minnesota currently has 66 cities with more than 10,000 people, 43 of which are located in the Twin Cities metropolitan area.

Farmer Pushing Way Through Harvest Season

$600. Most of the work was done by himself and neighbor Wallace Anderson, who also helped with the design. "I guess I just dreamed it up one night after thinking about these wet fields for a long time," he says.

Bumper extends all the way from the rear of the combine to the front axle. A plate at the rear has extensions on the sides to keep the push plate on the tractor from slipping out as the machines move from side to side. An old tire bolted to the combine bumper acts as a shock absorber between the two machines. Two lights, one red and one green, are used to inform Anderson when he wants him to stop or start pushing.

"It's working surprisingly well," says Ken, adding that the sunflowers are "running pretty good." He estimates that they are yielding between 1300 and 1400 pounds to the acre. "If the crop wasn't worth saying I probably wouldn't be making the extra effort." With a 13 bushel hopper on the combine, they were unable to make a pass down and back on the half mile field they were working on when interviewed Tuesday.

Problems have been encountered along the way, but most have been met with simple modifications. A deflector had to be added at the rear to keep chaff from building up on the bumper's frame and clogging the exhaust chute. Additional reinforcing also had to be added to the bumper when stress cracks became evident. Dual wheels on the combine had to be specially modified with 22 inch bands to reduce mud buildup.

Coan's wife Marge also takes part in the harvest operation, driving truck, drying the sunflowers before putting them in the silos. In addition, she runs errands and delivers meals when they are in the fields. She notes that before her youngest child entered school three years ago, he frequently rode with her in the tractor.

Commenting on the muddy fields Orlin Hanson, who rents land to Coan, noted that getting the crop off was not the end of problems for area farmers. "It's not going to be easy to till with those ruts left behind. A farmer really has to struggle to make a go of it these days. If they don't get some kind of help soon it's going to be worse."

Free Home ID Cards Soon To Be Available

Homeowners will soon be able to receive free home identification cards from their local police or sheriff's department. The cards are designed to help reduce break-ins and aid burglary investigations at home while the owners are away or at a seasonal address, said Commissioner Paul Tschida of the Minnesota department of public safety.

Home identification cards resemble the stickers people put on doors and windows after marking property with operation identification numbers. Major difference is the card provides space for the homeowner's name, operation I.D. number, seasonal phone number and name of person to call in their absence.

Under the home I.D. card program, homeowners are given cards for pernament as well as second, seasonal homes. Necessary information is filled in on the cards and the cards are affixed as designated by the police or sheriff department. Good location for the cards if the outside of the refrigerator because this appliance is unlikely to be stolen during a burglary. Information entered on the card is filed with the police or sheriff.

Card serves as a warning to would be burglars that property is marked and can be identified if stolen. Should a card equipped home be burglarized authorities can locate the card and use the inscribed information to contact the owner. Once contacted the owner can assess damages and arrange to secure the home.

"When receiving their home I.D. cards, homeowners are also urged to join operation identification, form a neighborhood watch group and lock their homes with good locks," said Charles Rix, coordinator of Minnesota crime watch, a program of the Minnesota department of public safety. They should also ask their police or sheriff department for the free burglary prevention booklet, 'What To Do Before the Burglar comes'." other crime prevention booklets dealing with personal protection, vehicle theft, burglar alarms and rural crime are also free from law enforcement agencies.

Almost 100,000 home I.D. cards will be printed by the Minnesota crime prevention officers association. As long as supplies last, the cards will be distributed to Minnesota police and sheriff departments requesting them. Minnesota homeowners should contact their local law enforcement agency for home I.D. cards.

BARREN CAMPSITES were common as Omer Olson, Ron Broten and Hilary Stoltman of Thief River Falls and Billy Wikert of Grygla canoed along the Thelon river in Canada's Northwest Territories this summer. The two-man tents were pitched on the rocky shore each night. Ron Broten took this photo from near a waterfall high above the campsite. The canoes are hidden below the crest of the river bank which drops off sharply to the water.

FROST BOILS are problems in northern Minnesota, but none reach the extent of this one in Canada's Northwest Territories. Ron Broten of Thief River Falls (left) and Billy Wikert of Grygla are pictured with the phenomenon which is called a "pingo." This one is an estimated 200 feet high and 1,000 feet across the base and occurs in the permafrost area. The men hiked several miles to the site which was easily visible from the river where they were canoeing.

CORRECTION

Science And Math Programs Need Improving

Educators in Minnesota must team with business and industry, colleges and universities, and with mathematicians and scientists to improve the teaching of mathematics and science in the state's schools.

Minnesota alliance for science, a partnership between the private and public sectors, concludes that special efforts must be made to convince women and minorities that math and science are important to their future employment opportunities. Different curricula must be developed for students who don't plan to attend college.

All Minnesotans must become more aware that math and science education is important to people of all ages who must cope with an increasingly complex technological society.

Alliance report includes the recommendations of more than 100 educators-teachers, administrators, business leaders and politicians who worked for several months in four independent study groups. Groups examined existing student test data, current school curricula, and other studies of the current situation in Minnesota.

Minnesota students master the basic skills of math and science at a level which exceeds that of their age-mates in other states. They do not, however, master problem-solving skills at levels high enough to cope with rapid technological change.

Alliance officials say the study offers realistic, short-term recommendations that can be acted upon immediately. Group will issue next year a long-term plan which will detail more comprehensive recommendations for cooperative efforts between educators in the public sector and private sector persons. Among the Alliance's recommendations:

—Number of high school students who study math and science exceeds the national average, but female and minority students disproportionately choose not to study such subjects. About one-fourth of the state's high school students choose not to study any math or science in the final three years of school. Their choices are guided frequently by friends and parents. Students must become aware that choosing not to study math and science prematurely closes off future career opportunities.

—Local school districts in Minnesota offer and require for graduation more math and science courses than are required by state policies. However, elementary school teachers express anxiety about teaching science and report teaching it less frequently than is recommended.

—Number of math and science teachers in the state is adequate for the moment, although they are distributed unevenly. Small districts are beginning to report a shortage of math and science teachers who are also qualified to teach other subjects.

—Teachers generally feed "devalued" and, if given a chance to choose again, would not become teachers. Action must be taken to improve the status of teachers in the community by expressing a new and higher regard for them.

—Many teachers feel isolated from each other and from professional colleagues in business and industry. New inservice training opportunities must be set up and teachers must be given the time to meet with each other for professional discussion.

Alliance members further recommend:

—Development of media productions for statewide distribution emphasizing the importance of math and science learning, with special emphasis placed on the needs of women and minority students.

—Development of an information system for teachers to provide up-to-date information on curriculum revisions, inservice opportunities, and available technological resources.

Providing with the state's colleges, businesses, and industries opportunities for teachers from a given region to meet for recurring professional sharing.

—Working with high technology industries to establish regional sites where teachers can familiarize themselves with technological equipment to support improved learning.

—Working at the state and federal level for policy changes that not only encourage improved learning in math and science, but which encourage improved opportunities in all academic subjects.

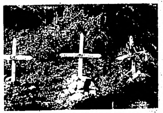
RAINY DAYS required improvisted shelter as a Thief River Falls area group canoed in Canada's Northwest Territories this summer. Two methods of using the canoes and an 11x14 nylon tarp are shown in these photos. Poles in the top photo are simply set on the ground and secured with guylines anchored by rocks. Canoes propped on paddles form the basis for the shelter in the bottom photo. Plastic liners for pack sacks are visible in both photos. Preparation for cold and wet weather was necessary as well as for warm days in the changeable north country.



GRAVESITES in the frozen north consist simply of rocks piled on top of the body which is placed on top of the ground. Because of the permafrost which makes it impossible to dig more than a few inches beneath the surface at any time of the year, this is the only available method of burial. This photo taken by Ron Broten of Thief River Falls is of the graves of Arctic explorer John Hornby and two of his companions who starved to death in the winter of 1929 in the area of the Thelon river. The bodies, which were discovered the following July, were buried near the Hornby cabin.

After five consecutive home games on the soggy, ripped-up Prowler Field gridiron, it was a pleasant surprise Friday to see a remarkably well-kept playing surface for the Lincoln high school football game at Fergus Falls.

Rubber boots, standard fare for the mud and water at Prowler Field, were not needed, and strangely out-of-place at Fergus Falls. Ditto Saturday for the Northland community college football game at Brainerd. Amazingly, one pair of jeans, normally heavily coated with mud after home games, lasted both days of the weekend doubleheader trip.

Covering home games for most of the 1983 season, it was just assumed that other fields were suffering the same fate as Prowler Field. Not true. Fergus Falls' field was impeccable. Brainerd's field was close behind. They obviously were in much better shape to start the year; they perhaps didn't receive as much rain as Thief River Falls did; and they certainly don't get as much use as Prowler Field since both Fergus Falls and Brainerd have separate high school and community college fields.

TRF-Crookston Game Reset

Season-ending Lincoln high school football game against Crookston has been moved from Fri., Oct. 28, to Thurs., Oct. 27, at Prowler Field to accommodate the Pirates' post-season playoff possibilities.

Crookston is 4-3 going into tonight's (Wednesday) game at Mountain Iron-Buhl, a strong Class B team on the Iron Range. Of the three area Class A independents, only the Pirates remain in contention for a playoff berth. Neither East Grand Forks nor Thief River Falls can achieve a winning record required by the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) to qualify for post-season play. The Green Wave are 1-5 and the Prowlers are 2-5 going into tonight's game at East Grand Forks.

Crookston came from behind to beat Barnesville 23-16 Friday, getting the winning touchdown on a 19-yard run by quarterback Jeff Bigger with 2:13 remaining after recovering a Barnesville fumble moments earlier.

It was a game that featured 27 penalties, including 18 on Barnesville for 142 yards, with Crookston called nine times for 85 yards. Barnesville was hit with 15 penalties for 107 yards in the first half alone when the Trojans trailed 15-8.

Otters, Spuds Eye Conference Ties

Fergus Falls has been invited to join the Central Lakes Conference next fall, which currently includes Brainerd, Little Falls, Willmar, Alexandria, St. Cloud Tech, St. Cloud Apollo and Elk River.

However, Elk River will be leaving the conference after the current school year, with Cambridge having dropped out after the 1982-83 season.

Fergus Falls was once a member of the Northwest Conference, along with Thief River Falls, Crookston, East Grand Forks and Bemidji, but that league disbanded when the Pirates and Green Wave tired of playing the Class AA-size Lumberjacks and Otters. Fergus Falls athletic director Don Kostelecky told Gary McVey of the Fergus Falls Journal he would like to see the Otters get back into a conference setting.

"I think it would be good for the overall benefit of the program and the kids to get back into a conference," said Kostelecky.

However, Fergus Falls football coach Don Stueve has expressed reservations about competing against Central Lakes teams. He's concerned about the amount of travel involved, and with the competition against the larger schools. The 1983 Minnesota high school directory lists St. Cloud Apollo's enrollment at 1,216 in grades 10-12, with Brainerd at 1,267 and St. Cloud Tech at 1,384. The book lists Fergus Falls at 854.

Meanwhile, Moorhead athletic director Phil Seljevold announced that the Spuds will unofficially become a Central Lakes Conference member next fall. Long an independent experiencing trouble filling out a schedule, Moorhead will assume Elk River's Central Lakes schedule in 1984.

Those six games, plus the unusual games with Fargo North and Fargo South would leave the Spuds with just one open date next fall, and they're under contract to play at Stillwater, a team that was in Moorhead just last Friday and pulled out a 12-9 double overtime victory.

It was suggested here recently that a current Thief River Falls-Moorhead football series would be discontinued, and with the Central Lakes commitment, it's pretty obvious the Spuds won't be scheduling the Prowlers.

Moorhead doesn't want to compete in the Central Lakes Conference in all sports, though, so the Spuds won't officially be a conference member, noted Seljevold. Asked if Moorhead would be named the conference champion if it won all its Central Lakes football games next year, Seljevold said, "They probably wouldn't let us have the trophy, but we'd know who the champion was."

Moorhead Hitters Wear Down Prowlers' Defense

Thief River Falls did a good job on defense Tuesday night against Moorhead, blocking a number of shots and picking up maybe a dozen-or-so hard spikes during the high school volleyball match played in the Lincoln gym.

But you can only do so much of that stuff, and unable to generate any offense to go along with the defense, the Prowlers fell victim to the relentless assault of the Spuds, who won the match 18-10, 18-4.

"I think they were surprised at our blocks and our defense," mentioned Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson, who agreed the continuous Moorhead attack did eventually take its toll. "Their hits were good. They hit our holes."

Underdog Thief River Falls played on emotion at the start against the state-ranked Moorhead squad, the five-time defending Region 8AA champion. The Prowlers jumped out to 5-2 and 7-3 leads before the Spuds pulled within 7-6 on back-to-back ace serves by senior captain Jeni Hegna. Thief River Falls stayed with Moorhead through a 10-10 stalemate before the serving of Allyson Grohnke and the spiking of Mindy Sutter opened up a 14-10 lead for the Spuds as the Prowlers began to lose their composure.

Facing a 17-10 deficit, Thief River Falls staved off that 18th point through three Moorhead service rotations until Mary Mathisson aced 'em.

After a game Thief River Falls effort in the opener, it was all Moorhead the second time on the court. The Spuds started with a 4-0 lead, then after the Prowlers got it back to 4-2, Moorhead out-scored the host team 14-2 the rest of the way thanks to the spiking of Sutter, a 5-10 junior and the only non-senior starter for the Spuds. The 5-10 hitter had five point-scoring kills in the second game.

While Sutter was the only junior in the Spuds' starting line-up, the opposite mixture was featured for the Prowlers, who started just one senior — Missy Bondy — and five juniors — Kelli Olson, Leslie Weigand, Kristi Finney, Paula Bergan and Jennifer Anderson.

Near the midway mark of the second game the tone of the night was epitomized when Sutter slammed a spike cross court on which Weigand made an outstanding save to keep the ball in play. Seconds later, however, Sutter drilled another one, this time past the diving defensive efforts of Anderson for the point.

Thief River Falls fell to 3-8 with the loss. The Prowlers have never beaten Moorhead in volleyball.

"First game I was satisfied with," noted Anderson, "but in the second game they got tired and gave up a little bit."

Moorhead made it a clean sweep for the night by winning the junior varsity match 18-6, 18-7 and by taking the C squad match 18-4, 18-4.

Thief River Falls will be at Bemidji Monday and will host Crookston Tuesday in 7:30 p.m. matches.

TRF Is Playing At EGF Tonight

When you're accustomed to playing Friday nights, a Wednesday ball game comes up pretty fast. But while the preparation time is greatly reduced, at least both teams are in the same boat. Usually.

Tonight, however, when Thief River Falls visits East Grand Forks for a 7:30 p.m. MEA mid-week game, the Green Wave should have a definite edge. While the Prowlers were kept busy with a Friday night game at Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks had an open date. Most coaches would certainly rather have a full nine-game schedule, but in this case the Green Wave may benefit from the extra days off.

In fact, it may be a two-sided edge for the Green Wave, who also have an open date next week. Completing a shortened seven-game season tonight with a game that was preceded by an open date could provide East Grand Forks with that much more of an incentive to finish with a "give-it-your-all" effort. Thief River Falls ends the season next week with a Thurs., Oct. 27, home game against Crookston.

Class A state playoff runner-up in 1982, East Grand Forks has slumped to 1-5 this fall with a new cast of characters. The Green Wave beat Barnesville 13-0, but lost to Grand Forks Central 19-0, Grand Forks Red River 63-6, Fergus Falls 43-6, Breckenridge 16-14 and Crookston 29-14 in their last outing.

Thief River Falls hasn't had a whole lot of success this fall, either, with a 2-5 record. The Prowlers and Green Wave have played three common opponents, with the same results: Thief River Falls lost to Grand Forks Red River 21-12, Fergus Falls 41-8 and Breckenridge 7-6. The Prowlers haven't beaten the Green Wave since 1978, losing last year's encounter 36-0 when the Prowlers were held to a mere three yards worth of total offense by a strong East Grand Forks defense that stopped Thief River Falls with minus-18 yards on the ground.

The Prowlers had nine penalties, four fumbles and suffered four quarterback sacks in that one.

"They have a considerable advantage," expressed Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz, who figures the Green Wave could use the week off to do everything from healing injuries to installing new offenses and new defenses.

"It's a disadvantage for us, but we can't worry about it," Schmitz continued. "We can't do anything about it."

Last week Thief River Falls had a tough time containing Fergus Falls' offense as the Otters rolled up an even 500 yards. Runningback Len Kretchman had 149 yards on 22 carries. Tonight the Prowlers will have to contend with other outstanding runningback in Steve Ristau of the Green Wave.

"Their speed just killed us," said Schmitz in describing the Fergus Falls loss. "They beat us off the ball and he (Kretchman) has great quickness."

Thief River Falls played without senior Jeff Langan, a season-long starter at defensive end, at Fergus Falls when the senior transfer student from Goodridge was sidelined by a back injury in practice during the week. He isn't expected to play tonight, either. Tim Bottem would have his replacement, but the Prowlers' top runningback was limited to offensive duty only because of a sore leg. Senior Lee Genereux moved from a back-up cornerback to defensive end for the game and put in a good effort at an unfamiliar position, said Schmitz. Bottem, though, may be playing both ways tonight.

"I would expect the normal head-knocker between Thief River and East Side," is the way Schmitz looks at the game.

Northland, Fergus Falls Passing Attacks . . .

Aerial Show Is Expected On Saturday Afternoon

Footballs may fill the air Saturday when the Northland community college football team closes out its brief three-game 1983 home schedule with a 1:30 p.m. Northwest Division encounter with Fergus Falls at Prowler Field.

Neither team has any reservations about throwing the football in a part of the country that is normally orientated to ground attacks. Last week they threw a combined 97 passes.

Fergus Falls gave heavily favored Northwest Division leader University of Minnesota-Crookston its biggest challenge of the season while losing a 33-21 decision to the nationally-ranked Trojans. After falling behind 26-7 at halftime, Fergus Falls pulled within 26-21 in the third quarter behind the passing of quarterback Bret Schmidt.

Schmidt finished the afternoon with 27 completions in 52 pass attempts for 210 yards and two touchdowns. But he was sacked seven times and was intercepted four times. Fergus Falls was held to a minus-20 yards on the ground for the day.

It was much the same for Northland in a 31-7 loss at Brainerd that same day. There, Northland freshman quarterback Steve Blanc of Columbia Heights was 12-for-34 for 109 yards in the air, but he, too, was sacked seven times and was intercepted three times. Northland netted just 47 yards on the ground.

So, adding the sacks in with the attempts, Schmidt called 59 passing plays and only 17 running plays against UMC while Northland had 42 passing plays and only 28 running plays called at Brainerd.

UMC coach Jim Sims was impressed with Fergus Falls. "They're the finest passing team we've run into this year," he said. "They're much better than their 1-5 record."

But that's what the Spartans are. . . 1-5. They beat Hibbing 45-0 while losing to UMC, Vermilion 32-6, Itasca 14-6, Mesabi 21-7 and the Concordia College junior varsity 28-21. Fergus Falls did, however, accomplish something nobody has been able to do this fall when they took Saturday's opening kickoff and marched 80 yards for a seven-yard Schmidt touchdown pass to Bruce Donarski, who finished the day with seven catches for 63 yards. That was the first touchdown the Trojans gave up in six games.

Northland is also 1-5. Like Fergus Falls, Northland beat Hibbing 27-6 while losing to Brainerd, Mesabi, 33-6, Vermilion 35-7, Itasca 32-15 and the Bemidji State University junior varsity 18-0.

Northland coach John Helley acknowledged that it might very well be a passing duel Saturday. "The game might be a little longer than usual," he admitted. "We're working on the passing game, both on offense and defense."

Poor condition of Prowler Field might have an influence on the game, but Helley doubts it will stop either team from throwing the football.

"I think it'll be an evenly matched ball game, but with the passing, either side, if they get hot, could win easily, too," he mentioned.

Blanc, said Helley, was nursing a sore shoulder in early practice drills this week after taking a heavy hit at Brainerd. He may not throw much during the week, but he is expected to be ready to play Saturday.

Kevin Roehl, a freshman from Nevis who is the team's top runningback, was knocked out of the Brainerd game with a painful pinched nerve in his side, but he is expected to play against Fergus Falls, although freshman Jim Dillon of Thief River Falls will probably start in the backfield. Another change will find sophomore John Helms of Thief River Falls moving back to a starting spot at defensive end, with freshman Brian Lundgren of New Ulm expected to see more playing time at tight end in Northland's new spread formation offense. The key there, says Helley, is to get sophomore wide receiver Todd Graalum of Fargo open. He's the leading pass receiver in the state, according to Minnesota Community College Conference charts, but he was double-teammed by Brainerd and held to just two catches.

Blanc and sophomore Bob Rockwood, a runningback-wide receiver from Fargo, were named offensive players of the game at Brainerd, with Rockwood also sharing those honors on defense in the secondary, while freshman linebacker Steve Robinson of Westland, Mich., freshman tackle Jay Weiher of Verndale and sophomore end Greg Langerud of Edinburgh also receiving defensive honors. Rockwood, in turn, was named player of the game for the Northmen.

Other game in the Northwest Division Saturday afternoon will be a first place UMC battle at Brainerd. The winner will likely represent the Northwest Division in post-season play. Northland ends the 1983 season at UMC the following week.

Tues., Oct. 25 — Gonvick-Trail at Grygla-Goodridge, 3 p.m.; Middle River at Fisher, 3:15 p.m.; Oklee at Erskine-Mentor, 4 p.m.; Clearbrook at Plummer, 7:30 p.m.

Plummer clinched at least a tie for its first North Tri-County Conference title since 1969 Tuesday with a 20-6 Nine-Man high school football win at Oklee.

"Terrific. Just Great. Everyone is just really excited," is the way Plummer coach Gary Brantl described the feelings of his players after they assured themselves of their first-ever post-season playoff berth. Many of the same players suffered through 0-9 and 2-7 seasons in 1980 and 1981.

Plummer will complete its 1983 regular season schedule at home next Tuesday with a 7:30 p.m. game against Clearbrook. The Hornets were in the title chase and were looking forward to a season-ending championship encounter with the Cardinals until Grygla-Goodridge beat them 20-6 last night. The Blue Devils, who lost a tough early-season 14-8 game to Plummer, can still tie the Cardinals for the conference title by combining a season-ending win over Gonvick-Trail with a Plummer loss to Clearbrook, but the Cardinals will get the post-season berth.

That playoff game against the Northern Lights Conference champion — expected to be Kennedy — will be played Sat., Nov. 29, at 7:30 p.m. in Plummer.

Brantl said the Cardinals are looking forward to the playoff experience, but their first goal is to finish unbeaten. "We want to go 8-0," he said.

Last night Oklee gave Plummer problems as the Bobcats, for the second time in five days, tried to pull off a North Tri-County Conference upset. They challenged once-beaten Grygla-Goodridge Friday before losing 12-6.

"I'm super-proud of the kids' effort," pointed out Oklee coach Dale Svaren. "You couldn't ask for anything more from them. I thought we played well."

Brantl echoed similar thoughts, but also credited his team for its continued solid and-opportunistic play.

It was an 8-6 Plummer lead at the end of the first half, with the Cardinals opening up a 14-6 cushion when Gene Fisher returned a pass interception 23 yards for a third quarter touchdown.

Clinching touchdown came on the first play of the fourth quarter when the Cardinals scored off a botched field goal attempt. An errant snap bounced into the arms of kicker Russ Fisher, who ran the ten yards into the end zone.

"Defensively we gave up just the one touchdown," sighed Svaren, who praised the defensive work of Duane Baker, Darrin Tougas, Tom Dulks and Steve Olson.

Offensively the Bobcats went with the passing game as quarterback Kevin Enerson threw 55 passes, completing 17 for 241 yards. Tougas netted 44 of the Bobcats' 45 rushing yards.

Plummer, meanwhile, gained 199 yards on the ground and only 14 in the air on a 2-for-11 showing. Russ Fisher had 81 yards on 13 carries, with Troy Gustafson getting 62 on 15 tries and Brian Fisher gaining 55 on 10 trips.

Defensively, Gene Fisher was credited with six tackles, had two interceptions — including the touchdown — and knocked down six passes in the secondary.

Tuesday's game against Clearbrook will be Parent's Night for the 7-0 Cardinals. Oklee, 2-5, will finish the year at Erskine-Mentor that afternoon.

Prowlers Finish 1983 Schedule

An appearance at the Bemidji invitational Tuesday closed out the 1983 Thief River Falls regular season cross country schedule.

Final race for the Prowlers will be the Region 8AA meet for boys and girls Thurs., Oct. 27, at Fergus Falls.

LHS Freshmen Beaten 28-8 In Last Game

Lincoln high school freshman football team ended a winless 1983 season Tuesday afternoon with a 28-8 defeat at the hands of Grand Forks Schroeder junior high at Prowler Field.

Schroeder had an 8-0 first quarter lead, owned a 22-0 halftime cushion and maintained a 22-8 third quarter spread.

Thief River Falls scored on a 55-yard Paul Brandt touchdown run in the third quarter, with Griff Newland adding the two-point-conversion.

"Not too many wins," admitted Thief River Falls freshman team coach Glen Peters, "but they made a lot of strides. There were a lot of kids who never had football experience before. They improved. They got some wins coming down the road."

Thief River Falls losses this fall came at the hands of East Grand Forks 30-14, Crookston 22-6, Valley 26-16, Bemidji 30-12, South 22-6, Crookston 20-6 and Schroeder.

Prowlers Eliminated In Region 8AA Tennis Play

Thief River Falls entries in the 1983 Region 8AA girls high school tennis tournament were eliminated during the state tournament-qualifying matches played Tuesday at St. Cloud.

Top two finishers in both singles and doubles play earned state tournament trips. Those spots went to Lori Berenz of Detroit Lakes and Melanie Miller of St. Cloud Tech in singles, and to the doubles combinations of Cari Murn-Liz Rolle of St. Cloud Tech and Tammy Manninan-Sue Adams of Little Falls.

One day earlier South Sub-Region 8AA champion St. Cloud Tech defeated North Sub-Region 8AA winner Detroit Lakes 5-0 in the Region 8AA team finals at St. Cloud.

Thief River Falls had one singles players and two doubles teams at the Region 8AA meet.

In singles play, the Prowlers' Michelle Olson opened with a 6-2, 6-2 quarterfinal victory over Tina Och of St. Cloud Apollo, but lost in the semifinals to Tech's Miller 6-3, 6-2. Melissa Andreotti then beat Olson 6-3, 6-4 in the third place match.

Both Thief River Falls doubles entries were eliminated in the quarterfinals to the eventual finalists. Penni Johnston and Connie Grovum lost to Little Falls' Manninan and Adams 6-1, 6-2, while Kelly Cornell and Vickie Grovum fell to Tech's Murn and Rolle 6-1, 6-1.

"Top four kids were all real good tennis players," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. "It just depended on a point here and there to determine the winners."

Olson said he was satisfied with the Prowlers' post-season efforts. "I think the kids played as well as they could have played on that particular day."

Argyle scored the first four times it had the ball and opened up a 36-0 lead before settling for a 36-22 Top of the State Conference Nine-Man high school football win over visiting Marshall County Central Tuesday night.

It was the second win of the 1983 season for the already-crowned conference champions over the Nordics, with the Eagles winning a Sept. 16 encounter in Newfolden by a 20-12 margin.

"We didn't play very well defensively to start the game," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart. "We're capable of playing much better than that."

But the combination of a poor start defensively and offensive mistakes led to a 16-0 first quarter Argyle lead that ballooned to 30-0 by halftime.

Marshall County Central made the final score look a little more presentable by scoring the game's final three touchdowns.

Actually, the Nordics wound up the statistical leaders. They gained 177 yards on the Blue Devils Tip Clearbrook 16-8

Grygla-Goodridge improved its record to 7-1 Tuesday with a close 16-8 North Tri-County Conference high school football decision over Clearbrook on the Hornets' soggy gridiron.

A game-opening pass interception led to a 1-yard Byron Nelson touchdown run for Clearbrook and an early 8-0 lead.

Grygla-Goodridge matched that when a Jeff Klein interception set up a 6-yard Doug Schulz touchdown run, and the Blue Devils' defense came through again in the second quarter when Tim Irlbeck knocked down a Clearbrook pitch-out at the Hornets' three-yard line and recovered the ball in the end zone for what proved to be the game-winning touchdown.

"I was very pleased with the way our kids played," reported Grygla-Goodridge coach Rick Nelson, who said he was happy with the way his team hung in there and came back after two early interceptions.

Schulz carried the ball 32 times for 157 yards, representing most of the Blue Devils' 197 yards on the ground. They netted only 17 yards passing on a 1-for-7 performance that included four interceptions. However, Grygla-Goodridge came up with five interceptions.

Wayne Byklum and Irlbeck had two interceptions each, and Klein had the other one as Clearbrook went 9-for-31 in the air.

Nelson also praised the play of his offensive line including Tim Wayne, Rodney Haugen, Bill Neuschwander, Dale Verbout, Jared Sjulestad and Scott Klein.

It was the sixth straight win for the Blue Devils, who are still missing three starters because of injuries. But despite being limited to just punting duties, Scott Groven, the league's top pass receiver, made his presence known when he got off a 50-yard punt midway through the fourth quarter to get Grygla-Goodridge out of trouble and take the momentum away from Clearbrook. Groven and sophomore Tim Schulz are both expected to be healthy and in the line-up for the season finale Tuesday vs. Gonvick-Trail, a 3 p.m. game at Grygla.

T.R.F. Handles Central 108-62

Thief River Falls coaches Jay Forney and Jody Dallmann were pleasantly surprised Tuesday when the Prowlers overwhelmed Grand Forks Central 108-63 in what was supposed to be a close dual high school swimming meet in the Franklin middle school pool.

Seven Thief River Falls first place finishes and 17 swimmers who turned in their best times of the year made for an unexpected one-sided win for the Prowlers. It was their sixth win in seven dual meet outings.

Michelle Puetz won two events for the Prowlers, swimming a 2:26.30 in the 200-yard individual medley and swimming a 1:05.26 in the 100-yard backstroke. Other winners included Janelle Smidt with a 28.12 in the 50-yard freestyle; Shelley McGann with a 1:11.65 in the 100-yard butterfly; and Teri Klopp with 210.60 points in the diving competition.

Thief River Falls also won both relay races. Kathy Reuter, Heidi Tofte, Jill Lusignan and Smidt swam the meet-opening 200-yard medley relay in 2:10.57 while Peutz, McGann, Tammy Gunderson and Connie Geatz swam the meet-ending 400-yard freestyle relay in 4:10.60.

Five Prowlers also matched Section 3 qualifying times, including Pete Kuyath, 50-yard freestyle; Laura Belto, 500-yard freestyle; Marci Turenne, 100-yard backstroke; Cindi Russell, 100-yard backstroke; and McGann, 200-yard freestyle.

It was the second straight surprisingly easy win for the Prowlers, who beat Detroit Lakes 9-81 here last Thursday. Yesterday's meet was the final home appearance of the year for the Prowlers, who complete their 1983 regular season schedule next Tuesday with a 7:30 p.m. meet at Fergus Falls. Section 3 meet will be held Nov. 11-12 at Bemidji State University.

Duck Stamp Observes Its 50th Anniversary

Stamps issued in 1984 will mark 50 years for the federal duck stamp and next year's commemoration promises to spark the greatest amount of public interest in the history of America's national conservation stamp program.

Interior Department expects this fall's duck stamp art competition to select the design for the 1984-85 anniversary year stamp to draw the highest number of entries and the largest attendance in the contest's history. The judging will take place over two days in Washington, D.C., to accommodate the increased public interest in the 50-year celebration.

"This year's winner will have the distinction of being the 50th anniversary stamp and will grade the 'Duck Stamp' for the 1984-85 hunting season," note officials.

Little did Congress know how truly significant and far-reaching the Migratory Bird Hunting Stamp Act would become when the program first started in July 1934. The duck stamp built the national wildlife refuge system with the millions of dollars contributed by the American sportsman. What was once a loose collection of refuges scattered throughout the nation is now a 417-unit network encompassing nearly 90 million acres of land with a well-defined purpose and a continuing financial base. The duck stamp has spawned the largest system of lands intensively managed for wildlife anywhere in the world, officials report.

In 1984, the 50th anniversary issue will undoubtedly become a collector's item because of the significance of the upcoming occasion and the national attention that will be focused on the duck stamp at its mid-century mark," adds G. Ray Arnett, Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Fish and Wildlife and Parks. "Consequently, there's been tremendous interest in this year's contest and in the commemorative activities through 1984 that are being planned by the Interior Department and many private conservation organizations and individuals."

Duck stamp is a principal means by which the federal government generates revenue from waterfowl hunters to buy and preserve vital wetland habitat for ducks, geese and non-game shorebirds and waterbirds. Over 85 million of the colorful stamps, known formally as Migratory Bird Hunting and Conservation Stamps, have been sold since 1934, pumping more than $240 million into the land acquisition program for the national wildlife refuge system.

Now sold for $7.50 each fall, the duck stamp is required of all migratory waterfowl hunters 16 years of age and older. Over two million are bought each year by sportsmen and non-hunting conservationists and stamp collectors. Thus, sportsmen and others who purchase duck stamps contribute directly to the acquisition and protection of national wildlife refuges.

Fifty-year success of the duck stamp is tribute, in large part, to the efforts and foresight of J.N. "Ding" Darling, an Iowa political cartoonist for the Des Moines Register, who first conceived the idea of a self-generating revenue stamp by which waterfowl hunters would pay to sustain their sport. Considered the "Father of the Duck Stamp," Darling later became director of the Bureau of Biological Survey, predecessor of today's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Judging ceremonies to select the 50th anniversary stamp design will be held November 8 and 9, 1983, at the Interior Department auditorium in Washington, D.C. This year's judging will be highlighted by several new features designed to enhance the ceremony for the benefit of audience members, according to Peter Anastasi, the Fish and Wildlife Service's duck stamp contest coordinator. They include an overhead projection system by which every design can be viewed by visitors and an electronic numerical scoring system by which the rankings of all entries will be displayed instantly and totaled.

Design will go on sale as the 50th anniversary year duck stamp on July 1, 1984, at post offices throughout the country.

The duck stamp is unique, officials said, "but we have come a long way since the first one was issued a half century ago. Now we have the task force to protect our wetlands and duck resources, to which we give the shorthand name of 'POWDR.' And, we are seeking a variety of ways to save wetlands through federal, state, local and private cooperation."

Other events sponsored by the Interior Department to commemorate the duck stamp act's passage and the contributions of J.N. "Ding" Darling are currently being planned and will be announced later.

Cards' Volleyball Team Is 2-1 Winner Over TRF

Region 8AA member Thief River Falls saw its record against District 31A opponents drop to 1-6 this fall on Monday when Plummer out-scored the visiting Prowlers 18-13, 13-18, 18-14.

"I was impressed with Plummer," reported Thief River Falls assistant coach Jodi Bendickson, subbing for head coach Helen Anderson, who left the match because of illness. "It was very good volleyball. That's the best Thief River has played. We just didn't get the breaks."

Junior Kelli Olson led the Prowlers with 13 service points, while Kristi Finney and Paula Bergan, two more juniors, had 12 and 9 points, respectively.

Seniors Helen Jaeger and Jodi Malwitz both had 10 service points for the Cardinals, with junior Lori Braaten getting 10.

Plummer also won the junior varsity match 18-6, 18-12, with Thief River Falls winning the C squad match 10-15, 15-6, 15-8.

"I thought it was a well-played match," said Plummer coach Dean Miller, who echoed Bendickson's thoughts. "Thief River has really improved. They're going to be tough. I thought we played pretty well."

Junior Jody Pahlen was credited with 10 kills (attacks) for the winners, who won for the seventh time in 11 dual meet outings. Plummer had lost its previous start when Argyle beat the Cardinals 18-14, 18-9 the week before.

Grygla - Badger

Sophomore Carol Verbout collected 21 service points, 12 of them ace serves, as Grygla defeated visiting Badger 18-13, 18-11 Monday.

"Overall, we played pretty well," reported Grygla coach Kurt Vandermeer, who watched his team end a three match losing streak in winning for the eighth time in 14 outings.

Goodridge - Oslo

Goodridge bounced back from a heart-breaking 20-18, 19-17 Thursday night loss to Stephen with an 18-10, 18-9 Monday night victory at Oslo.

Juniors Cheri Nelson and Melissa Iverson led the Huskies both at the service line and with their spiking ability at the net, mentioned Goodridge coach Patti Johnson.

Goodridge, 3-10, has just two regular season matches remaining, both at home: Tues., Oct. 25, vs. East Grand Forks Sacred Heart and Thurs., Oct. 27, vs. Gonvick-Trail.

MCC - Tri-County

Marshall County Central won its fifth straight match and improved its record to 11-2 in dual meet competition with an 18-15, 18-8 win over Tri-County Monday at Karlstad.

Coach Julie Tunheim's Nordics finish regular season play next week, visiting Warren Monday and hosting Hallock Thursday.

"We played quite well at times," mentioned Tunheim after the win over the Rabbits, but she admitted the Nordics didn't play with the intensity they showed in an emotional North Border Conference title-deciding match with Lake of the Woods their last time out.

Senior Shelly Anderson was the Marshall County Central leader with five ace spikes and seven ace serves Monday. She finished with 12 service points, while junior Barb Garthus had 10.

Plummer - Mahnomen

It wasn't particularly well-played, reported Plummer coach Dean Miller, but the Cardinals defeated Mahnomen 18-15, 13-18, 18-6 Tuesday at Mahnomen.

Plummer improved its record to 8-4 with the victory, with two matches left on the 1983 regular season schedule. The Cardinals visit Fisher Tuesday and host Oslo Thurs., Oct. 27.

Fishing Group Plans Banquet In Greenbush

Save Our Game Fish Committee has named Jim Peterson, of Golden Valley, editor-publisher of Outdoor News, the Minnesota Sport Angler of the Year.

Co-chairmen Doug Wahl and Dick Knutson of the Save Our Game Fish Committee announced that they have decided that it is long overdue to honor Peterson for his outstanding work in bringing fishing issues and problems confronting the State of Minnesota before the public.

"Mr. Peterson has long been in the forefront in trying to improve the quality of sport fishing in Minnesota, and even though he has been criticized for being outspoken, the average sportsman knows that Mr. Peterson has brought forth the truth of many of the issues," Wahl and Knutson said in a joint statement.

A banquet will be held in Greenbush at the Greenlin Supper Club on Sat., Oct. 22, to honor Peterson. The public is invited to the banquet, and tickets, priced at $10 each, are available at Wahl Bros. Bait in Greenbush or from members of the Western Roseau County Sportsmen's Club. The social hour is at 5 p.m. and the dinner at 7 p.m.

"It is our strong feeling that a great debt is owed, not only to Mr. Peterson but also to a lot of other media representatives of the past several years for bringing important fishing issues before the public eye," the statement from Wahl and Knutson went on.

Knutson stated that the SOGFC is keeping a watchful eye on developments regarding the future of fishing, since the new omnibus fishing law will soon take effect.

"The DNR was certainly put on notice this past year that the public expects much better performance in trying to improve the quality of sport fishing," Knutson said. "It is our sincere hope that the new funding will result in new innovative fisheries programs being put into place, and that the DNR fisheries will take the lead so that all of us can be proud of our fisheries for generations to come."

In the 1800s, before railroads carried U.S. mail out West, camels were shipped from Egypt to move mail and supplies across the hot, dry southwest deserts, says "Ranger Rick" magazine. It took some getting used to, but the 60 or so camels, known as the U.S. Camel Corps, proved worth of the task.

Elmer Luke, a 220-yard freestyle state champion at Hibbing, in 1944, coached his 100th straight dual meet victory as a coach of the Hopkins High girls' swimming and diving team this season. Luke's squad beat Osseo, 147-45. The last school to defeat a Luke-coached team was Minnetonka in 1974. Luke, 57, coached Hopkins Lindbergh to state girls' swimming titles in 1978 and 1979.

Coaches Clinics Are Planned At Bloomington

Minnesota State High School Coaches Association will hold its annual basketball and hockey coaching clinics Friday, Saturday and Sunday, October 28-30 at the Rodeway Inn in Bloomington.

Clinic will feature Rich Falk of Northwestern and Jim Smith of St. John's in basketball and Bill Selman of St. Louis in Hockey. They will be joined by some of the top high school and small college coaches from the upper Midwest in both sports.

Highlighting the weekend for all coaches will be the Minnesota High School Coaches Associations awards banquet. Along with the awards to all championship coaches, and the induction of new members into the "Coaches 25 Year Club," and the Minnesota High School Coaches Hall of Fame will add six new members.

New inductees into the Hall of Fame will be presented a plaque, with a similar plaque being placed in the high school where that coach served. The inductees and the school they represented include: Al Halley, Minneapolis Southwest; A. J. Kramer, Roseau; Ralph Peterson, Plainview; Bob Roy, St. Louis Park; Granville Smith, Park high school; and Arnold "Judge" Veglahn, St. James.

Annual affair will conclude with a reception for past presidents of the association, with the inductees to the Hall of Fame and the new "25-Year Club" members as special guests.

Time Doesn't Always Heal All Wounds

by Judith Raunig-Graham
'U' M News Service

Although many therapists think that grief over the loss of a loved one subsides within a year, a University of Minnesota family social science professor believes that grief may reoccur throughout one's life and that it's all right to be depressed about it once in a while.

Professor Paul Rosenblatt's suspicion that grief is not necessarily short-lived was confirmed when he studied more than 1,000 19th-century diaries of ordinary people from the United States and Canada. He has written about them in a book, "Bitter, Bitter Tears," recently published by the U of M press.

Rosenblatt originally began to study diaries as a way to learn about 19th-century people's close relationships, but he soon realized that grief was one of the strongest common features of the diaries. Because he already had an academic interest in grief — many of his classes on the social psychology of the family touch on the subject — he decided to study the diaries in relation to 20th-century theories on grief. Reactions to events that were written about in diaries, he decided, could provide a better indicator of a person's feelings at a particular time than could subsequent accounts.

One of the first things Rosenblatt learned from the journal keepers was that even though they lived in the 19th century they "seemed to be wired up like we are." Though they were involved in different mourning customs, they had the same basic needs — survival, health, happiness — and lived within the same cultural institutions as people do today.

"I was sure that some people grieve on and off forever, and the diaries prove that," Rosenblatt said. "That is contrary to those who say you should be done with grief in a year's time." Implication for therapists who work with the bereaved is that they should be patient with the grief process because people grieve at different rates, he said.

One of the more surprising findings of his research, Rosenblatt said, was that grief over a separation can be more intense in the long run than grief over a death. One of the diaries he read was written by a woman who emigrated from Norway and experienced grief for an aunt she didn't even like. He found that older people were less grief stricken over separation than younger people, but reacted more strongly when they were the ones left behind.

Separation may cause more grief than death because people are less likely to replace a loved one with whom they someday could be reunited. "People may be reluctant to develop a life pattern in which an absent person who had been close to them would, if returned, have no part," Rosenblatt wrote.

Findings suggest that the grief experienced by people undergoing any kind of long-term separation — immigrants, parents of runaways or relatives of prisoners of soldiers missing in action — should not be underestimated, Rosenblatt said.

Title of Rosenblatt's book is from the words of a diarist who wrote of separation, "It was killing work for me to say farewell. This done and I must not look mournfully into the past. We are not out of sight of land. . . . I only cried as the steamer sailed away — bitter, bitter tears."

Rosenblatt's book is liberally sprinkled with excerpts from diaries indicating how various writers attempted to cope with their grief. Several writers emphasized the importance of attempting to be happy, while others talked of the need to keep busy. "This world is not so sad a world — if ever happy we try to make it," Emily Gillespie wrote in a poem in 1882. Another writer, Thomas Edmonds, wrote in 1844, "Happiness consists not so much in having a good deal to enjoy, as in the faculty to be contented with a little."

"From the perspective of the diaries, the ego defenses involved in the emotional control of grief are not necessarily maladaptive," Rosenblatt concluded. "Although some writers on grief argue that a bereaved person's turning away from grief is a sign [illegible] pathology, such as turning away seems to be normal (in the sense of being common), to rarely be associated with pathology, and to be typically a sign of coping."

Dipping into the lives of so many real people who had experienced loss through death of separation was emotionally taxying for Rosenblatt, who spent most of a sabbatical year on the research. To combat the strain, he took his sons along on several trips to archives. He also planned trips to archives in cities where he could visit friends after a day's work. He estimates that he spent about 3,000 hours studying more than 1,000 diaries. Ultimately, he used just 56 of them in his book.

"A lot of people probably think this book is a downer, but I see it as upbeat, because people learn and grow from their losses," Rosenblatt said. "It's not so much a book on pain as on how to gain the best of life."

In Rosenblatt's view there is no magic involved in the grieving process. However, reading about the process can help one to understand one's own reactions and emotions better, he said.

Attention: Property owners

At the regular County Commissioners' meeting held on September 27, 1983, a final report was filed by the Ditch Viewers on County Ditch No. 70. The Viewers indicated they felt that County Ditch No. 70 and County Ditch No. 64 should be consolidated into one ditch with a common benefited area.

A PUBLIC HEARING will be held in the Board Room of the Pennington County Courthouse on FRIDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1983, at 7:00 P.M. to view the Viewers' report and to consider the consolidation of the two ditches. All involved landowners are invited to attend this meeting to express their opinions and desires.
Kenneth Olson,
County Auditor

Resolution

WHEREAS, Pursuant to Order for reviewing the benefits for drainage supplied by County Ditch No. 70, the duly appointed Viewers have filed a preliminary report of their findings, and

WHEREAS, As a part of the reviewing report the Viewers have indicated that the County Board should take such steps as are necessary to consolidate County Ditch No. 70 and County Ditch No. 64 into one ditch with a common benefited area.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the Viewers reviewing the benefited area of County Ditch No. 70 filed their final report on September 27, 1983, and provide information so that the Landowners involved can make comparisons as to the relative benefits assessed for various tracts of land, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That a public hearing on the Viewers' report of benefits be held in the Pennington County Courthouse at 7:00 P.M. ON OCTOBER 28, 1983, and that pursuant to Minnesota Statutes 106.171, the County Auditor be instructed to notify all of the landowners affected by the Viewers' report of the hearing on redetermination of benefits and the Viewers' recommended consolidation of County Ditch No. 70 and County Ditch No. 64.

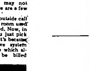
DID YOU KNOW?

Making your life easier are a lot of innovative devices that you may not know about. Here are a few of them:

- Making an outside call from your hotel room used to be complicated. Now, in many hotels, you just pick up and dial. That's because of an innovative system called Tel-Charge which allows calls to be billed automatically.



- There's also a way to help your business office control telephone expenses. It's a management data system called Call-Account.
- Both these ingenious systems were developed by the engineers at Conrac Corporation, a publicly-owned company whose primary business is manufacturing products for telecommunications, video and computer-related information markets.
- That same high-technology company manufactures the computer-driven displays you see at many airports and railway stations around the world. The displays let you know when your plane, or train, is arriving or departing.

AFTER 37 YEARS with the Thief River Falls school district, Sam Honebrink retired this week as School District 564 mechanic. He is shown with his wife Mickey and Supt. Robert Block, who presented him with the service plaque from the local board of education. Honebrink started as a custodian and bus driver with the district in August of 1946, then transferred to the bus garage as a mechanic and driver about 25 years ago. For some time he was a full-time driver as well as mechanic, later making runs as a substitute. For about the past eight years he has been a mechanic only, working on the district's fleet of 25 to 30 buses as well as other vehicles and buildings and grounds equipment. Ray Vigstol is presently the working foreman in the mechanic shop with Frank Knott as mechanic. Honebrink said he has made no immediate retirement plans. The plaque presentation was made at a retirement party Tuesday afternoon at the school district transportation department offices.

Stangeland's Amendment To Organize Debt

Congressman Arlan Stangeland will offer an amendment this week that could provide special relief for disaster-stricken farmers in Red Lake, Pennington, Polk, Beltrami, Clearwater and Marshall counties.

The Stangeland amendment would consolidate all existing farm-related debts for certain farmers into one 15-year, five per cent loan if they were in a county that has been declared a disaster area for at least three consecutive years. The amendment would also authorize a "moratorium" on payments for qualified farmers for up to five years. Red Lake and Pennington counties would qualify for this relief.

Polk, Beltrami, Marshall and Clearwater counties could also receive the same relief, because the Stangeland amendment would allow the agriculture secretary to provide these loans and deferrals to farmers in counties adjoining the perennial disaster areas.

The Stangeland amendment will be introduced in the House Agriculture committee as an improvement to the 1983 Drought Relief Act (H.R. 4052) of Rep. Ed Jones (D-TN).

According to the Farmers Home administration, only 10 counties in America have been hit with three consecutive fiscal years of natural disaster," Congressman Stangeland said. "This relief would not be expensive for the federal government, but it could help to turn these areas around."

Farmers in these counties who cannot get loans elsewhere, and who were following good management practices before the natural disasters, would qualify for the 15-year, five per cent loan. If their farm and financial situation makes it clear to the agriculture secretary that farmers can "turn the corner" and repay these loans at a later time (although they could not do so now), a "moratorium" on principal and interest payment not to exceed five years could be granted.

"Storms don't stop at the county line," Congressman Stangeland said. "Some farmers in neighboring counties are hit just as hard as the disaster areas. That is why we also need relief for neighbors."

With drought affecting nearly every other rural district, Congressman Stangeland feels there will be much pressure to pass the Jones bill. "If we can get this amendment attached to that bill, I believe it should move quickly through the House," he said.

Relief From Pain Takes Many Forms In World History

by Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

"The most general survey shows that the two foes of human happiness are pain and boredom." So wrote Arthur Schopenhauer, the noted German philosopher of pessimism, more than 130 years ago.

Modern-day physicians and psychiatrists would agree that Schopenhauer was right on the mark where pain is concerned.

Pain, declares the association for research in nervous and mental diseases, is "the most pressing human health problem facing Americans in the 1980s." Today, one-third of the U.S. population suffers from persistent or recurrent pain, a variety of symptoms that physicians call chronic pain. Collectively, chronic pain is the third leading cause of disability, exceeded only by cancer and heart disease.

It is also the most costly health problem in the United States, according to the national institutes of health, which has tallied the annual pain-relief bill at $50 billion.

From prehistory to the present, people have invested considerable ingenuity, energy and money to relieve physical suffering, ranging from daily aches to the injuries of warfare, say Smithsonian historians of science, Deborah Warner and Nancy Knight, who have put together a new Smithsonian exhibition, "Pain and Its Relief," at the National museum of American history in Washington, D.C.

Pursuit of painlessness has a rich, recorded history dating back to around 500 B.C. Many ancients believed pain was caused by evil spirits, angry gods or sinfulness. At the Temple of Aesculapius in Greece, sufferers — inspired by accounts of successful dreams depicted on temple walls — slept and dreamed of being healed.

Number of cultures put faith in the curative powers of votive offerings — images or sculptures of the particular diseased or hurt body parts. Disease and pain, it was believed, transferred from the living part to the inanimate model.

Other cultures relied on the putative powers of metal; in ancient Rome, soldiers dipped their iron swords in their morning drinks. However, copper bracelets as medical adornments are relatively new, dating only from the late 18th century. They are worn today to ease the discomfort of arthritis, rheumatism and a modern affliction, tennis elbow.

Far-fetched cures? Not at all, Warner and Knight say. Current scientific studies show that a patient's belief in a cure may influence the course of a disease. "In all cultures, the practice of medicine combines technology with belief," says Warner, project manager of the Smithsonian's pain exhibit. "This is as much true for us today as it was for older cultures."

Early on, many cultures combined belief with more tangible treatment. Archaeologists have traced the use of cocaine, a potent pain reliever found in the leaves of the coca shrub, to Indians living in Ecuador at least 15,000 years ago. Both the early Chinese and Greeks were familiar with the sleep-inducing properties of opium (an extract of the poppy plant), cannabis (the active ingredient in marijuana) and the root of the mandrake plant.

By the Middle Ages, people could choose their pain relievers from a potpourri of plants, powders and potions. In Europe, potions made from opium, cannabis and mandrake root were inhaled through sponges. Mixtures of common herbs and uncommon additives — rhinoceros horn and eye of bat, a concoction not unlike the witches' brew in "Macbeth" were touted as sure-cures for toothache.

Other methods were tried: heat; hypnosis; acupuncture, introduced in America in the early 19th ccentury, and even static electricity, generated by Rube Goldberg-like contraptions as early as 1743. Static electricity treatments were especially popular in the United States, even though Benjamin Franklin denounced them as ineffective and dangerous.

Surgery, however, remained a drastic measure, undertaken only when pain became unbearable. Without anesthesia, surgeons were limited to amputations, surface excisions and a few minor corrective procedures.

"The marks of a great surgeon," Knight says, "were not patience and delicacy, but speed and strength." In the late 18th-century, British surgeon set a record for an amputation at the thigh: 35 seconds. In his haste, however, he also inadvertently removed the patient's left testicle.

Around 1800, chemists in both Europe and America had begun to study various gases. In 1977, Humphry Davy, an English chemist, noted the exhilarating and humorous effects of inhaling small doses of nitrous oxide; larger doses induced sleep. Sulfuric ether had similar effects. It wasn't long before university students began holding "ether frolics," while "laughing gas" demonstrations and lectures amused the public.

By the 1840s, a number of American physicians had begun experimenting with the potential uses of ether and nitrous oxide in surgery.

"The discovery of anesthesia," Davis says, "was the first major American contribution to medicine and one of the most significant medical happenings of all times, ranking right up there with the discovery that germs cause disease and the discovery of antibiotics."

Use of anesthesia spread "like lightning" across western cultures, Davis reports. "It totally revolutionized the practice of surgery and dentistry. Before anesthesia, dentists were largely limited to tooth extractions because the pain of restorations was too great for patients to bear."

Once anesthesia eliminated pain, Warner points out, "Doctors no longer had to race through operations. They gained new knowledge of physiology and anatomy and discovered surgical remedies for appendicitis and other previously inoperable conditions."

In the mid-1800s, "patent" medicines also came into wide use. Patent medicine promoters claimed that their largely alcoholic elixirs cured all kinds of ills, from the pain caused by the "stress of modern civilization" to "sick headaches". Electricity made a comeback, and a whole new range of pain-relief remedies were offered to an eager public: ear vibrators, eyeball massagers, therapeutic waters and exercise machines to pummel, prod and shake out aches and pains.

Meanwhile, physicians and others developed safer machines for delivering ether, nitrous oxide and, later, safer inhalation anesthesias. Regional, or local, anesthesias were developed and refined, eliminating the often dangerous need for putting a patient to sleep when only a minor procedure was required.

Pharmaceutical companies began to market morphine and cocaine for injection in the 1880s and '90s. Stovaine, a synthetic substitute for cocaine, was synthesized in 1904 but was quickly replaced by Novocaine in 1905. Pain-killers became the mainstay of the modern pharmaceutical industry, beginning with the synthesis of acetylsalicylic acid, also known as aspirin, patented by the Bayer Co. of Germany in 1900.

"From the mid-19th century on, pain became big business in America," Warner notes. Today, Americans spend something between $1 billion and $1.5 billion on over-the-counter pain remedies, such as aspirin and non-aspirin substitutes. Another half-billion is spent on prescription pain killers, including the newest drugs now being evaluated in the pain pharmacopoeia — the so-called nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs, or NSAIDs.

Surgical anesthesia now is a far cry from the "ether dome" operations of the 1850s. Modern anesthesiologists, graduate physicians concerned with all areas of pain control, rely on anesthesia machines, with their life-sustaining functions and monitoring devices, to deliver a balance of pain killers, sedatives and muscle relaxants. Today, some 26 million operations, must unimagined by early surgeons, are performed annually in America.

A relatively new, multidisciplinary approach to pain relief is embodied in pain clinics, now numbering 800 in this country and still proliferating. At a pain clinic, each patient's case is evaluated, and a tailor-made program is designed that may include individual and group psychotherapy, exercise, diet, massage, biofeedback (which teaches people how to control certain body functions), electrical stimulation techniques, hypnosis, surgery and-or the use of a variety of non-narcotic drugs.

Are Americans preoccupied with pain? "Perhaps," the Smithsonian's Davis comments. "In the early days of our country, people accepted pain as part of the normal course of living. Today, we are very conscious of health and physical fitness and maybe pain control goes along with this heightened consciousness. But there are still cultures that accept pain without having it called to their attention by advertising and health campaigns — or without complaining as much as we do."

Pilot Safety Seminars Set In Minnesota

Two pilot safety seminars, the first of 13 planned throughout the state in 1983-84, will be offered to the public October 26 in Alexandria and October 27 in Wadena by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) aeronautics division.

Alexandria seminar will be conducted from 7 to 10 p.m. October 26 in the Alexandria area vocational-technical institute cafeteria, 1601 Jefferson St. Program is co-sponsored by Alexandria aviation, Inc.

In Wadena, the seminar will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. October 27 in the Wadena senior high school cafeteria, 600 S.W. Colfax Ave. Local co-sponsor is Jeffers Flying Service, Wadena.

Programs are supplemented in cooperation with the federal aviation administration (FAA). Mn-DOT aviation representative Neil Hyink's topic is "winter wonderland." He also will explain Mn-DOT's new statewide computer weather terminal system and demonstrate how pilots may obtain instant weather information, weather graphics and computerized flight plans from the computer.

There is no charge for these seminars and advance registration is not necessary.

If additional information is desired, contact Hyink, Mn-DOT aeronautics division, St. Paul downtown airport (612) 296-1141.

WHEN PRESSURE GETS TO YOU

How come in a world that operates largely by machine and computer there is so much PRESSURE on the individual?

Maybe the answer is that few individuals are as well adjusted as our machines, as soundly programmed as our computers. Human beings are always encountering the unexpected for which we are unprepared.

Religion in every age has helped men meet and overcome the pressures that beset them. The simple realization that God cares about us is the beginning of a new sense of our mission in the world. We are not alone. Life is partnership with Our Lord. His power empowers us. His peace calms our turmoil.

There's much more to successful living than enduring pressure. Discover that in regular worship.

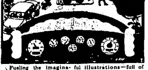
Books Put Children in Driver's Seat



Fueling the imagination of many children is a new series of Golden books that puts children behind the steering wheel of their favorite vehicles and takes them on an exciting adventure.

Aptly called, Drive Away Books, these novelty storybooks are not just read by children, they are "driven." Youngsters can actually grip the steering controls through die-cut handholds and become part of the story as they point a jet plane or submarine, drive a fire engine or automobile.

The detailed colorful illustrations—full of humor and action—show the changing view through the windshield or rear-view mirror. Even the dashboard controls change to reflect a real driving situation. For example, as the jet plane takes off, soars above the clouds and then makes a landing, the gauges for air speed, altitude, fuel, etc., vary according to the changing flight pattern. A simple text describes the highlights of each make-believe "trip."

It's an attractive new series of books that is putting youngsters in the driver's seat.

American Regional Cooking Today: Golden Apple Bread Pudding

American regional cooking, with its long and flavorful tradition, is enjoying the heights of popularity across the nation today. This hearty, inviting Golden Apple Bread Pudding comes to us from the annals of our colonial ancestors.

The naturally sweet flavor of orchard-fresh Golden Delicious apples, raisins and fragrant spices, added to this old-fashioned dessert, turns a good thing into a really memorable dish. Whether served warm from the oven or made ahead and cooled, this is sure to become a favorite with all ages.

All-purpose Golden Delicious apples from Washington State are prized for cooking and baking, as well as for enjoyment in salads and out-of-hand snacks. They retain their shape better than other apple varieties during cooking, and their snowy flesh resists darkening when cut.

1-1/3	cups milk		Dairy sour cream (optional)
1/4	cup butter or margarine
5	eggs, beaten
1/2	cup sugar

As If Somebody Cared

Following editorial is from the Kittson County Enterprise at Hallock:

A common misconception about the way our government operates, fueled by innumerable public opinion polls, is that laws and policy are enacted solely on the basis of the opinion of the majority.

That is the definition of a pure democracy, which the United States is not, and was never intended to be.

A Republic, on the other hand, which is the basis of our form of government, empowers the people to decide who will represent their wishes in a common forum to enact laws, which at best, are a compromise of diverse opinion.

Everyone, of course, has an opinion on most matters of public policy. Some are more vocal about it than others, but in general, that diversity is given wide dissemination and no one is completely left out of the decision making process.

To be in the majority on a particular question of public policy, even though it does not make one necessarily right, is lately a source of pride and hundreds of polls are conducted in an effort to add substance to one side of an argument or another by way of numbers.

The fact that our government is of the people, by the people, and for the people, does not mean that the people speak with one voice on every particular, nor does it mean that the whim of the majority of the moment should necessarily be the law of the land.

Protection of the rights of the minorities is an integral part of our constitutional system of government by laws and the vigilance needed to protect those rights against an oppressive majority is today made all the more difficult by the polarization graphically depicted in public opinion polls.

To find oneself on the minority side of anything these days, whether it's U.S. involvement in El Salvador or the protection of snail darters in Tennesse is clearly a depressing prospect, mainly because those who profess to be in the majority won't let you forget it.

There are safety in numbers, to be sure, when percentage points dictate the reasoning for foreign and domestic policies, especially when running for office, and the conception of being on the winning side of any debate, if only because of sheer volume of support, is indeed attractive.

However, it's still a poor way to run a country.

Why the diatribe against opinion polls all of a sudden? Because, unfortunately, the 1984 election promenade has begun and the pols are already dragging out the polls.

They'll be with us from now until November of next year — everywhere we turn we'll be bombarded with straw polls from places like Keokuk, Iowa and presidential preference polls from the Almagamated Sewer Workers of Jersey City, New Jersey.

The amazing thing about polls is that they are conducted and published with a straight face, as if someone really cared.

W.I.F.E. Month

Following article written by Jerry Wiebel was reprinted recently in the Stephen Argyle Messenger-Banner:

O.K., farmers it's time we righted one of the great injustices of our time. We celebrate National Beef Month, Pork Month, Dairy Month, and who knows what else. But do you realize that we don't have an official appreciation for farmwives? It's time we give farmwives the recognition they deserve. We could call it National W.I.F.E. Month (W.I.F.E. stands for Women Inspiring Farm Excellence).

I got the idea for W.I.F.E. Month when my wife and kids went back to Iowa to visit relatives and left me alone for two weeks. All I had to take care of was the house and garden, and it gave new meaning to the word chaos. I can only imagine what it would be like if the many farmwives I know left the form for two weeks. . . It would be tantamount to a hailstorm, a barn fire, and an IRS audit, all before breakfast.

Before my wife left on her trip, being the caring woman that she is, she dutifully put together a two-week menu plan — 42 individually wrapped, precooked meals sitting in the freezer. All I had to do was pop them in the microwave, and I still screwed them up. I know farmwives who can whip up a three-course meal while refueling the tractor.

Then there's the washing machine. I've seen combine operator's manuals that were easier to understand than that thing. I sent my shirts out to be professionally laundered rather than risk bodily injury to myself with something as dangerous as a steam iron.

And as luck would have it, the peas in the garden were ready for harvest. It took me five hours to pick, shuck, and freeze enough to make seven meals worth. Thank goodness, I didn't have 500 acres of corn to combine!

So there you have it — my case for why there ought to be a National W.I.F.E. Month. All farmers in favor can vote by giving their wives a big hug and sincere thank you. It's the least you can do for someone who not only does the household chores, but goes on to contribute so much to the farm business.

Plan To Play Crucial Role

Following editorial from the St. Cloud Daily Times has been circulated to Minnesota newspapers by the Minnesota waste management board:

The term "Hazardous waste" have moved from the lexicon of engineers and technicians into the vocabulary of the layperson in a surprisingly short time. The state's search for a safe way to dispose of hazardous wastes has generated intense public involvement — primarily in the form of criticism and plenty of opinions about what should be done to solve the disposal problem.

Nearly all of the public interest so far has been focused on the selection of suitable waste disposal and processing sites. In Central Minnesota and elsewhere in the state, the location and method of future hazardous waste disposal has become a hot issue. Standing-room-only hearings, letters written for newspapers' opinion pages and coffee-shop discussions attest to the high level of feelings about where and in what form a disposal site should be constructed.

But little public attention has been given to an even more important part of the process — the hazardous waste management plan. That plan, being developed concurrently by the Waste Management Board, will determine how the state will come to grips with its future waste management needs. When completed, the waste management plan will be the pivotal document upon which other hazardous waste management decisions will be made.

By Nov. 1, the state waste board must deliver to a House-Senate legislative commission a comprehensive waste management report, projecting the state's hazardous waste disposal needs and evaluating the available technologies. Based on that report, the waste board also will present a preliminary plan, recommending policies and facilities to meet the state's needs through the year 2000.

Plenty of legislative discussion — and possibly some action — is expected during the 1984 session, but the management plan will not be formalized for several more years.

Opportunities for public comment also will continue. Public meetings on the waste board's report are being held through October in various locations, including Central Minnesota. Legislative hearings also are planned for next spring in St. Paul.

Because it touches specific communities and individuals, the site selection process tends to remain in the public eye. Meanwhile, the hazardous waste management plan, which ultimately will affect far more lives and acres, stays quietly in the background. In the not-too-distant future, after the sites are selected and the current brouhaha has stilled, Minnesotans will discover the plan is of fundamental importance.

The waste board's report and preliminary plan also make surprisingly interesting reading, and should be required background material for anyone who wants to speak intelligently on the subject — on whatever side. The documents clearly lay out the board's interpretation of its powers and responsibilities, its criteria for site selection and its long-term goals, and all with refreshingly little jargon.

Hazardous waste management is a tough topic that has been made even murkier by a surfeit of misconceptions and inaccurate data. For that reason alone, the report's facts and figures are valuable additions to the controversy.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Interviewing a couple on their 60th wedding anniversary, the reporter asked the wife: "Truthfully, now, in the last 60 years did you ever seriously consider divorcing your husband?"

"Never!" the lady replied. "Divorcing him? No! Killing him? Many times!"

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Recently a reader wrote, asking, in effect, if there was a Santa Claus who could provide miracles so that we could have permanent prosperity, ever increasing wages and benefits with security and freedom, doubling of wages when profits double (he made no reference to wage reductions when profits turn to losses), no inflation, and the "easy life" on "easy street." This reader said that the Japanese seem to have the answer to the "easy life" on "easy street," perpetual prosperity and all of the rest. He also felt that free enterprise and competition are heartless and cause our problems.

Today I am starting a series of "Dear Jim" letters to that reader, covering the points he raised, because his letter and its contents indicate how little most of our people know and understand about that modern miracle, the American business system.

"Dear Jim:

I believe that there is a Santa Claus and that he has been very good to each of us by allowing us to grow up as Americans. Here we enjoy freedom and the opportunities and the burdens that freedom imposes. I believe that Santa has given us the gift of a free will, assuming that if we are willing to work, with understanding, that we can really achieve all that we should expect, which is not necessarily all that we would like!

A look at some facts on how our free and private enterprise system shares indicates more than 85 per cent of American families have one or more cars, 70 per cent have at least one color TV, more than 85 per cent own black and white TV sets, 75 per cent have washing machines, 60 per cent own clothes dryers, with more than 99 per cent having refrigerators and freezers, and almost half even have dishwashers (the mechanical kind, not just husbands, wives and kids). Using constant dollars that eliminate inflation, 30 years ago about 22 per cent of our American families earned more than $15,000. Today more than 60 per cent of the American families earn more than $15,000.

More than 76 cents out of each sales dollar goes to employee wages and benefits. The other 24 cents gets split up between suppliers, transporters, financial institutions (charging interest on borrowed money), and other costs, including the return to investors who put up the money to make the business system operate. That latter part of the return is called profit.

Profit, Jim, is not money going back to owners for fun and games. Profit is the money owners use to keep investing and improving plants and equipment, as well as products and services, to remain competitive. It's the payment to the owners for the use of their money and the risks they have taken. Instead of being 33 cents out of each sales dollar, Jim, as most people believe, profit is between one cent and four cents in bad times and two cents and eight cents in good times (varying with the kind of business), and the portion paid out to investors as dividends is taxed. Most profit stays in the business.

Even Karl Marx had to admit, Jim, that the free enterprise system produced more goods and services in its limited period of existence (free enterprise is relatively new in terms of human development and history) than all of the production of prior systems put together over many generations. It's nice to get compliments from the competition.

Incidentally, the communists have learned (and did so early in the 1920's) that you need incentives to get the most out of people, and they have periodically tried adapting free enterprise incentives to make their system work, without giving their people freedom.

Jim, free enterprise gives everyone a chance at having a piece of the action. In a nation of 235,000,000 people, we have some 12,000,000 proprietorships, 1,500,000 partnerships, and almost 3,000,000 corporations, all active and operational. Anyone can start a business, and thousands of new businesses are born each working day. You find successful entrepreneurs representing every age, race, sex, religion and national-ethnic origin.

Forgetting the system, Jim, we live in a very rough world where competition has always existed and is the name of the game. Competition improves quality and service, reduces prices, and causes new and better products to be developed. Competition knocks out naturally the old inefficient companies and allows the new and young companies to have their day. Competition exists, regardless of the system, because we must compete with the products and services of nations all over the world. We must compete on cost, quality and style.

Competition, Jim, means that we can not relax and take life easy. I don't think that Santa ever intended that we should get something for nothing. In next's week's letter, Jim, I want to respond to your idea about doubling wages when profits double, plus the significance of productivity, which really must determine what we get paid, not stupid pressure tactics that hurt everyone."

That's Straight Talk!

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Don Devine, the director of the federal government's office of personnel management (OPM), has a good idea: He wants to tie pay increases for federal workers to satisfactory work performance.

Do a good job and you get a raise. Perform poorly. . . no raise. It certainly sounds reasonable to me, and I expect it makes good sense to most Americans in the private sector who have always known that pay earned and work performed were strongly linked.

In theory, federal workers receive annual pay increases in two parts: the first, an automatic cost of living increase to match inflation; the second, a merit based pay increase determined by their performance in the previous year.

This was the theory. Over time, however, increasingly powerful labor unions representing federal employees worked to make it almost impossible to deny a "merit" pay increase. Administrations of both political parties decided not to press the point, and eventually, the merit portion of annual pay increases became, in fact, automatic. Each year's salary increase became independent of the quality of work done.

The results were predictable. Granted automatic pay increases, federal employees faced no incentive to improve their productivity, work harder or come up with innovative ways to cut the cost of government. With little incentive to produce, gridlock set in.

Throughout the history of our nation, the federal government has grappled with the problem of establishing incentives for federal workers. In 1883, Congress passed the Pendleton Act which established our present civil service system. It was a great step forward. No longer would federal jobs be handed out on the basis of favoritism, nepotism or as the spoils flowing from a successful political campaign. It isolated civil servants from politics and these employees were freed up to do their jobs in a professional and non-partisan manner.

Unfortunately, over the years, the civil service system became rigid. It overreacted. It not only isolated federal employees from political pressures, but also served to remove all incentives. It became virtually impossible to fire workers who, frankly, did not work. Automatic, across-the-board pay increases did not allow any room to increase the salaries of top flight civil servants, or cut the salaries of those performing below average.

Don Devine's proposals would go a long way toward restoring proper incentives to the federal workplace. The same incentives to work harder and more creatively that private sector workers face every day.

Specifically, Devine's proposal would base the within-grade pay increases for 1.4 million white collar federal workers on their performance. The proposal would also require the government to take performance into consideration when employees must be let go in staff reductions. Today, such Reductions in Force (RIFs) are based solely on seniority. This penalizes women and minorities, who often have less seniority, and it does not allow an agency to remove "deadwood."

While the Devine proposal would serve to increase the efficiency of the federal government and would reward and encourage high quality federal workers, some congressmen are bowing to pressure from federal employee unions who oppose the plan. The union bosses fear that linking pay to performance would weaken their power and influence. Their reaction is both narrow-minded and self-serving.

One can only hope that Congress will resist this pressure and act instead in the broader public interest of improving the productivity and efficiency of the bureaucracy.

The taxpayers deserve no less.

Who Works For Whom?

Mr. Jones makes more money each year than you do — 35 per cent more. While you must wait until age 65 to retire with full pension benefits, Mr. Jones can retire with full benefits under his system 10 years earlier, at 55. And another think, Mr. Jones' pension will be 56 per cent of his pretax salary — yours, most likely, will be only 30 per cent. His office is larger than yours. It is almost impossible to fire Mr. Jones and he isn't the least bit afraid of losing his job because of the recession or foreign competition.

Oh, and one last thing. Mr. Jones would like to thank you for paying his salary and his handsome pension plan.

That's right. Mr. Jones works for the federal government. He's a bureaucrat. And before you can begin to pay the rent, put food on the table, or make the car payments, Uncle Sam withholds enough of your money to pay Mr. Jones. Actually you and your neighbors finance the high salaries and unbeatable pensions of 2,853,863 Mr. Jones. That is how many federal bureaucrats the taxpayer must support these days. (And that number excludes military personnel.)

You may be a little annoyed with things so tight, that your family budget is paying the salaries of bureaucrats who make more money than you do. Well, there's more. The pensions paid out to retired federal employees are indexed to rise with inflation. Only half of the workere in the private sector have any pension at all, and for those who do, only three per cent are indexed to inflation.

The federal government's pension plan is so generous that more than 100,000 retired bureaucrats are now getting more money in their retirement checks than they ever made while working. It helps, of course, that the federal government's contribution to the bureaucrats' retirement system represents 33 per cent of payroll, compared to an average of 17 per cent contribution by employers in the private sector.

Now, let's make one think clear. Private employers are not pinching pennies when they fail to match the generous pay and pensions granted federal employees. They have to earn every nickle of employee pay and pension benefits by selling products or services. The federal government simply reaches out into the taxpayers' pockets and takes what it needs.

With all those nice salaries and pensions it should be no surprise that the Washington, D.C. area has a higher proportion of households earning more than $50,000 per year than any other city in the country.

And while the rest of the country is shelling out over $61 billion to pay for civilian federal employees — excluding postal workers who average more than $22,000 a year — and an additional $21 billion for pension and disability payments, there is even more to look forward to: a half-trillion dollar unfunded liability for the Civil Service Retirement System.

As you prepare your federal income tax this year and consider the inordinate federal salaries and pensions that your taxes pay for, you may wonder about these civil servants. Do they work for us, or do we work for them?

The Martha circle will meet at the church parlors on Tuesday, Oct. 18 at 2 p.m. with Mrs. Elvera Ring and Mrs. Lawrence Ring as hostesses.

Congratulations to Cindy Swenson and Richard Kukowski who were married Saturday at the Ringbo church.

Dorothy Rood, Mrs. John Sorenson and Jami and Lila Hjelle were among the many that attended the fancy work sale held at the Holt church on Friday evening.

Airman first class Tim Erickson of Little Rock, Ark. left Friday, Oct. 7 for a two month tour of England.

Mr. and Mrs. Orvus Benitt and Kent drove to Itasca state park to do some sightseeing on Sunday. They also stopped to visit with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bernier of Oklee.

Putting The Treat Back In Halloween

A treat of a cookie—giant size—that puts a very special touch in Halloween celebrations.

Lots of parents are looking for ways to take the trick out of Halloween and put the emphasis on healthful treats. One good way is a neighborhood party that gathers children in for group celebration.

Imagination and creativity in planning Halloween festivities can join hands with traditions that date back centuries. Decorations and costumes follow many customs from the days of the ancient Druids. Eerie witches, grisly ghosts, scary black cats and grinning pumpkin jack-o-lanterns can form decorations and provide inspiration for costumes.

Refreshments needn't be elaborate, but one way to make every youngster feel "treated" is with goodies that are special...such as giant cookies. Decorate one for each child or let them join in the fun of fashioning their own "cookie faces." Made with the goodness of LIBBY'S canned pumpkin, these cookies are right in season for a safe 'n happy Halloween celebration.

THE GREAT PUMPKIN COOKIE

- 4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 2 cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1-1/2 cups butter or margarine, softened
- 2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 can (16 oz.) LIBBY'S Solid Pack Pumpkin
- 1 cup raisins
- Assorted candies, raisins or nuts
- Assorted icing or peanut butter

Preheat oven to 350°F. Combine flour, oats, baking soda, cinnamon and salt; set aside. Cream butter; gradually add sugars, beating until light and fluffy. Add egg and vanilla; mix well. Alternate additions of the dry ingredients and pumpkin, mixing well after each addition. Stir in raisins. For each cookie, drop 1/4 cup dough onto lightly greased cookie sheet; spread into pumpkin shape using a thin metal spatula or knife. Add a bit more dough to form stem. Bake at 350°F. 20-25 minutes, until cookies are firm and lightly browned. Remove from cookie sheets; cool on racks. When cool, decorate cookies using icing or peanut butter to affix assorted candies, raisins or nuts. Yields approximately 32 large cookies.

Variation: Substitute 1 cup real semi-sweet chocolate morsels for raisins.

Note: Dough may be frozen for later use. Place unused dough in an airtight container in freezer. Thaw in refrigerator; bake as directed.

Giant pumpkin cookies are so delicious you'll probably get requests for repeats ...so bake them ahead for after school snacks or as treats in lunchboxes to put some Halloween fun into ordinary days.

Youngsters of all ages enjoy the traditional games of Halloween, too. Decorating giant cookies with funny faces, bobbing for apples, telling fortunes and relating ghost stories are just a few ideas that may set the theme.

Something new is brewing in Minnesota.

The Stroh Brewery Company is the nation's third-largest brewer—and growing. An important part of our growth will come from the historic St. Paul brewery that we've converted to produce quality Stroh products.

We're brewing two of our most popular brands, Old Milwaukee and Schlitz, here now. In a few weeks we'll start producing Schaefer, a long-time East Coast favorite.

All of these fine beers are backed by a Stroh brewing heritage more than 200 years old. And they're being brewed in Minnesota by skilled local employees.

The Stroh family is committed to producing quality beer and to the growth of the communities where we operate.

We think Minnesota's an ideal place. That's why Stroh is happy to be here.

School Bus Grew From Early Wagon

by Linda St.Thomas
Smithsonian News Service

During its 75 years on the road, the school bus has grown up, changing from black to double-deep orange to bright yellow, from a wood-and-metal truck with hard rubber tires and even harder seats to a sleek, 66-passenger air-conditioned vehicle.

In its early days, it wasn't even a bus, but a motor-powered wagon and, before that, a 12-foot, horse-drawn wooden "kid's hack" with roll-up canvas sides.

The school bus, in turn, has been changing American education ever since 1869, when wagons first transported children from home to school in Quincy, Mass.

It has its own week, National school bus safety week (Oct. 2-8), and a place of honor at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., where a vintage 1939 school bus recently joined the National Museum of American History collections.
